Today in History

Brigham Young leads 148 Mormon pioneers into Utah's Valley of the Great Salt Lake. Young declared, "This is the place," and the pioneers began preparations for the thousands of Mormon migrants who would follow. Seeking religious and political freedom, the Mormons began planning their great migration from the east after the murder of Joseph Smith, the Christian sect's founder and first leader.

Sand volleyball courts almost done

By CRAIG MURPHY
Of the Keizertimes

Visitors to Keizer Rapids Park last week may have noticed the rather large mound of sand by the area of the old volleyball courts.

There were actually two mounds: one with the old sand and one with the new sand for the three new courts.

Hans Schneider, who has a long history locally with volleyball programs, proposed new courts at KRP last summer. Plans finally got approved for matching grant program funds from the Keizer Parks and Recreation Advisory Board last month.

With the funding, labor and materials in place, the project started last week.

Demolition of the old courts started July 13, with excavation for the new courts – going side-by-side-by-side – starting the next day. By the end of the week, a sprinkler system was being installed all along the outside of the courts.

"It should be done Thursday or Friday of next week," Schneider estimated on July 17. "We have dune sand, 525 yards of it."

Schneider said dune sand doesn't compact down like river sand does, though the old river sand will be used as a base. Nets and lines will be done in royal blue, to tie the project to McNary High School.

"I want high schoolers and middle schoolers to come out here and use these courts," he said. "I know they will come down and use this. We have had so many people come by and look at it since we've been out here."

Those helping Schneider had personal connections. Project contractor Kirk Moisan's wife is the principal at Keizer Elementary, where Schneider's daughter works. The Moisans have a daughter who used to be assistant coach at MHS to Schneider's daughter. In addition, youth helping with the project were from a youth group that used the old court in the past.

A crew of volunteers help lay the foundation for three new sand volleyball courts at Keizer Rapids Park. Hans Schneider put the project together.

The project got some praise during Monday's Keizer City Council meeting.

"It could be done this week but it will probably be next week," Public Works director Bill Lawyer said. "It's a good project to be done."

Councilor Roland Herrera also praised Schneider. "He got the right sand for this," Herrera said. "The process has been amazing. One guy's vision has come to fruition. It's going to be exciting stuff. It's just another step forward in our beautiful park."

For Schneider, seeing the project happen was indeed a vision coming to fruition.

"This is a dream come true for me, really," he said. "I've been wanting to do this for a long time."

Newspaper chalks up 19 awards

The Keizertimes won a total of 19 awards in contests for journalism and advertising at the annual convention of the Oregon Newspaper Publishers Association held at the Salishan Resort near Lincoln City last week.

The newspaper won 11 awards in the Better Newspaper contest including five first place plaques. News Editor Craig Murphy won for best enterprise reporting for his series of articles about The Big Toy at Keizer Rapids Park.

Associate Editor Eric Howald won first place awards for best writing, best lifestyle coverage for a feature about McNary High School's unique production of The Tempest, best educational coverage (about McNary choir director Jim Taylor) and best feature photo of a City Dance Theatre performance.

Besides the five first place finishes, the Keizertimes also won three second place honors and three third place awards.

In the Better Ad Ideas contest Andrew Jackson, production manager for the Keizertimes, won three first place awards. He won for best series of ads for Diagnostic Imaging of Salem; best use of one color for the McGinty and Belcher law firm and best use of small space for an ad for QuickLane in Keizer.

The paper also won three second place and two third place honors.

"I am very proud of the team at the Keizertimes," said publisher Lyndon Zaitz. "We don't do what we do to win awards, but it is always nice to be recognized by others in the industry. All of the awards are a validation of what and how we cover the seven square miles of Keizer."
