Woman arrested in car break-in

A Portland woman was found rummaging through a glove box after allegedly breaking into a 2006 Saturn van in the parking lot of Simonka Place.

A Keizer police officer responded to the report of a car break-in about 1 a.m. Tuesday, April 3.

The caller reported a female suspect used a bat, crowbar or another similar instrument to break one of the vehicle's windows and the vehicle alarm was sounding.

When the officer arrived on scene he found the female suspect seated in the driver's seat of the vehicle rummaging through the glove box. When the officer confronted the woman, she complied with commands and was detained in handcuffs. An investigation determined the woman did not own the vehicle and it belonged to a resident at the shelter.

The suspect was identified as 27-year-old Jazmin Alexis Hanley of Portland. She was arrested and charged with one count of unlawful entry into a motor vehicle, one count of second-degree criminal mischief and one count of attempted unlawful use of a vehicle.

Hanley was transported to the Marion County Correctional Facility.
