Today in History

Heavy smog begins to hover over London. It persists for four days leading to the deaths of more than 4,000 people. A high-pressure air mass stalled over the Thames River Valley, a cold air front trapped the the high-pressure air in place. The cold temperature caused residents to burn extra coal. The resulting smoke, soot and sulfur dioxide caused smog that smothered the city.

Chasing Dark: Signs, tips and resources

In recent weeks, the Keizertimes has run a Chasing Dark series, looking at the growing heroin epidemic in Keizer.

Links to full stories will be in a special section of the Keizertimes website (www.keizertimes.com) this weekend.

Throughout the series of stories, parents and law enforcement personnel alike have shared advice, tips and resources to help families. Here is a recap of some of that information:

Signs your child could be doing heroin

- Bottles disappearing from the medicine cabinet
- Items around the house suddenly disappearing or money missing from purses/wallets
- A sudden withdrawal socially from the family
- Messages on social media about drugs. The problem is most of the times the messages will be private.
- Those going through withdrawals will be extremely weak and unable to keep food down.
- Excessive drowsiness
- Losing track of time
- Excessive use of cotton swabs
- Pick marks around the face
- Weight loss
- Dark circles under the eyes
- Lack of smiling
- Dirtiness, especially under the fingernails
- Parents and authorities alike agreed those who are caught in an addiction need to feel free to talk openly about what they are going through, without feeling judged. Building trust is critical.

• Jeff and Hollie Crist, whose son Brandon died of a heroin overdose in September, said if parents suspect something is going on, trust that instinct.

What to do

- Benton County offers a needle exchange program; such a program isn't offered in Marion County. Information about the Benton County program and other harm reduction programs: <http://harmreduction.org/connect-locally/oregon/>
- Bottles of old medications can be turned in at the turn-in receptacle at the Keizer Police Department, no questions asked.
- Sometimes drug court programs are utilized, forcing users to stop doing drugs. The problem, many involved in the series agree, is users need to make the decision themselves to kick the habit. Forcing someone to go through treatment before they're ready to face up to the problem typically leads to the problem continuing.

• A Washington-based website has information: <http://www.stopoverdose.org/>

• There are several treatment facilities. For example, ADAPT Oregon has several locations around the state, mostly in the Roseburg area. More information is available at <http://www.adaptoregon.org/>

For Elizabeth Smith, she found Balboa Horizons in California (<http://www.balboahorizons.com/>) helped her daughter. Other options include the Hazelden Treatment Center in Newberg (<http://www.hazeldenbettyford.org/treatment/locations/springbrook>), Astoria Pointe (<http://www.astoriapointe.com/>), facilities in Eugene (<http://rehab-international.org/oregon-rehab/eugene>) or Klamath Falls (http://www.drug-rehabs.org/Oregon-Klamath_Falls-drug-rehab-treatment.htm).

Sex offender arrested on new charges

A Keizer sex offender was arrested recently for encouraging child sexual abuse.

Larry Lee Edwards, 51, was charged with 10 counts of the crime on Nov. 19. Edwards was arrested and taken to the Marion County Correctional Facility with a bail of $200,000.

At 1:20 p.m. on Nov. 19, investigators with the Keizer Police Department served a search warrant at the Edwards residence at 4090 Hennessy Lane NE in Keizer. The warrant was issued by Marion County Circuit Court based on a cyber tip that Edwards, a registered predatory sex offender in Oregon, was involved in the posting of child pornography online. More information about Edwards' sex offender history is available at <http://sexoffenders.oregon.gov/>.

Edwards

Edwards was taken into custody without incident and charged with 10 counts of encouraging child sexual abuse in the first degree. He was arraigned the next day and charged with 10 additional counts. According to the KPD, thousands of images and videos of child pornography were recovered from electronic media in Edwards' possession when the warrant was served at his home.

“At this time, there is no evidence to lead investigators to believe Mr. Edwards has sexually abused any new victims,” a KPD statement read. “However, due to the allegation Mr. Edwards has committed the new crimes of encouraging child sexual abuse and based on the severity of Mr. Edwards' past crimes/convictions and the fact he is a registered predatory sex offender, the Keizer Police Department is issuing this media release as we feel it is in the public's interest to do so.”

Anyone who has witnessed any suspicious and/or criminal activity involving Edwards is asked to contact KPD detective Ben Howden at 503-856-3525 or howdenb@keizer.org.

The KPD is actively investigating and pursuing all those who possess, exchange, distribute or produce images and/or videos of child pornography.
