LAPOF,

In terms of housing, Lapof champions single-family residences, but doesn't want to turn a blind eye to the needs of multifamily living, such as apartments.

“The people who are renting invest just as much in the community as others,” he said.

As the city continues moving toward infill, Lapof said it's reached the point of desperation and the city needs to expand the Urban Growth Boundary that hems in urban sprawl. With that as an underpinning, Lapof added that government's role in fostering growth should be minimal.

“The city's role in fostering growth should be to analyze any sort of regulation involved and the value of it. If local government were to help, it would be by stepping back. The economy and moral capitalism can provide more opportunities for success,” he said.

All of which isn't to say that he's completely hands-off. When asked whether he supported Keizer's recent attempts to act as landlord on a few properties it owns around the city, he wasn't totally opposed.

“Land ownership should be minimal, but it is beneficial. If it's yet undeveloped, and it's the city making money outside of my tax dollar, that's good,” Lapof said.

On the topic of the police and parks service fees implemented by the city council in 2017, Lapof said he supported both, but not the way the council chose to enact them.

“It wasn't put to a vote, it should have been put on the ballot this November,” he said. “The things that our local government does should be reduced to pure necessities. I know there is a case for the necessity [of those services], but those arguments are in lieu of a vote.”

BURGLARS: One suspect is still being sought

“they have no evidence that is 100% on these trumped up charges,” and threatening local media organizations with lawsuits.

On Sept. 2, about 8 a.m., the Keizer Police Department officers responded to a report of a business burglary that occurred sometime overnight at the Love Love Teriyaki, 6385 Ulali Drive Northeast. The suspects forced entry into the business by breaking a window after the business closed at 11 p.m. the previous night. A safe was taken from the business.

On Sept. 8, at 7 a.m., the Keizer police officers responded to a report of a business burglary at the Good Times Grill, 122 Chemawa Road North. Entry was made by breaking a window after the business closed at 2:30 a.m. the same morning. The suspects used a pry tool and attempted to force entry into an automatic teller machine (ATM) and a safe inside the business causing approximately $1,000 in damage. The suspect's actions were captured on video surveillance system.

On Sept. 13, police searched Berlin's residence on Eugene Court Northeast in connection with the burglary at Good Times Grill and found evidence warranting probable cause for an arrest. Berlin was arrested on two charges of burglary and conspiracy to commit burglary, and one charge each of unlawful possession of burglar tools, tampering with physical evidence, and violation of a release agreement. He was lodged at the Marion County Correctional Facility. His bail was set at $90,000, but he was released due to overcrowding at the jail on Monday, Sept. 17.

In addition to the prior business burglaries, Berlin has also been arrested for the burglary of a tavern in Canby. The Keizer Police Department is continuing to investigate the crimes and has probable cause to believe 41-year old John Albert Herriges is a suspect in both of the most recent burglaries. Herriges whereabouts were unknown at press time. Herriges was arrested in December 2017 in connection with burglarizing coffee shops in Keizer and Salem.

Anyone with information about the burglaries at Love Love Teriyaki or Good Times Grill are asked to call Keizer Police Department Det. Tim Lathrop at 503-390-3713, ext. 3481. Reference Keizer Police Department incidents #17-4318 and #17-440

Regarding the waning presence of volunteers in a city all but dependent on them, Lapof doesn't see a formal role for city council intervention but prefers a lead-by-example approach to the problems.

“I believe more in direct effort spent in time and energy. If I were a chosen member of the council, my efforts would show my commitment and people, I hope, would follow me,” he said.

He prides himself in following in the footsteps of his father, a longtime volunteer firefighter with the Keizer Fire District, and Dave Walery, a longtime volunteer with the Keizer Chamber of Commerce. Lapof is in his third year as an elected board member of the Keizer Chamber and is a founding directed city staff to draft a letter to the Oregon Legislature asking the state's governing bodies to “address the dangerous and unacceptable situation with regard to discharge of firearms in close proximity to urban areas.”

Mayor Cathy Clark asked whether the letter should address rural as well as urban areas, but City Manager Chris Eppley and Johnson cautioned against expanding the parameters of the request.

“Going the legislative route is going to be a tough row to hoe. Crafting something that board member of the Keizer Fire Foundation.

He said he wanted more time to research and consider his stance of a request by some Keizer residents for the city to adopt an inclusivity resolution, but that the city “should be welcoming to all American citizens.”

Lapof is the youngest of the four candidates running in contested city council races this year, but he said his Keizer upbringing, decision to remain in the city inform his politics.

“I'm approaching this as a development of relationships and leading with information about how things could best be done. The best decision can be made with all the information, but the best information can be hard to get,” he said.

walks the appropriate line is going to be difficult and, the broader you cast the net, the more people will join in the opposition,” Eppley said.

Councilor Marlene Parsons asked whether hunting along the river should be an additional consideration, but waterways are mostly controlled by the state.

“The state has recourse if a hunter is the bad actor in this,” Clark said.

Gary Blake, a member of the West Keizer Neighborhood Association, thanked the council for its actions, saying, “This shooting issue is something that needs to be addressed and I really appreciate your action tonight.”
