It's time for Iris Festival weekend

Keizer's biggest weekend of the year is here.

While the Keizer Iris Festival weekend started with a kickoff dinner and party Thursday evening, plenty more is still on tap. Activities conclude with several events on Sunday, May 22 including runs, performers and the Poker Run.

The centerpiece, of course, is the Valley Credit Services Iris Festival Parade starting at 10:30 a.m. Saturday, May 21. The parade starts at River Road North and Lockhaven Drive North before proceeding south along River Road before ending at Glynbrook Drive. Parade officials are expecting about 120 entries in the parade, which is the only such event for Keizer this year with the ending of the Festival of Lights Holiday Parade.

However, numbers appear to be lower than expected. As of Monday, the number of entries was at 77.

The grand marshal for the parade is Christine Dieker, the recently retired longtime executive director of the Keizer Chamber of Commerce. Dieker is hoping to have her family ride with her as she waves to the crowd, estimated to be about 25,000 strong each year.

It's a double-honor day for Dieker, as she celebrates her 59th birthday on Saturday.

The parade means traffic impacts for that day. Lockhaven will close to all traffic between River Road and McClure Street North at 6:30 a.m., while River Road will close from Plymouth Drive to Lockhaven at 9. After that, River Road can only be crossed periodically along the parade route at Chemawa Road, but vehicles will not be able to turn onto River Road.

Those in the parade needing to get to the staging area must take Chemawa to Windsor Island Road North, then go east on Lockhaven.

Northbound River Road traffic from Salem will be diverted to Cherry Avenue NE via Plymouth Drive NE.

River Road will begin to reopen around 12:30 p.m. as the end of the parade continues southbound.

There will be other traffic impacts and road closures throughout the weekend as well.

For folks placing chairs on the sidewalk for parade viewing, parade organizers are asking to leave an adequate travel path of at least three feet for use by wheelchair-bound citizens.

Longtime community volunteers Dave Walery —

Christine Dieker may be retired, but she's not slowing down yet. On Tuesday, the grand marshal of this weekend's Iris Festival Parade was spotted getting things ready for the various runs taking place.

Keizer's Mr. Christmas — and Scott White have taken over as co-chairs for the Iris Festival. Most events will be centered in or around the Keizerfest Tent, located in the field in front of the Keizer Lions Club at 4100 Cherry Avenue NE.

Walery and White have implemented several changes, including a new tent with no outside strings.

Handicapped parking will be in the Lions Club parking lot, while there will be parking on Manbrin Avenue and Cherry, with hopes for about 100 parking spaces in that area.

New entertainment has been brought in, to go with a renewed emphasis on musical acts.

"We will have entertainment from noon to midnight in the tent on Friday and Saturday," White said. "We're trying to get more of a crowd for the entertainment down there. There will be something going on in the tent from the start to the end."

For much more about the Iris Festival, be sure to check out the official 60-page 2016 Iris Festival Guide, produced annually by the staff of the Keizertimes. This year's guide was once again sent out to all Keizer households. For additional copies, stop by our office at 142 Chemawa Road NE.

Pierce, Willis among winners

Voting trends in Marion County tended to reflect overall Oregon election trends in Tuesday's primary.

For example, in the Democratic presidential race, Bernie Sanders won the state with 52.3 percent, according to initial numbers released Tuesday night. Hillary Clinton had 45.88 percent of the vote.

In Marion County, Sanders got 51.77 percent of the vote, compared to 45.97 percent for Clinton.

Donald Trump easily won the Republican presidential primary, with 65.48 percent of the statewide vote and 60.12 percent in Marion County.

Colm Willis won the four-way Republican primary for the U.S. Representative 5th District candidacy, getting 56.46 percent of the vote overall and 60.36 percent of the vote in Marion County. Willis will take on incumbent Kurt Schrader in the fall, who easily won his Democratic primary battle with Dave McTeague.

There was a difference between state and county results in the race for governor. Bud Pierce won the Republican primary with 46.53 percent of the vote and will face incumbent Kate Brown in the fall. In Marion County, Pierce won with 63.54 percent of the vote.

A big battle in the statewide picture was the contested primaries for Republicans and Democrats alike for secretary of state. The Republican race was no contest, as Dennis Richardson bounced back from his 2014 governor race loss to handily defeat Sid Leiken. Richardson got 77.5 percent of the vote in the state, 81 percent in Marion County.

The Democratic side was tighter. Brad Avakian won with 38.96 percent of the vote as of Tuesday night, followed by Val Hoyle at 33.84 percent and Richard Devlin at 26.42 percent. In Marion County Avakian won with 39.32 percent of the vote, followed by Devlin at 31.07 percent and Hoyle at 28.69 percent.

State Rep. Bill Post was unchallenged in his Republican District 25 race. He'll face Democrat Sharon Freeman in the fall, who was similarly unchallenged in her Democrat primary.

Overall in the state, there was 40 percent voter turnout for the primary. That includes 48 percent turnout for Democrats and 46 percent for Republicans.

In Marion County, the voter turnout was 48.8 percent as of late Tuesday night.

One close local race was the Marion County Fire District local option tax. As of Tuesday evening, the tax was passing with 4,760 (52.4 percent) in favor and 4,324 (47.6 percent) opposed.

15 YEARS AGO

Keizer kids could be West Salem-bound
Three of four proposals recommended by a boundary committee would send students from Southeast Keizer across the Willamette River to the new West Salem High School.

20 YEARS AGO

School district eyes cuts to pay class size tab
Keizer schools will get more teachers and smaller classes under a budget proposed for the Salem-Keizer School District. Finding the millions to pay for those teachers, though will require cuts in just about every other part of school operations.
