Today in History

Terrorists attack the United States, hijacking domestic airplanes that were crashed into both World Trade Center towers in New York. A third plane was crashed into the Pentagon in Washington D.C. Passengers on a fourth hijacked plane took back control before it crashed into a field in Pennsylvania. Thousands of people were killed in the attacks, starting America's war on terrorism.

Funding for Big Toy detailed

By CRAIG MURPHY
Of the Keizertimes

The main part of the Big Toy project has been done.

After all, the large play structure at Keizer Rapids Park was constructed and opened in June. A grand opening dedication was held at the structure on Aug. 29.

As mentioned last week in the Keizertimes, the focus of the Community Build Task Force now is on raising money towards a future poured-in-place surface, which could cost up to $175,000. CBTF members are hoping grants will cover most of that cost.

At their Sept. 1 meeting, CBTF members agreed any money coming in from here on will go towards that phase of the project, instead of the main construction of the structure itself.

That makes sense, since the more than $100,000 originally in the budget for the surface was taken out earlier this year. The lower fundraising target of $319,000 was surpassed, with some of those funding details discussed during the meeting as well.

Janet Carlson, who chaired the fundraising arm of the task force and has been tracking the numbers, noted some items haven't been paid for yet, according to numbers as of Sept. 1.

"There's at least $29,500 that needs to still come in," Carlson said.

There are still some components to sell, most notably fence pickets that line the outside of the Big Toy, as there are about 300 still to be sold.

"The extra money that comes in for that is gravy or frosting," Carlson said.

Marlene Parsons brought up the next query regarding funding.

"Where do we draw the line from what you just did to starting new fundraising for poured-in-place and whatever else we're doing?" Parsons asked.

Carlson suggested everything still to be paid for get put into the old budget, with new funding going towards the poured-in-place surface.

"We'd start with zero," Carlson said. "You draw a line, then have a new spreadsheet."

Brandon Smith liked the idea of a new spreadsheet.

"Documentation wise, it makes sense to start at zero tomorrow," Smith said.

Figures from Carlson show a total of $41,600 has been brought in thus far for grants, topped by $25,600 from Keizer Rotary and $15,000 from the Oregon Community Foundation.

for the project came in from individuals and businesses. According to the figures, by the time the project was officially launched in mid-November 2013, there had been one donation for $100. A $250 donation came in shortly after the launch event. Four donations came in during 2014, meaning by the end of 2014 there had been a total of six donations worth $2,171.

Larger donations starting coming in January, led by Richard Walsh (a member of the CBTF) putting in $2,500. Momentum started to pick up in April and more than $28,500 had been raised by the end of May. The most donations for the project came in June, with a total of 16. By the end of August, the total collected in the category of individual and business contributions was $54,712.20, with the largest being $6,500 from the Salem-Keizer Volcanoes on Aug. 31.

"The driver has not been arrested because the incident remains under investigation," Kuhns said. "The investigation is incomplete. We know

Police have the vehicle in custody, but want to talk to Anyone with information about the incident is asked to contact KPD detective Ben Howden at 503-390-3713 ext. 3525.
