Today in History

In Paris, France, some of the most powerful people in the world meet to begin the long, complicated negotiations that would officially mark the end of the First World War. Leaders of the victorious Allied powers—France, Great Britain, the United States and Italy—would make most of the crucial decisions in Paris over the next six months.

By MATT RAWLINGS Of the Keizertimes

The Keizer Fire District held its monthly board meeting on Tuesday night to discuss public fees, name designation and the general election coming up in May.

During the board meeting last month, Fire Chief Jeff Cowan brought a proposal before the board that would amend a fire and life safety fee for anyone who applies for a commercial building permit from a $90 flat fee to a 6 percent fee of the total fees assessed — meaning if the combined permit fees totaled $4,000, the District would receive $240.

It was determined during the December meeting that it would be in the best interest of the city to hold a public comment hearing at the Wednesday meeting.

Keizer resident Bill Quinn was the only one to speak during the public comment period, coming out in favor of the proposal.

“I think we really need the fee for the work that you do,” Quinn said. “It’s just a fee for service and it makes a lot of sense.”

The board passed the approval with a 4-1 vote, with the only opposition coming from Ron Christopher, who wanted to see more money go to building a new website.

“I would be in favor of it if we could use that money and air mark that money to something specific like developing our website,” Christopher said.

Greg Ego and Betty Hart were vocal about their approval of the proposal.

Director Joe Van Meter engages the rest of the Keizer Fire Board in a discussion.

“I’m in favor of making these changes. I think that they are reasonable,” Ego said. “This is not about generating income. It’s about covering costs.”

Hart also commented: “The purpose of these fees is for cost recovery and I think that they should be considered as helping to pay the costs of the things we’re charging (building owners) for. It’s possible, as a result of that, that will free up enough tax dollars to do other things.”

Before the vote was taken, Cowan shared with the board an estimation of what the Department would have brought in if the six percent fee was enacted from 2015 to 2019 — which was roughly just over $22,000.

In other business: Hart reported that the Department has received $88,164 in ambulance payments for the month of December. She also stated that overtime hours were down last month.

Cowan requested the board consider an official change in name designation — going from Keizer Rural Fire Protection District to Keizer Fire District—but the board consensus was in favor of keeping the current name.

Ego, Hart and President Chet Patterson are up for re-election in May.

Patterson also mentioned the passing of Jerry McGee — Keizer’s longest serving city councilor. McGee died last Friday at the age of 85 due to complications from pneumonia after battling cancer.

Dog shelter is expanding hours

The Marion County Dog Shelter has expanded its hours of operation to include evening hours.

Beginning Monday, March 10 the shelter will be open Monday through Friday noon to 6 p.m. and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturdays. The expansion of dog control hours will allow dog control officers to increase dog safety services throughout Marion County.

Purchasing of dog licenses and adoption services will be available during the shelter’s public hours.

Dog license and other fees will increase beginning Feb. 1. Dog license and impound fees and fines are part of the shelter’s annual operating budget and are used to help cover the cost of shelter operations, including dog control officers who help maintain community safety. This will be the first increase in fees for the dog shelter since 2011 and the first increase to licensing fees since 2002.

License fees for will increase from $17 to $20 annually for altered dogs and from $32 to $37 for non-altered dogs. Discounted fees are available for multi-year licenses and for senior dog owners. For more information about Marion Dog Services fees and hours, visit www.mcdogs.net or call (503) 588-5233.
