

Play bunco, support cancer research Oct. 1

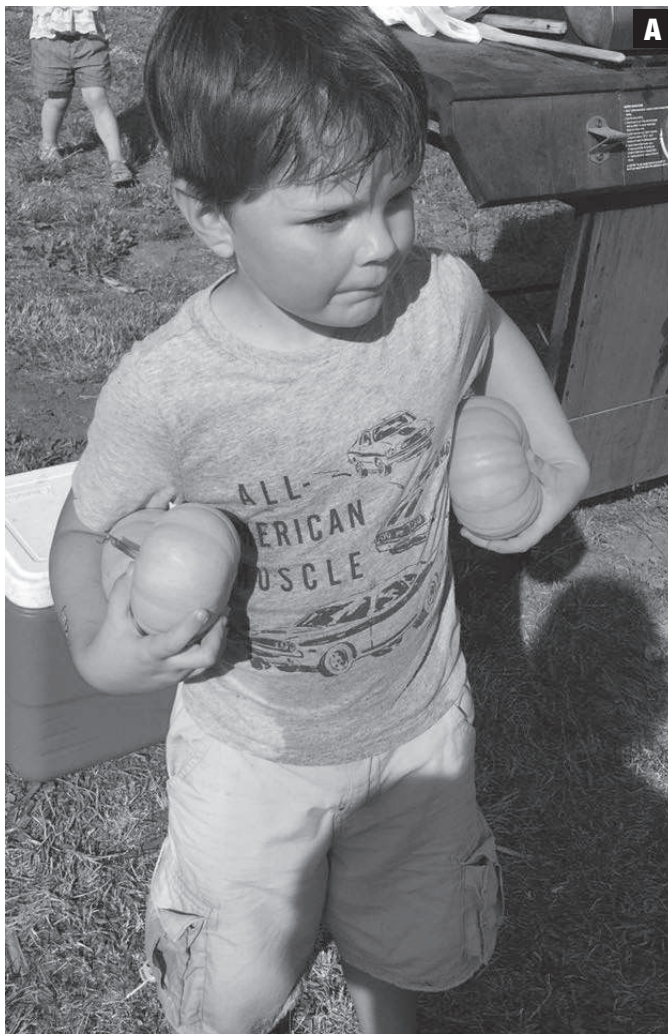

The Alyssa Malchow Breast Cancer Fund is holding its annual fundraiser, a bunco tournament, at Keizer Civic Center Saturday, Oct. 1.

Tickets to Bunco for a Cause are $25 and include a buffet dinner and dessert. Dinner begins at 6 p.m. and bunco will start about 7 p.m.

Tickets can be reserved by calling Kelly Stevenson at 503-869-4393 or emailing whaleykel@yahoo.com. All proceeds are used for breast cancer education and outreach focusing on women younger than 40.

Since 2008, the annual event has raised more than $44,000. Last year alone, with more than 160 people participating in the tournament, they raised nearly $6,700.

The Keizer Rotary Club donated one of its free uses of the Keizer Civic Center in support of the event.

In those five years, the garden has supplied fresh food to MPFS and as well as Simonka Place, a women's shelter on River Road North. During the event, Burks honored the Sunrise Rotary Club, Copper Creek Mercantile, Corban University and Livingstone Adventist Academy students who come out to help, and several individual donors who have kept the garden going. Kathy Whittam was honored as a charter member of the garden for her efforts in getting it off the ground.

Last year, a multitude of volunteer efforts resulted in 15 new beds, a new fence, pergola and toolshed. Whittam is now one of the largest gardens in MPFS's network of 63 community gardens. Burks said she is planning more flowers next year to attract pollinators.

MPFS also helps those receiving assistance start their own gardens with soil, fertilizer, seeds, plant starts, compost and support.

"MPFS doesn't just hand out a food box. They teach and they educate," Burks said. "It is an amazing opportunity. I would encourage anyone to volunteer, because besides helping people you come away with a lot more than you put in."
