Heritage Center honors longtime managers

Al Rasmus, who has volunteered with his wife, Anne, at the Keizer Heritage Center for 16 years, speaks at an event held in honor of his retirement.

The board of directors of the Keizer Heritage Foundation honored outgoing building manager Al Rasmus and retired event coordinator Anne Rasmus at a reception on Sunday, Jan. 18, at the Keizer Heritage Center.

Long-time board member Jim Hupy related the history of the Rasmuses volunteer work on the old Keizer School for the past 16 years.

Both were presented a certificate.

Al Rasmus managed the Keizer Heritage Center's logistical and technical needs since 1999. He has served as a member and president of the board and other offices. He will remain on the board and help the board's treasurer with financial issues.

Anne Rasmus oversaw operations in the center's event room used by the public for social events and meetings. She also volunteered to maintain the building and its grounds.

JoAnne Beilke, a former board president and current board treasurer, has taken over the building management duties as well as those of the event coordinator.
