School district budget approved

By HERB SWETT
For the Keizertimes

A $683,020,682 2017-18 budget for the Salem-Keizer School District was approved by the School Board on Tuesday, June 13.

The figure drew negative comments from board members, who commented that the state was underfunding education and particularly keeping the district from hiring science and social studies coordinators.

Several members of the audience urged the district to find a way to hire more assistant teachers, especially in science.

The vote was 5-0, with Jim Green and Chuck Lee abstaining. Both declared potential conflicts of interest, Green because of his employment by the Oregon School Boards Association and Lee because of his technical education involvement with Mountain West Group.

Budget funds are:

- General, $468,980,091.
- Fee-based programs, $14,890.
- Food services, $19,097,500.
- Asset replacement, $6,138,000.
- Energy efficiency, $2,668,262.
- Grants, $37,946,107.
- PERS pension debt service, $28,066,002.
- General obligation debt service, $26,696,373.
- Bond capital projects, $6,788,330.
- Special capital projects, $18,423,345.
- Preventive and deferred maintenance, $3,322,000.
- External customers, $940,065.
- Charter schools services, $7,212,330.
- Small memorial trust, $248,000.
- Loretta Isom scholarship, $18,018.
- Unappropriated and reserve amounts, all funds, $17,157,113.

Superintendent Christy Perry noted that the Oregon Legislature is still in session and said that school administrators still hope $8.2 billion can be budgeted for schools. She added that the staff can always propose a supplemental budget.

Also approved were resolutions imposing and categorizing a tax of $1,000 of assessed value of $4.5210 for $28,500,000 for debt service bonds. Green and Lee recused themselves because of potential conflicts of interest.

In other business, the board approved a $619.2 million general obligation bond proposal for the May 2018 ballot. This is a reduction from $766 million following a poll that showed strong results for the lower figure. It breaks down into $443.5 million for capacity and core infrastructure, $66 million for seismic preparation, $33 million for safety and security, $73.5 million for non-routine maintenance, $9.5 million for technology, and $3.7 million for Americans with Disabilities Act compliance.

Also approved were the elections of Kathy Goss to the Zone 1 board seat, Sheronne Blasi to the Zone 3 seat, Jesse Lippold to the Zone 5 seat, and Vice Chairperson Paul Kylo to the Zone 7 seat. Goss, Blasi, and Lippold will succeed Chris Brantley, Chairperson Nancy MacMorris-Adix, and Rick Kimball respectively.

The newly elected members will take office in July after winning contested elections. Kylo ran unopposed.

The board approved four grants, each for $5,000, three from Century Link. The Century Link grants were for digital recorders and related accessories for Leslie Middle School, a laser cutter-engraver and supporting equipment for West Salem

High School, and surveying equipment and small electronic devices for Sprague High School.

The Oregon Community Foundation gave $5,000 to support community partners and community projects.

Personnel actions approved by the board included the following in the McNary High School attendance area:

- Temporary full-time contracts for Julie Jensen and Debbie McLiberty Martinez at Weddle Elementary School and Shannon Wellbaum at Keizer Elementary School.

- First-year full-time contracts for Arthur Cavanaugh and Elizabeth Doran at McNary, Alaina Goodwin and Samuel Martin at Claggett Creek Middle School, and Andrew Tennant at Whiteaker Middle School.

- Second-year probation full-time contracts for Annette Cridge at Keizer and Corinne Thomas at McNary.

- Resignations of Carrie Dobrovoly, Cummings Elementary School; Erin Henry, Weddle; and Joseph Zehr, Claggett Creek.

Honors presented at the meeting included recognition by Weddle of the Southeast Keizer Neighborhood Association as Community Partner of the Month. Ken Gierloff, Colleen and Bob Busch, Hersch and Mary Ann Sangster, Keizer City Councilor Laura Reid, and Roger Courser were specifically mentioned.

Colleen Weddle was recognized for coordinating local businesses to provide Weddle's monthly reading incentive treats, connecting McNary students with Weddle students for tutoring, participating in the school's Pennies for Patients drive, and posting pictures from Weddle's Wolves parties on SEKNA's Facebook page.

Theater inches closer to reality

By ERIC A. HOWALD
Of the Keizertimes

Plans for a movie theater at Keizer Station took another baby step forward at a meeting of the Keizer City Council Monday, June 5.

The city council agreed to bypass the Keizer Planning Commission to make a change to the Area B Master Plan to accommodate a theater across from the Salem-

Keizer Transit Station.

In October 2016, owner Chuck Nakvasil announced he hoped to build a medium-sized, first-run theater across from the Salem-Keizer Transit Center. The process is moving slowly because, rather than purchasing the property outright, Nakvasil would like to lease the city-owned land.

The change would allow for two buildings, a 21,000-square-foot theater and a smaller 3,000-square-foot building on the opposite side of the driveway.

City staff said Nakvasil would still have to meet other conditions of the master plan.

"There are a few conditions that might be changed, but nothing that would affect the nearby neighborhood," said Nate Brown, Keizer community development director.

Brown said part of the reasoning behind the change was the need for parking. Original plans called for an 800-seat theater, but the space Nakvasil is hoping to lease would not have allowed for adequate parking. To accommodate the site, the overall seating inside the theater has been reduced to 500 seats to meet buffering and spacing requirements.

Life sentence issued in Valentine's Day murder

By ERIC A. HOWALD
Of the Keizertimes

Timothy Calloway, one of two men charged in connection with the homicide of Jerid Goodpaster on Feb. 14, 2016, was found guilty of murder, robbery and unlawful use of a weapon in Marion County Court last week.

On Thursday, June 6, Calloway waived his right to a jury trial in front of Judge Courtland Geyer and was found guilty on all three of the original charges stemming from the incident. On Tuesday, June 13, Geyer issued lifetime sentence with a minimum of 25 years before Calloway is eligible for parole.

A court document provides details of the day of the murder that began with arranging a marijuana transaction.

Calloway and Diontay Wilson, drove to Keizer in the car of Calloway's girlfriend to make the deal and decided en route to steal Goodpaster's marijuana and cell phone.

The transaction was set to take place in the Starbucks parking lot at Keizer Station.

Once they arrived, Wilson was driving and Calloway was in the front passenger seat.

Goodpaster was told to get in the back seat of the car when he approached the pair and Calloway told the court he pointed a .40 caliber semi-automatic handgun at him. Wilson told Goodpaster of their intent to rob him and Goodpaster pulled a .22 caliber revolver from his jacket.

Wilson turned in his seat and began hitting Goodpaster and Calloway fired three shots: one through the back of the car, one into the car seat and one into Goodpaster that hit him in the left side and exited through the right side of his body.

Goodpaster was later transported to Salem Hospital where he was pronounced dead.

Using cell phone pings and information from an informant, Keizer police officers determined that Calloway and Wilson drove the vehicle to Clackamas and abandoned the car with a shattered rear windshield. Police also found a debit card in Calloway's name, a .40 caliber cartridge, marijuana, a spent .40 caliber bullet and Goodpaster's glasses.

Calloway and Wilson were arrested in Eugene the next day. Wilson dropped a .40 caliber handgun and its magazine while running from police. Goodpaster's .22 was found in the house where the men had spent the night.

In November 2016, Wilson was convicted of robbery in connection with the incident.
