

Social media leads cops to quick ID of car break-in suspect

Keizer Police Department posted a request on Facebook to help identify a suspect in a March 7 car break-in on Meadowglen Street Northeast, and followers of the department responded quickly.

The suspect attempted to use a debit card stolen from a car on Meadowglen at an area merchant and was caught on the store's video surveillance.

Within hours, police had the name of the suspect from several individuals who know him. His name and additional information has now been passed along to the investigating officer.

"Facebook is powerful medium. We had leads within an hour or two of posting the information and they continued to come in as recently as (Monday) evening," said KPD Deputy Chief Jeff Kuhns.

Keizertimes is not identifying the individual since he has not yet been charged with any crime.

STOLEN CAR RECOVERED, SUSPECTS ELUDE

A north Keizer neighborhood near Keizer Station was the site of a police search for car thieves on Tuesday, April 17.

About 7:20 p.m., Sgt. Jeff Goodman and Officer Rodney Bamford spotted a stolen

1988 Honda Civic heading north on River Road North. After making a U-turn, the officers tried to catch up to the suspect vehicle, but the driver had turned east on Lockhaven Drive Northeast and the officers were unable to overtake it.

Further east on Lockhaven, Officer Kevin DeMarco spotted the Civic turning into Keizer Station. DeMarco followed onto Tepper Lane Northeast. When the Civic reached the dead end at the railroad tracks, before the pedestrian underpass, two males fled on foot westbound on Tepper Lane.

The Keizer officers established a perimeter and were assisted by members of the Salem Police Department, but could not locate the suspects.

The vehicle was recovered and processed for evidence.
