Mural timeline still undecided

By CRAIG MURPHY
Of the Keizertimes

For months, this summer or early fall has been targeted as the time for Keizer's second public mural to be done.

That could be changing, though it's not certain yet.

Lore Christopher and Jill Hagen, both members of the Keizer Public Arts Commission (KPAC), announced plans in February to put a mural on the north wall at Town and Country Lanes. Not long after, Christopher said the mural would be done in September.

The design of the mural has undergone revisions. What was originally announced as the design was later amended to be a proposed design. The design is now envisioned by KPAC members to be scenes from the Iris Festival Parade.

At Tuesday's KPAC meeting, the timeline got potential revisions as well. Keizer City Councilor Amy Ripp will be working with KPAC member Rick Day to get the wall — estimated to be 140 feet long and nine feet tall — ready "in the next 30 days" with gray primer and the wording "Everyone loves a ...?" in large letters.

Mardi Smith, general manager at Town and Country, had artist Michelle Rotharmel with her, who has done large murals before and will be helping on this one.

Another artist in the room, Wendy Lusby, questioned at one point when the project would be done.

"As an artist, I'm really confused by some of the time frames being thrown out," said Lusby, a children's artist from Dallas.

"My vision is we paint the wall (with primer) and get it ready, then we don't do (the mural) until the spring," Hagen said. "I really want to wait until the spring."

That surprised fellow KPAC members.

(From left) Jill Hagen and Lore Christopher discuss the idea of a mural on the north wall of Town and Country Lanes with the bowling alley's owner, Don Lebold, back in February. The final design and possibly the timeline are still in flux following a meeting this week.

"I thought we were doing it in September?" Beth Melendy queried.

Christopher also questioned the timing.

"You really want to wait until the spring?" Christopher asked.

Given the scope of the project, which in its current guise would have between six and 10 pictures up to 20 feet wide each, Lusby said Hagen's timing made more sense.

"I don't know how we will have time to do it in September," Lusby said.

Christopher noted when the usual wet weather hits.

"We can't do it later than the end of October, otherwise we'll have to wait until next summer," she said.

Smith noted her parking lot is often full September through May in the evenings with league bowlers.

"We have it every day," Smith said. "It would behoove us to do it in the summer during the day, before September."

Christopher suggested a compromise: getting some of the background building and crowd scenes done this fall.

"Then we leave it and do the pieces that will take so long next summer," she said.

Hagen agreed and noted the time it took for Colleen Chronister-Goodwin to do the Valley Treasures mural at Keizer Florist last summer.

"I think it took Colleen two weeks, with one thing," Hagen said. "We're talking nine of those."

Regardless of the timing, Lusby is eager to help out.

"I am very excited about being involved in it," she said. "I'm just having a hard time thinking how the big frames will happen."

KPAC members agreed with a request from Smith to honor Town and Country owner Don Lebold.

"I would like to do a tribute to Don, an avid fisherman," Smith said. "It would be cool to be the last float in this, with Don casting off into the end of the mural. We'd get the river in that way. It would be great for Don."

A Town and Country float would be one of the pictures depicted, with Lebold casting towards River Road on the west end of the mural. KPAC members will be going through 400 parade images to select between six and nine additional images to be painted on the wall. Suggestions have included the McNary High School band, the pet parade and the old Keizer Fire District fire truck.

"We would like to pick a lot of images, but it will be too busy," Christopher said. "If we could cut it down to like seven images and (the Town and Country float) be the seventh, that would work. The plan is to pick out six images you think we should include. By the time we come back, we will vote on the images."

Hagen amended that by asking KPAC members to select their top nine images.

At the end of the meeting, Christopher clarified the timing at this point.

"The wall will be prepared and primed soon, as well as lettered," she said. "We're still on the original timeline for right now."

Library seeks to fill volunteer manager job

The Keizer Community Library is seeking a volunteer manager to oversee daily library operations.

The manager works closely with the board of directors and the Library Committee.

The board is seeking applicants with proven organizational skills who is able to set priorities within the operations of the all-volunteer library.

Applicants must be computer literate; though knowledge of library systems is desirable it is not essential.

The board asks interested persons to apply in person at the library in the Keizer Heritage Center at 980 Chemawa Road N.E. or email books.keizerlibrary@gmail to request an application.

The deadline to apply is July 15.
