Jackson is a seemingly constant presence at volunteer efforts in Keizer and Salem in addition to being a popular business owner, Shackelford said.

"I always hear people giving testimony about his business at Chamber gatherings," said Shackelford. "(Larry) is always willing to be wherever there is an opportunity to help out."

Jackson frequently assists with events planned by the Chamber's Keizer Network of Women and Men of Action in Keizer as well as the Keizer Iris Festival and SKEF's Crystal Apple Awards.

"I'm so blessed to be here. When you grow up in a city like Keizer, what else do you do? You volunteer, you show up when asked and when you don't get asked," said Jackson as he accepted the award.

Jason Flores, a longtime youth sports coach, booster and sponsor of local youth was honored with the Service to Education Award. It was presented by the daughters of Larry Smith, last year's honoree who passed away two months after receiving it.

"Volunteers give their time, not because they are worthless, but because they are priceless. They don't necessarily have the time, they have the heart," said Amy Campbell in introduced Flores. "(Jason) has coached in the Keizer community for more than 15 years. In addition, his passion for youth sports has taken him out on the water for one of his greatest passions, wake boarding. Each year he and his wife provide their boat and time to Wake the World, an opportunity for foster children and parent families to have a carefree day of play."

Flores, through personal time and business sponsorships as owner of Celtic Homes, has had a part in maintaining Keizer Little League Park, installing the turf at McNary High School, refurbishing the football/ soccer scoreboard and led the effort to get new dugouts put in on the Celtic softball fields.

"I really don't even understand why I'm here. I give all grace and glory to God and I'm just here to serve," said Flores in accepting the award.

In recognizing Lawyer with the President's Award, outgoing Keizer Chamber President Nate Bauer said Lawyer's attitude is never "what's in it for me."

"He asks, 'How can we come together and make it better for everyone?' He's one of the first to show up to plant trees at a park and one of the last to leave after a long night serving community dinners at St. Edward Catholic Church,' said Bauer.

Lawyer is currently active on three of the city's advisory committees, parks, planning and Claggett Creek Watershed Council, and, like Jackson, can be spotted at most other volunteer efforts in the two-city area.

"He's setting an example for his family and for all of us to be proud of," said Bauer.

Lawyer was visibly surprised by the honor and his voice caught in his throat as he thanked his family for their support.

"I have so many mentors to thank, my adopted mom, Linda Baker, Mark Caillier, Bob Schackelford, Nigel expenses for most of the past two years. It had a surplus of a little more than $2,000 as of September 2017.

KLL had not submitted further budget details that were included in the packet presented to members of the council before the meeting. MYB sent representatives to last week's meeting of the council, but KLL did not.

The council approved maintaining the 2017 field usage rates unanimously.

Mayor Cathy Clark said she would still like to see the revenues and expenses from KLL in preparation for approving the field rates next year.

"I want to make sure we have an accounting of the volunteer hours and in-kind donations. Some people don't want it recorded, but we need to know what actually gets invested," Clark said.

Councilor Bruce Anderson thanked the MYB leadership for the submission of their budget and implored KLL to do the same without mentioning the group by name.

"The community needs to know what it takes to run this complex," Anderson said.

Museum seeks pics of Keizer weddings

The Keizer Heritage Museum is celebrating Keizer weddings and wants residents to submit photos of family weddings.

The photos (no originals) should be at least 8 inches by 10 inches and be submitted in a frame. The wedding can take place anywhere, but to be part of the exhibition the bride and groom must be Keizer residents.

The framed photos will be returned at the end of the exhibition at the museum.

Submitted framed photos should have name of person submitting and contact information as well as first and last names of the bride and groom, date and place of the wedding.

For more information email Tammy Wild at keizerhistory@aol.com.

The wedding exhibit will be on display through the first week of March.

The Keizer Heritage Museum is located inside the Keizer Heritage Center at 980 Chemawa Rd. NE.
