MAYOR,

Doing things collaboratively isn't just confined to within the seven square miles of Keizer. The GGNA meeting took place one day after the initial meeting of the Mid-Willamette Homeless Initiative. Clark is one of five Keizer representatives on the panel, which brings together representatives from Keizer, Salem, Marion County and Polk County. The first meeting drew a standing room-only crowd at the Salem Public Library. Because of the large crowd, Clark said future meetings - the next one is Tuesday, March 29 - will be at Keizer Civic Center.

"Where are the gaps? What can we do? What is missing? We don't know, because we still have homeless people," Clark said. "They want to be in a place that is safe. There is some housing in our community that is not safe. That's not okay. We heard from providers and heard about a continuum of care. There are programs that target populations in specific situations.

"Folks, we have work to do," the mayor added. "My mind was doing wheelies. But it also gave me tremendous hope. If you have a community- or faith-based organization, we will find a way to get you involved and to network. We will bring in groups with the same goals. We can do more together. We have a whole bunch of wheels, let's get them on the same wagon. But before the four jurisdictions leap in, we want to learn where we can make a difference."

Rick Gaupo with Marion

Polk Food Share noted his group asked the state for more homeless funding this year.

"Hunger and housing are intricately related," Gaupo said. "People will give up housing before they give up food. Hunger is our core issue, but we lobbied for money for housing."

Clark said that drove home her point.

"That recognizes the level of care needed in the community," the mayor said. "This will be an important initiative in our communities."

Vote online for Whiteaker coach

Longtime Whiteaker Middle School coach Scott Coburn has been named one of three finalists for the Comcast SportsNet All-Star Coach Program.

The coach who is awarded the All-Star Coach title for Oregon will receive $5,000 for the school where he/she coaches. Voting has begun online at www.csnw.com. The final award presentation will take place at the Portland Trail Blazers game on April 2.

J.C. Headrick,
Funeral Director
& Embalmer

Joy Robinson,
Benefits Adviser

Keizer Funeral Chapel is a full service funeral home. We pride ourselves in caring for the families that come in. When you come in to make arrangements in advance, we help you with all the hard decisions to create a personal plan for each individual.

When a family loses a loved one, we are quick to respond to bring them into our care and meet with the surviving family members.

We offer burial and cremation services. We coordinate with all the cemeteries in the area and even those out of state. We have a state-of-the-art crematorium on our premises.

Come in to see our wide selection of urns and other memorial merchandise.

Our chapel can accommodate up to 130 people for a funeral or memorial service. The funeral directors can help relieve stress by helping you coordinate all the components of a funeral, memorial or graveside service.

Director J.C. Headrick has years of experience with funerals of every kind. Advanced planning services are provided by Joy Robinson.

Keizer Funeral Chapel opened in 1982 and has helped thousands of families lay their loved ones to rest.

J.C. and Joy can be reached at 503-393-7037. Visit us at keizerfuneral.com.

Low cost and value are smart decisions. We are everything, except overpriced.
