

Volcanoes win big on the fourth

By HERB SWETT
Of the Keizertimes

The Volcanoes celebrated the Fourth of July at home with a 15-1 pounding of the Hillsboro Hops.

It was the middle of three big events at Volcanoes Stadium before a crowd of 5,255. The first event was an Independence Day program that honored people in the armed forces and veterans, with the emphasis on women. The last was the usual fireworks display.

Lopsided as the game was, it was a come-from-behind victory, because the Hops scored their only run in the first inning. Salem-Keizer responded with two runs in the first, two in the third, four in the fourth, six in the fifth, and one in the eighth.

The star of the game was newcomer Joey Bart, who hit two home runs and caught effectively enough for Jake Wong, Solomon Bates, Miguel Figueroa, and Trent Toplikar to combine for a three-hitter.

Pitching his first Salem-Keizer game, Wong allowed the one Hillsboro run and was relieved after two innings in manager Hector Borg's system of testing pitchers for their starting potential. Bates pitched the next two and got the win for a 2-0 record. Bates pitched four innings and Toplikar the ninth.

Tra Holmes led off the game and was hit by a pitch from Wong. He stole second base and reached third as Bart's throw went into center field. Jorge Perez drove in Homes with a sacrifice bunt.

Bart hit into a fielder's choice but batted in McPherson.

Goddard left the game after the first and became the losing pitcher at 0-1. Bryan Valdez relieved him.

McPherson hit a one-out double in the third, and Bart hit his first homer, clearing the left field fence.

Newcomer Aaron Bond hit a one-out infield single in the fourth and went to second as Valdez was called for a balk. Kevin Rivera drove Bond home with a double to right center. Llayer then hit his first homer of the season, clearing the left center field wall. McPherson followed with a triple to right center and scored as Rincones singled to center. Ryan Ricci took the mound and retired the side.

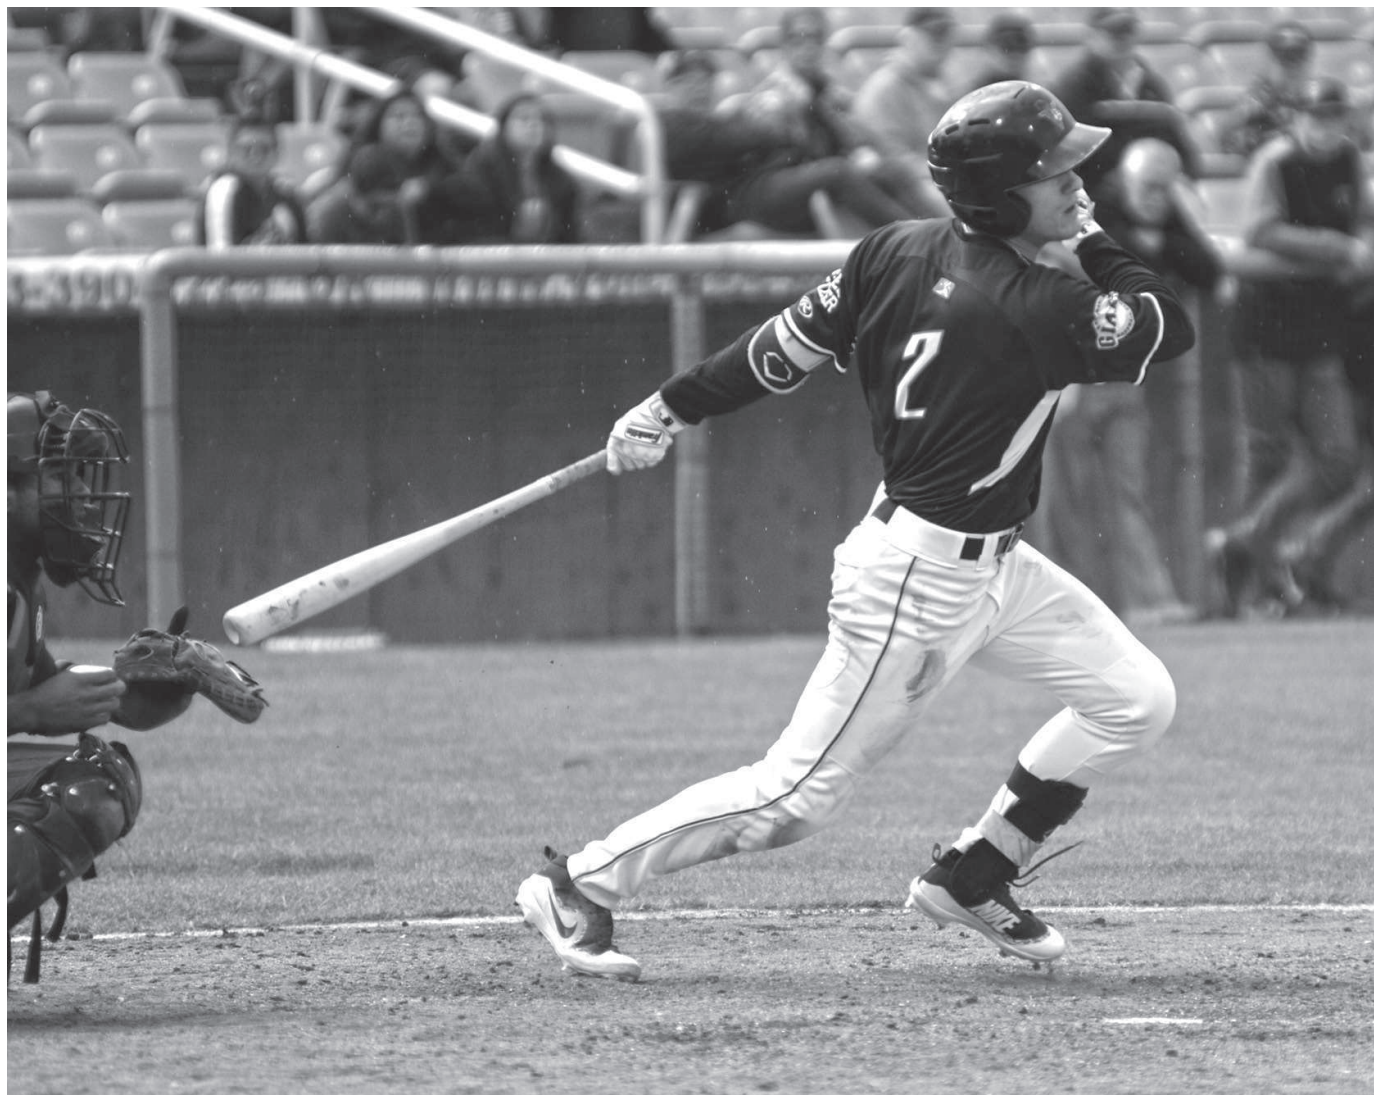

The first Hillsboro hit of the game, a one-out single by McCarthy, came in the fifth.

Bart's second home run, over the right field fence in the eighth, was the final run of the game.

"They play well; they play hard," Borg commented, referring not only to the Fourth of July win but also to the lessons his players learned from the series in Vancouver.

Figueroa is one of the Volcano pitchers who have pitched well since getting clobbered in their first games of the season. He said through a translator, teammate Sidney Duprey, that he did it largely by working on his fastball and his changeup.

Kyle McPherson, shortstop for the Salem-Keizer Volcanoes, was 3-for-4 on the Fourth of July with a double, triple and grand slam in a 15-1 win over Hillsboro.

but you get hot and cold so you can't ride the highs too high and just getting out here and having fun, being able to come play the game I love to play and kind of get away from all the craziness that's been going on the last couple of weeks and kind of get settled in and start playing."

Bart, after his junior season at Georgia Tech in which he was named the Atlantic Coast Conference's Baseball Player of the Year and won the Johnny Bench Award, which goes to college baseball's top catcher, was drafted by the San Francisco Giants organization on June 4.

Bart then signed with the Giants on June 17 with a bonus of $7.025 million, the largest for a position player in the draft's history.

"I think it meant more to my agents and the kind of work that they put in for me," Bart said of the record signing bonus. "That's definitely cool, no doubt, but we're all here in pro ball, starting from the bottom, so I've got to work my way back up."

Bart, who is living with a host family while playing for the Volcanoes this summer, plans to save the $7.03 million.

"I'm not looking to do much with it to be honest with you," he said.

Bart hit a grand slam to right field against Boise on Monday, July 9 and is hitting .304 with four home runs and 11 RBIs in his first five games. "I'm just glad to be back out here playing the game hard," Bart said. "I believe if you play the game hard and prepare right, it will take care of you."

But Bart, a 21-year-old who has spent his entire life in the Atlanta area at Buford High School and then Georgia Tech, feels like he's just getting into the swing of things here in the Pacific Northwest.

"I've still got some work to do before I'm really locked in," Bart said. "It will come with time and at-bats. I'm looking forward to that moment."
