McNary vocalists past: Register to take part in Legacy Concert

On Sunday, May 17, the McNary High School Fine Arts Department is hoping to present the McNary Legacy Concert, celebrating McNary's 50th Anniversary and honoring Alice Rose Jones, the school's first and longest-serving choir director.

The event will feature the Alice Rose Jones Heritage Choir, a tour-de-force ensemble of graduates from 1965-2014. Jones will be present and will be conducting several numbers with the expected large reunion choir.

Graduates of McNary who sang in the choir program during high school, can go to mcnaryfinearts.org/legacy-choir to sign up for the event.

It is important that persons interested in participating complete the interest form website so that the program, school and school district can commit to hosting the performance. By filling out the interest form, participants help guarantee the event will be produced.

Once the participation minimum has been met, those interested will be directed to a registration page with a link to pay for a participation fee to cover music and hosting fees.

If confirmed, music will be mailed April 1 and part-learning audio tracks will be posted on YouTube April 15.

Get AWARE at human trafficking forum

The McNary High School AWARE Club is holding an event called In Plain Sight Tuesday, April 7.

Local experts will weigh in on the problem of human trafficking and how individuals can get involved to help prevent it and assist in recovery for victims. Speakers include representatives from Center for Hope and Safety, Multnomah County Sheriff's Office, Marion County Crime Victims Advocacy, Compassion First and Survivor.

The AWARE Club focuses on raising awareness concerning issues of human trafficking.

Financial donations and discarded cell phones will be accepted for the Center of Hope and Safety. Interpreters will be present for the event.

The event is rated PG-13, but students in grades eight through 12 are invited along with their parents.

Shoes being collected at Countryside Church for mission trip to Haiti

Countryside Christian Church in Keizer conducted a shoe collection drive recently, but shoes are still being collected.

The church had a drive March 7 at the Keizer Albertsons (soon to become a Hagen) on River Road North to raise funds for a mission trip to Haiti in July.

The group Funds2Orgs purchased shoes, with church members using those funds to finance the trip. Proceeds from shoe sales are used to feed, clothe and house families in places such as Haiti, Honduras and other nations in Central America and Africa.

Shoes will continue to be collected at the church, located at 5775 McLeod Lane NE in Keizer, through April 1.

For more information contact Monica Girod at Countryside Christian Church, at 503-540-1989 or email: info@countrysidechristianchurch.org.

Keizer theatre troupe slates 2015 season

Keizer Homegrown Theatre recently announced its slate of productions for 2015.

In May, the troupe will premiere Always Patsy Cline, written by Ted Swindley. The play, based on actual events, follows the country singer's unlikely friendship with a fan that continued for many years through letter writing.

The show will open Iris Festival weekend, May 14-16, and continue the following weekend, May 21-23. The location has not been set.

The company's fourth annual Shakespeare in the Park production this summer will be A Midsummer Night's Dream. The play is the Bard's take on romantic comedy as characters fall in and out of love during the course of a weekend. Auditions are set for May 23 from noon to 2 p.m. at the Keizer Civic Center Gazebo.

KHT's final show of the year will be Doubt, A Parable by John Patrick Shanley. The drama, which tells the story of a priest suspected of illicit behavior, is less about scandal than the pitfalls of moral certainty. Shanley won the Pulitzer Prize for his script in 2005. The show went on to win a Tony Award.
