Today in History

President George Washington delivers the first State of the Union address to the assembled Congress in New York City. When he spoke, it seemed likely the people of the United States would stand behind Washington's government and enjoy the concord, peace, and plenty he saw as symbols of the nation's good fortune.

Felon, struck by car, ends own life as police surround apartment

By ERIC A. HOWALD
Of the Keizertimes

A man struck by a vehicle on River Road North Thursday, Jan. 4, walked back to his apartment and allegedly took his own life fearing a return to prison.

Police closed off portions of Sandy Drive and River Road North for more than three hours while trying to coax the man out of his apartment.

The incident began about 8 p.m. Keizer police responded to the scene of a vehicle-on-pedestrian collision in the 5100 block of River Road North near Carl's Jr. Callers reported a motor vehicle striking a pedestrian who then walked to an apartment at 105 Sandy Drive N.

The pedestrian, Calvin Lloyd Macy, 65, was wanted on two state-wide felony warrants, one for public indecency issued in October 2017 and another for unlawful possession of methamphetamine.

Macy had a criminal history in Oregon that included 15 prior arrests dating as far back as 1969 to his most recent arrest in July 2017.

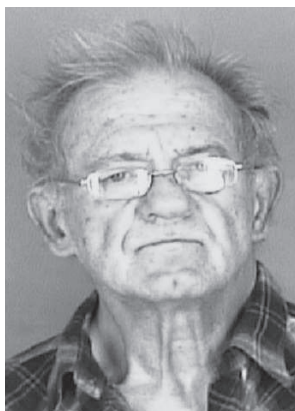

When officers approached the apartment a tenant exited and told the officers Macy was seated on a bed and he had a handgun in his possession. According to the tenant, Macy said he was "not going back to prison" and refused to exit the apartment to speak with police.

"The tenant said Mr. Macy was acting 'irrational' and talking about going back to prison. The tenant reported that Mr. Macy retreated to a bedroom [while police had the apartment surrounded] holding a handgun," said Det. Chris Nelson of the Keizer Police Department.

Nelson said the tenant who spoke with police encouraged Macy to seek medical attention for a gash he received as a result of being hit by the vehicle.

Macy barricaded himself inside the apartment and refused to come out. KPD established a perimeter around the apartment with the assistance of the Salem Police Department and Marion County Sheriff's Office, and attempted to establish communication with Macy while applying for a search warrant.

The Salem Police Department SWAT and Negotiations Team continued to try to contact Macy using a loudspeaker and inviting him to call 9-1-1. About 11:30 p.m. an offer was made to deliver a phone inside the apartment. At 1 a.m. a robot was deployed to deliver a phone.

Shortly thereafter, police executed a search warrant and found Macy unresponsive of an apparent self-inflicted gunshot wound. No one else was found in the apartment.

The Marion County Medical Examiner's Office and the Marion County District Attorney's Office responded to the scene to assist with the investigation.

Police identified Macy the afternoon of Friday, Jan. 5.

The driver of the vehicle that hit Macy remained on the scene and cooperated with the police investigation.

Film series delves into income inequality

The Salem Progressive Film Series is screening The Divide at Grand Theatre in Salem on Tuesday, Jan. 16.

In the film, director Katharine Round, looks at income inequality in the United States and the U.K., dwelling on the human story behind the numbers. The film follows seven people as it explores what happens to everyone when the rich get richer.

After the film, Willamette University Professor Emeritus Russ Beaton will engage the audience in a discussion of the topic.

Tickets are $5 at the door and the event begins at 7 p.m. Grand Theatre is located at 191 High Street N.E. in Salem.

Man was convicted of murdering mother, son

By ERIC A. HOWALD
Of the Keizertimes

Calvin Lloyd Macy's life came to a violent end Thursday, Jan. 4, after being struck by a vehicle while walking across River Road North to his apartment on Sandy Drive North.

Macy died of a self-inflicted gunshot wound after telling another resident of the same apartment complex that he was "not going back to prison" as police tried to contact him in regard to the vehicle-on-pedestrian incident.

Macy had a criminal history in Oregon that included 15 prior arrests dating as far back as 1969 to his most recent arrest in July 2017, according to Keizer Police Department officials. Convictions for murder, public indecency, carrying a prohibited weapon and being a felon in possession of a weapon were the most severe.

Macy was convicted of murdering a Salem woman, Susan Cameron, and her 2-year-old son, Shawn, in 1981. The pair went missing in August of 1980 and their bodies were discovered about a week later in Wallace Marine Park. A coroner later attributed the cause of death to asphyxiation.

Macy was tied to the crime, in part, using hair matches from both him and a dog he owned at the time. He was convicted of the crime by a Polk County jury and sentenced to two concurrent life sentences with a mandatory minimum of 25 years. Macy fought his prison sentence in the Oregon Court of Appeals on multiple occasions with mixed outcomes.

On one occasion, his mandatory minimum was reduced to 10 years, but the life sentences were made consecutive instead of concurrent. Later the 10-year minimum was overturned, the 25-year minimum reimposed, and the sentences were made concurrent once more. He was released in 2007 but, by 2017, Macy appeared to be in a downward spiral according to court documents.

In March 2017, Macy pleaded guilty to a public indecency charge that resulted from him exposing himself to a woman in public two months prior. He was sentenced to five years probation.

Two month later, Macy was arrested by Salem police after a woman complained that he exposed himself to her and began pleasuring himself after she woke him up while sleeping in his van with the door open.

While being checked into the Marion County Correctional Facility, Macy was found in possession of a clear, plastic bag containing methamphetamine. His parole officer recommended a 15-day stint in jail as a result. He was released from jail on June 28 and failed to show up for a court appearance in July resulting in a warrant being issued for his arrest. Between the Marion County warrant for public indecency and another issued in Clackamas County, Macy was facing a bail amount of at least $120,000, said Keizer police officials.

KPD Deputy Chief Jeff Kuhns said that by the time police officers entered Macy's apartment in the early morning hours of Friday, Jan. 5, he had likely been dead for hours.

Language isn't the challenge it once was for Rotary exchange student

German native Pepita Schmidt-Rave came to America as part of the Rotary Youth Exchange program. She struggled with the language at first, but enjoyed her time in Keizer. She enjoyed seeing the differences between America and Germany. "Everything here is bigger; the plates, the cups, everything."

10 YEARS AGO
Residents may support library
Almost half of Keizer residents would be willing to support a 75-cent property tax increase to support a public library in the community, a city survey showed. The Library Task Force will be crafting a ballot proposal to establish a new library district. Keizer is the largest city in the state without a library.

15 YEARS AGO
Teens accused after meth seized at MHS
Police arrested four Keizer teens after officers uncovered a scheme to sell methamphetamine to students at McNary High School. Officer Dan Kelley determined that a student, 15, had brought almost an ounce of meth to McNary. Another student, 17, was found to have nine bindles of the substance packaged for sale - believed to be the largest quantity of a controlled substance ever confiscated at the school.
