A Hog Story

An amusing story comes to the Standard from the country. It seems that a farmer had been losing swill from the milk can where it was kept, and accused one of his neighbors of allowing his hogs to get out and fill up from the can. One morning however, the top of the can was found to be tightly stopped with the head of one of the hogs of the man who owned the can, and it was necessary to cut up the hog to get the head out of the can. The man who was accused of having a theiving hog' thinks he has the laugh on his neighbor.

British Use Armored Cars Effectively. British Front in France—The main theme of talk in the British army is the wonderful work of the new armored cars, used for the first time when the British smashed the German's third line of defense.

Evidently their building was a close secret, the first the Germans knowing of their existence being when dawn came and they trundled across craters, trenches and tree stumps on to the German's second and third line defenses. Many battalions, following in their wake had nothing more to do than harvesters gathering sheaves as they follow the reaper and binder.

Survival of the Fittest Among Birds.

The struggle of life among the birds and other wild creatures is so severe that the feeble and malformed, or the handicapped in any way, quickly drop out. Probably none of them ever dies from old age. They are cut off in their prime. A weeding out process goes on from the time they leave the nest. A full measure of life, the perfection of every quill and feather and unerring instinct carry them along. They are always in the enemy's country; they are always on the firing line; eternal vigilance and ceaseless activity are the price of life with them. The natural length of life of our smaller birds is calculated to be eight or ten years, but probably not one in a thousand reaches that age. Not half a dozen times in my life have I found the body of a dead bird that did not show some marks of violence.—John Burroughs in Harper's Magazine.

The Real Fun in Life.

The Chicago banker who had intimate personal association with James J. Hill related a little incident which throws light on the character of that great railroad man and builder of civilization, says the Albany Knickerbocker Press. Mr. Hill had commissioned the banker to perform a task which required a journey out of town. Here is the story:

"How soon do you want this, Mr. Hill?" said I.

"Right away."

"I suppose he noticed a frowning expression in my face, for he asked, 'What's the matter?'"

"Well," said I, "my family is across the lake, but that doesn't make any difference. I'll start in the morning and—"

"Mr. Hill held up his right hand and said: 'Hold on. Let me give you a fact born of long experience. All the real fun a fellow has in life is within the four walls that inclose his family. Go across the lake and see your family and start on my job when you get through with the home folks.'"

Seals Can Drown.

It is a curious fact that the fur seal was once a land animal. The baby seals are actually afraid of water. They would drown if thrown into it and have to learn to swim by repeated efforts. When once they have been taught to swim, however, they soon forget to walk.

There are in existence only two important herds of fur seals, one of which has its breeding grounds in the Commander Islands, belonging to Russia, the other in the Pribilof Islands, belonging to the United States. Of these the latter is much the larger. The Pribilof islands are government property, and thus it happens that the United States government finds itself the owner of by far the most valuable herd of fur seals in the world.—London Mail.

CITATION

In the County Court of the State of Oregon, for the County of Marion. In the matter of the estate of A. Wilson, deceased.

To William H. Wilson, R. F. Wilson, Mrs. Ella Stuts, and J. F. Wilson, GREETINGS:

IN THE NAME OF THE STATE OF OREGON you are hereby cited and required to appear in the County Court of the State of Oregon for the County of Marion at the Court room thereof at Salem in said county on Monday, the 9th day of October, 1916, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, then and there to show cause, if any there be, why an order should not be made and license given to G. E. Unruh, the administrator of the above estate, to sell at private sale in accordance with the laws of the State of Oregon and the order of this Court, the following described property belonging to said estate, to-wit: Being that strip or parcel of land in Block No. 4 in Cardwell's addition to the city of Salem, Oregon, lying west of the boundary line between the D. L. C. of J. R. McClane and wife and the J. Baker D. L. C.; also that piece or parcel of land in Block No. 2, Capital Street Addition to the City of Salem, Oregon, lying north and west of the division line between the J. E. McClane and J. Baker D. L. C.

You are further notified that this citation is served upon you by publication in the Stayton Standard, a newspaper of general circulation, published at Stayton, in Marion County, Oregon, by order of the County Court made on the 5th day of September, 1916.

You are further notified that the first publication thereof is Sept. 13, 1916, and the last publication thereof is October 4, 1916.
