

SHOOT,

Several blocks of Chemawa Road Northeast were closed for several hours and traffic was diverted.

At a Keizer City Council meeting Monday, March 20, KPD Chief John Teague said the facts of the shooting were being presented to a grand jury this week. The grand jury will review the facts and evidence related to the shooting and make a determination as to whether it was justified.

Further updates were expected for after press time Friday, March 23.

The last time a Keizer officer was involved in the shooting of a suspect was June 2016. The officer involved was found to have been justified in the use of deadly force when he confronted a suspect armed with a knife after commission of an armed robbery. It is only the fourth incident of a Keizer officer using deadly force since the department was formed in the early 1980s. It is the first fatality as the result of such action.

Filmore and lay down in the grass where he continued to masturbate.

Once police back-up arrived, the man was taken into custody without incident. Officers also learned McCord had a public indecency conviction in 2010 and was a registered sex offender.

Mar-tin has a criminal record dating back to at least 1997. Convictions include: assault, burglary, theft and multiple counts of driving infractions and possession of controlled substances.

He was first convicted of private indecency in 2006. Convictions for public indecency followed in 2010 and 2012. Details on the previous incidents were unavailable through court records online.

McCord was transported to Marion County Correctional Facility where he was charged with first- and second-degree criminal trespass (Peeping Tom), public indecency, and third degree criminal mischief.

About 9 a.m. Sunday, a third caller reported finding the suspect's clothing in the backyard of residence on Wolf Street north.

Why do we call voyeurs Peeping Toms?

The original Peeping Tom was a tailor who disobeyed orders to remain in doors while Lady Godiva rode nude through the streets of Coventry, England, to protest her husband's oppressive taxation. The story is likely fictitious, but the name stuck.

Park restrooms delayed

Planned restrooms with flushing toilets in a Keizer park, a first for the city, hit a snag when city staff opened bids on the project.

Every bid exceeded the planned budget by at least $100,000 for the restrooms and septic system. The grant-funded project had a projected cost of $223,400, the low bid was $329,609

"A lot of that is to do with a booming economy and a summer build project," Johnson said, at a meeting of the Keizer Parks Advisory Board on March 12.

In an attempt to save money, the city threw out the bids and will rebid the project at a later date.

"We'll rebid it for fall, winter, spring and hope to get the price down a little bit," Johnson said.

Students at Whiteaker Middle School listen as organizers of a walkout read the names and brief biographies of those killed at Marjory Stoneman Douglas High School in Parkland, Florida.

did, but with differing reasons.

"As a student, I feel as safe as possible because we have great security and we have a teacher who served in the military. I feel safe here because of the people we have here," Hodges said.

"I feel like Whiteaker is a very safe school. My mom was worried because she heard some people were saying they were going to shoot kids during the walkouts. That made me worried, but I feel safe here and I want other kids to feel safe in their schools," Boyd said.

Hodges said she wanted the students who participated in the walkout to feel empowered after it was over.

"I hope that they realize that it's not only high schoolers. Some of us think we can't say something because we are only in middle school, but I wanted them to realize that they can still have an opinion and a voice on these things," Boyd said.

More than 200 students walked out at McNary High School. They stood in silence for 17 minutes in front of the school.

Faith Danner, a junior, who organized the walk out, made 17 numerical signs, one for every victim in the school shooting at Parkland. Other signs read "Fear has no place in our school" and "#Never Again."

"There was a lot more people than I was expecting," Danner said. "I was really impressed. I was really happy. I think a lot of it was by example. I think a lot of people became leaders today."

Danner walked out to show her support of Parkland and because she no longer feels safe at school.

"I hope that we make an impact," she said. "We have enough people that I know someone will see it and hopefully the legislators will see it and want to make a difference and see that we want a difference and we have a voice."

Students at Claggett Creek Middle School also filed out of the building at 10 a.m. and stood in silence for 17 minutes.
