CODE,

"Now it is split between police parking and graffiti, right-of-way vegetation and sidewalk issues and classic code enforcement," Brown said. "The split is 35/15/50. The numbers, however, will ebb and flow as work demand changes, depending on what is going on at any given moment. The administrative support for all of these functions will still come from existing staff to some level and Shane will still be involved with the position as a resource."

Brown said it still hasn't been determined if all aspects formerly handled by Casker will be picked up by Crosby or not.

"We are seeing much more permit and land-use activity than in the past and that has to also be factored into the big picture," Brown said.

Sgt. Trevor Wenning with the Keizer Police Department said how much Crosby can help out the KPD will be at Brown's discretion.

"Currently our officers, as well as Shane Witham, are handling the work that we anticipate the new code enforcement person will be helping with," Wenning said. "Our folks will continue to respond to complaints whereas this person will be actively looking and handling issues before they become complaints. We anticipate this new person will be working closely with our Community Response Unit as well as other units when an expert in community codes is needed. We are expecting a close working relationship with this person and will value their expertise in the area of code/ordinance enforcement."

It had been anticipated the position would be filled sooner, but Brown said more interviewing ended up being needed.

"It's taken longer than I hoped," Brown said. "I had hoped it would be filled in February."

Currently, Brown said code issues are driven by complaints.

"We will be proactive now, but we still will not be driving up and down the street looking at signs and tree limbs," Brown said.

Diagnostic Imaging of Salem

1165 Union Street N.E. • 503-588-2674

Since 1971 Diagnostic Imaging of Salem has been the mid-Willamette Valley's premier medical imaging clinic. The clinic provides medical imaging services to physicians in the region including the coast, central Oregon and the Portland area.

Diagnostic Imaging of Salem is an outpatient facility that treats its patients like family with the care and comfort they want while having body imaging studies performed. The clinic has the highest field open MRI in Oregon. We also offer low dose CT — with Safe CT technologies, digital radiography, digital mammography, bone density and ultrasound scans. They also have the only out-patient fluoroscopy facility in Salem.

Doctors often refer their patients to a specific imaging clinic, but patients have the choice to let their doctors know where they want to go for body imaging services. Once patients experience the services at Diagnostic Imaging they have returned again and again.

The clinic has been owned since 2004 by five partners: Dr. Victor J. Leonardo, M.D., Dr. Robert W. Myers, M.D., Dr. Christopher D. Goesser, D.C., M.D., Dr. Joseph D. Trudeau, M.D. and Dr. Edwin Y Wang, M.D. Richard M. Bennewate serves as the clinic's administrator.

The clinic invites you to visit them on the Internet at salemimaging.com.
