Bull market saves KFD, taxpayer money

Primed markets and a top rating helped the Keizer Fire District soar past its goals for the initial release of emergency equipment bonds approved by voters last November.

Bond money is being used to purchase new fire trucks and ambulances in addition to refreshing other equipment past its prime.

The district released its first series of general obligation bonds on April 5 with an A1 rating by Moody's Investor Service. The bonds entered the market with a $4 million bond issue and the demand for the bonds was in excess of $9.8 million. With such strong demand for the district's bonds, district officials were able to obtain an all-in interest cost of 2.7 percent for 20 years vs. what was originally estimated at 3.9 percent.

Additionally, with such market demand investors were paying a premium to purchase the bonds, resulting in the district reducing the size of the bond offering to $3,770,000 and still obtaining nearly $4 million in proceeds preserving the district's bond authorization approved by the voters.

"There was a lot of excitement as things unfolded, but the bottom line is we were able to save taxpayer money," said Chief Jeff Cowan, of the Keizer

Fire District, as he detailed the exchange for the Keizer Fire Board at a meeting Tuesday, April 19.

KFD is working with a team comprised of Piper Jaffray, the bond underwriter for Special District Association of Oregon Advisory Services, and the KFD's municipal advisor Hawkins Delafield & Wood.
