Nobody has been charged with any alleged crimes related to our investigation."

A statement released by the Eugene Police Department on Feb. 17 stated the EPD assisted the KPD "to locate and apprehend a wanted, possibly armed suspect."

A Community Emergency Notification System warning was issued shortly before the arrest since cops were chasing one of the suspects.

Kuhns said Feb. 18 the warrants weren't for KPD or EPD.

"We learned they were in Eugene," Kuhns said. "We called (the EPD) and asked if they would help us. We were all there. We found the house they were at. A car left the house. One suspect was in the car, one in the house. Half of the cops followed the car. He ran and thus the warning. He was soon arrested by Eugene Police. The other half of the cops arrested the guy at the house. Then they were brought back here to the Keizer Police Department. They have been taken to Marion County Jail on unrelated warrants.

"We're not calling them suspects in our Keizer case," Kuhns added. "We just identified two people we wanted to talk to. We arrested them on warrants. We never took them back to the Eugene Police Department."

The names of the two men have not been released. Kuhns wouldn't say if the men lived in the house where they were found in Eugene.

"During the course of any investigation of this magnitude, a lot of names will come up," Kuhns said. "Through leads and information and interviews, we identify the need to talk to individuals. We found they had warrants, which made it even easier to talk to them. We're still plugging away, working hard to put all the pieces of the puzzle together."

The shooting took place shortly after 6:30 p.m. Feb. 14 in the parking lot near the Starbucks in Keizer Station. Police stated early last week the shooting was not random and that there was no immediate risk to the public.

According to Goodpaster's obituary, he was born in North Carolina in 1987 but was raised in Salem. He graduated from McNary High School in 2006 and married Angela later that year.

A public viewing was held at Virgil T. Golden Funeral Home in Salem on Feb. 19, with a celebration of life on Feb. 20 at Peoples Church in Salem.

"Jerrid had a passion for life and the people around him," the obituary read in part. "He loved spending time with his family and friends. Jerrid enjoyed spending his free time in the outdoors hunting with his dog, fishing with friends, eating seafood and working on cars. He especially loved holidays, family events and traveling, but he mostly loved and cherished the quiet moments at home with his wife Angela."

Sandee Metcalf, Goodpaster's mom, posted about her son on Facebook Feb. 16.

"He deeply loved and cared for his family and friends and was the most compassionate person I have ever known," Metcalf wrote in part. "I love you son."

Memorial flowers and donations may be sent to or presented to Virgil Golden Funeral Service or the Peoples Church in care of Angela Goodpaster and family, or can be mailed to 4965 Happy Drive NE in Salem, 97305.

School district reaps rewards of long-term planning efforts

McNary-area schools will soon be at capacity

By HERB SWETT
For the Keizertimes

Salem-Keizer School District officials are known for looking ahead, and the results of their planning were discussed at a school board work session Tuesday.

Most of the discussion involved the capital bond that took effect in 2008. Mike Wolfe, chief operations officer for the district, and Bruce Lathers, manager of maintenance and construction, told the board about progress that has been made with the bond.

Wolfe noted that the bond was passed three years after the board agreed to form a task force for facilities planning. Lathers reviewed the repair and renovation projects and said the task force focused on seismic work. He also showed a list of businesses in Marion and Polk counties that contracted with the district and noted that there was enough cooperation for "not one lawsuit" to be filed.

Showing total expenditure and construction charts for the time since 2008, Wolfe observed that total bond expenditures declined almost consistently after reaching a high point of $73.3 million in the 2010-11 school year. Projected for 2017-18 are expenditures of $5.8 million, with cumulative spending expected to be $290.1 million by then.

Construction expenditures have followed a similar pattern, with $100,000 projected for 2017-18 and a cumulative $99.1 million expected. Another similar pattern, for repair and renovation, has $5.8 million and a cumulative $161 million projected for 2017-18.

Wolfe said the district is working on short- and long-range plans for facilities to address student enrollment and program needs. He showed maps indicating that three of the current high school attendance areas, including that of McNary High School, are expected to have high school enrollments exceeding school capacity by 2020.

Other maps showed that the middle schools in the McNary area are projected to have a total enrollment within 60 percent of capacity by 2020, and that for elementary schools in the area, there will be places exceeding capacity, within 60 percent, and with lower enrollments than 60 percent below capacity.

Nancy MacMorris-Adix, a board member, said she has been bothered that older schools do not have facilities as good as those of newly built schools. Wolfe said the administration is assessing that problem.

Chuck Lee, the board member in the McNary area, said the district should stay familiar with political issues involving district plans and make sure the community understands district needs.
