City eyes guest councilor program

By ERIC A. HOWALD
Of the Keizertimes

The Keizer City Council wants more information, but seems to be moving in the direction of adding a guest councilor program to the city's offerings.

The possibility of launching a program arose as the councilors reviewed proposed changes to their policies and procedures at a city council meeting Monday, April 3.

The guest councilor program was suggested by former councilor Mark Caillier, who sees similar programs as a tool to help those interested in city council positions see first-hand how it all works.

"Many persons who might be interested in taking a serious look at serving on Keizer City Council are intimidated by unfamiliar processes, concerned about time commitments, learning curves and a cadre of other doubts or uncertainties,"

Caillier wrote in a letter to the council. "I believe a guest councilor program can provide a unique opportunity for positive citizen interaction and increase government transparency."

Caillier investigated similar programs in other cities, including Salem, and proposed some rules and guidelines in addition to putting forth the idea.

Guest councilors:

- Would be designated by a sitting councilor to fill in at a regular meeting in the event of an absence.
- Would need to be Keizer residents and would only be allowed to fill in once per year. No more than two guest councilors could fill in at a single meeting.
- Would not be allowed to make a motion or second someone else's and would not vote on council business. They would also not be able to attend executive sessions. "Seeing Mark's memo, it was something I knew nothing about. I would like to know how other cities make it work," said Councilor Kim Freeman.

While the program might not make it easier to fill a vacancy when a sitting councilor departs, it might expand the pool of interested applicants, said Councilor Bruce Anderson.

"It's merely to give city residents a view from this side of the dais. They can sit in, but there is no voting," Anderson said.

The only action the council took at the meeting was to request that Keizer's Volunteer Coordinating Committee look at similar programs and put forth a recommendation to the council.

The Volunteer Coordinating Committee meets Thursday, April 20.

MCFD improves its insurance rating

Marion County Fire District #1 received an improved rating by the Insurance Services Office, which could result in lower cost to homeowners for fire insurance coverage.

The fire district's previous ratings were a 4 in urban areas and a 8b in rural areas. As of the recent review, all areas within the MCFD1 jurisdiction are now rated at a 4, effective May 1.

The recent assessment takes into account the number of stations, apparatus, and firefighters available to respond in the event of an emergency. While the rural areas are not hydrated, MCFD1 utilizes specialized equipment to transport water to those areas in the event of a fire; a method that was not previously recognized by ISO as a variable in their evaluations.

Chief Terry Riley stated that he was pleased with the evaluation process, its thoroughness and the communication exchange with the ISO.

"It was important for ISO to recognize the strength of services that we are able to provide in the event of a fire," Riley said. "The use of water tender trucks to transport water and the automatic-aid relationships with neighboring fire districts allows us to provide the best possible coverage for our residents."

Many, but not all insurance companies rely on this rating to establish rates for homeowner's insurance policies. Homeowners are encouraged to contact their homeowner insurance providers to see if the new rating will lower their fire insurance coverage costs.

Tax filing deadline is April 18

Tuesday, April 18, is the deadline for filing your 2016 federal and state taxes, rather than the traditional deadline of April 15.

In 2017, April 15 falls on a Saturday, and this would usually move the filing deadline to the following Monday — April 17. However, Emancipation Day — a legal holiday in the District of Columbia — will be observed on that Monday, which pushes the nation's filing deadline to Tuesday, April 18, 2017. Under the tax law, legal holidays in the District of Columbia affect the filing deadline across the nation.
