Zielinski then reiterated the MCFB's position.

"While MCFB recognizes the good intentions of the proponents and can agree with the values that inspired the project, our members do not believe proponents have taken into consideration the impacts of commercial agricultural production practices operated in close proximity to the proposed 25 fields location," Zielinski wrote. "Marion County has the highest value of agricultural production of any county in Oregon. This can only be the result of a concerted effort by state and local officials to protect farming practices and preserve the productivity of Marion County's farms. MCFB believes there are other alternatives available to 25 fields that would not impede farm operations and we encourage proponents to further explore those alternatives."

It would appear those efforts have paid off.

"The Marion County Commissioners have told us not on their watch, especially highly productive EFU (Exclusive Farm Use) land," Bennett said. "The Department of Agriculture is not in favor, saying it's not the right location. We all agree it's a great thing for kids, but let's create a spot where it won't have such a big impact on farming."

Bennett said one issue to consider is the impact on smaller roads in the proposed area if 25 soccer fields are built.

"Long term, we need to think of the amount of infrastructure it would take to support that, and how would they support that," Bennett said. "We're not against a program like this, because kids need something. But let's pick a place that will work. (The proposal) could really raise problems with what we do."

WILD THING

You make our hearts sing

Kids will be kids. They like to test their boundaries. And sometimes they go just a little too far. That's why we're here for the bumps, scrapes and bruises — not to mention the viruses and heavens knows what else — because we love kids too. They make everything groovy. 503.779.2266
