FACING THE NEW YEAR

History is a record of extremes. It divides into eras of hardships, luxury, conquest, cruelty, lust, splendor, famine, industry, idleness, greed and pestilence.

Though it is written on stone, paper and in the minds of men that danger lurks in extremes, the lessons comes down the centuries to this day undeeded.

At this moment, hallowed by its Christian significance, man is at his neighbor's throat for dollars. A year ago it was for principles and the principals were nations. Now principals are individuals, even as you and I.

The extreme that perpetuates all others is the present day disregard for that basis of all happiness, concord and prosperity—the Golden Rule.

It's a good rule that works both ways—benefiting him who applies it and bringing good to humanity. In the practice of it you can never reach the extreme. The Golden Rule is self-modifying.

It engenders love—a fellowship with and affection for all humankind. Love is the parent of good, another word self-modifying.

Let's summon the good, the decency, the REAL in us at this auspicious season and face the new day, the New Year, the new era with a new feeling for those about us and a better understanding of all that peace-on-earth-good-will implies.

WHY SO GLOOMY ?

When the United States government shipped a load of alien Bolsheviks, anarchists and similar ilk to Russia the other day, we all imagined that they must have been a happy, well-pleased lot.

If what they preached is true, this country is a mighty bad place to live in. Our government is a despotism. Our people are starved, oppressed and enslaved by capital. Nothing good comes to the vast majority in this land of gloom and tyranny. And here they were—these Bolsheviks and fiery-tongued orators—going away, far from all these things. More, they were going to Russia, the paradise of their orations. Still more, their pockets were stuffed with the money their easy-working jaws had brought them.

Were they happy? They were not! They were the most down-in-the-mouth steamerful of passengers that ever left New York. Most of them were just about ready to burst into tears.

We can't understand this.

But wait! Maby that shipload of gloom was because the voyagers will now have to go to work.

OREGON PIONEER RECENTLY PASSES AT HOME AT LYONS

Death called an old Oregon resident, Charles D. Wilson, December 20, 1919, at his home at Lyons, Oregon.

Mr. Wilson was born in Rochester, N. Y., March 2, 1852. He moved to Iowa with his parents while a boy. He was married in Webster City, Iowa, April 12, 1873, to Joan A. Sorber. He moved from Iowa to Oregon in 1879. He was in the carpenter and contracting business in and around Salem until 1894, when he moved to a farm in Fox Valley, Linn county and has continuously lived there since.

Besides his widow he is survived by eight children, five daughters and three sons, three grandchildren. The children are: Hoyt H. Wilson, Oregon City; Claude C. Wilson, Mill City; Maude O. Brotherton, Salem; Mable E. Bodeker, Mill City; Alta M. Trask, Fox Valley; Fannie A. Wilson, at home; Ruth I. Lyons, Lyons; and Ralph P. Wilson, Gooch.

He was buried at the Fox Valley Pioneer cemetery, Monday, December 22.—Oregon Statesman.

"Died—aged fifty-six years, six months and thirteen days. Deceased was a mild-mannered pirate, with a mouth for whiskey. He came here in the night with another man's wife and joined the church at first chance. He owes us several dollars for the paper, a large meat bill and you could here him pray for six blocks. He died singing 'Jesus Paid It All' and we think he was right—he never paid anything himself. He was buried in an asbestos casket, and his friends threw palm-leaf fans in his grave, as he may need them.—Exchange

HAUSER BROS. TO HAVE EXPERT ADVERTISING MAN

Hauser Brothers, who operate sporting goods stores at Salem, Albany, Eugene and Corvallis are showing their enterprise still further by employing a professional advertising man to take care of the publicity for all of their stores. K. B. Palmer, who will make his headquarters in Salem, was in the city this week getting acquainted with the local field on his trip around the circuit. He will prepare all newspaper advertising copy for all of the stores and later will also attend to the window dressing in each city. Hauser Brothers, Paul and Lloyd, have lived in Salem most all their lives and are examples of native industry in building up a large business, specializing along one line. The local store is managed by John Neely, well known Albany man, and is assisted by Jess Bramwell, who will probably some day be managing another branch store when Hauser Brothers choose to expand again.

Hauser Brothers are believers in newspaper publicity and use a great deal of space in the Salem papers as, well as in other papers of the valley.—Albany Democrat

PERCY VARNEY

In speaking with an acquaintance of our's recently at Salem, the conversation turned to a discussion of Salem's public officials, past, present and future. "I'll tell you," said a old-timer, "Percy Varney is the best Chief we've had since Doc Gibson sent terror to the hearts of eval doers years ago. Salem has been a clean city of late, largely due to the fact that Chief Varney believes and practices, "that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

Any crooked outfit does not show its head above the water in Salem until it gets notice to move on and you bet they move. This kind of policy keeps clean the city of Salem.

A man like Mr. Varney would make a most excellent Sheriff for Marion county. He has done exceedingly well by Salem as Chief of Police—its business men have confidence in him and declare he is a most logical candidate for Sheriff with assurances of their support should he decide to seek the office. Mr. Varney will soon give out his announcement.—Turner Tribune.

Norman Kings

The names of the early dukes of Normandy, as well as their family history, are known but very dimly; and it may be as well that it should be so, for their descent does not seem to have been as orthodox as it might. Be that as it may, the dukes appear, in such reliable annals of their times as we possess, under their Christian names only.

Thus, William I of England (William the Conqueror) was the illegitimate son of his predecessor, Robert the Devil, and of a young woman of Falaise, a tanner's daughter named Arletta, or (as some say) Herleva. The birth records of Robert's predecessors, Richard the Good, Richard the Fearless and William Long-Sword, were equally smirched; and of the parentage of Raoul or Rolla (christened "Robert"), the first duke of Normandy of whom we have any historical knowledge, we have no data whatever.

Neat Picture Framing.

If you do your own picture framing, first of all be sure that the glass is immaculately clean next to the picture. Then next to the picture lay a piece of paper, then a layer of cardboard, and weight it while you drive in the tiny nails to the sides of the frame. The frame should be laid on something soft while this is being done, and against something hard while the nails are driven in. When the picture is placed, paste a piece of heavy paper over the back of the entire frame, and insert screw-eyes to hold the picture wire or cord. Pictures are always hung, now, flat on the wall.

"Oh, no, I'm a newspaper man, spending my vacation up here in the hills."

"Is that so? Well, I never yet heard tell of one of yer paper fellers that didn't have a powerful thirst. You just see aroun' a spell, sonny, an' some of th' boys'll git so durned sorry fur you they'll come right up an' offer to lend you to a 'still.'—Birmingham Age-Herald.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and for years it was supposed to be incurable. One rainy day I walked into a cafeteria, selected my dinner, and just as I stood at the checker's desk the party in front of me took a step back, knocking the tray from my hands and spilling the entire contents on the floor. I thought as I looked at the unfortunate mess that I failed to see the steak which had been on the tray, but supposed that it had fallen under a chair out of sight. A waitress stepped up to me and told me to select my dinner over again, which I did, with every one in the place watching me. I bolted the food as quickly as I could and went out into the rain once more, when upon opening my umbrella the piece of steak which I had failed to see in the restaurant fell from it.—Chicago Tribune.

She Didn't Change.

We had learned the family name of our new neighbors and so were somewhat surprised when their small daughter, while playing with our children, announced that her surname differed from the rest of the family. "Why, that isn't your mama's name, is it," I asked? "Oh, no, but she got married again, and you see I stayed just like I always was."—Chicago Tribune.
