

WMS, CCMS boundaries might get equity balance

By HERB SWETT
Of the Keizertimes

Further discussion of boundary changes within the Salem-Keizer School District took up much of the School Board's second meeting of the month Tuesday, Jan. 22.

Although the proposed changes would have little effect on McNary High School, with only a very small portion of its attendance area being shifted to that of McKay High School, several boundary lines would be redrawn for elementary and middle schools.

To achieve equity, and in the case of Claggett Creek and Whiteaker middle schools to balance enrollment population, a large portion of the eastern part of Claggett Creek area would be shifted to Whiteaker. A much smaller portion of the Whiteaker area would be shifted to Claggett Creek.

Several changes would occur for the elementary schools. Michael Wolfe, chief operating officer for the district, mentioned another change for Kennedy Elementary School. Part of the district bond issue, he said, would be used to build classrooms to replace portable ones that are nearing the end of their usefulness.

Different high school attendance areas have had different concerns. A few people in the audience who were associated in different ways with McKay said the proposals now before the board would be inadequate to relieve the crowding in the high school.

A final board vote on the boundaries is scheduled for Feb. 12.

In other business, the board adopted a memorandum of understanding between the district and Mountain West Career Technical Education Center, establishing a 10-year public-private partnership with eventual transfer of the Mountain West facility to the district in exchange for district maintenance of the facility, insurance, taxes and other costs.

The board also approved first reading of a contract amendment involving Howard Street Charter School. In December, the board had rejected an HSCS request for an amendment that would have increased district payments for the cost of a bond issued by the Oregon Facilities Authority. New requests by HSCS are for the district to authorize an increase in the enrollment from 180 to 200 students and for allowing the OFA to receive the required debt service on the bonded indebtedness directly from the district so that HSCS would never possess the money required to pay the debt.

In a meeting earlier in the month, the Spotlight on Success portion of the meeting, Angel Olmos-Lopez, a McNary senior, was honored for his work as a board member of the Keizer Community Library.

The bulk of the Traffic Safety, Bikeways and Pedestrian Committee's meetings in December and January was spent looking ahead to 2019.

Committee members had previously established some goals for the next year but brought a few new ones to the forefront during the meetings. Old and continuing goals included:

- Enlisting local businesses to participate in the Bike Friendly Oregon campaign.
- Developing Keizer-centric cycling and pedestrian maps.
- Developing wayfinding signage for the Keizer sections of the Willamette Valley Scenic Bike Route.
- Working on Safe Routes to Schools plans.
- Create awareness around placing garbage receptacles in bike lanes.

On the cycling front, the committee still plans to work with McNary High School to get new bike racks installed and look for additional spaces to install bike repair stations.

Among the new items were an assessment of traffic accidents on River Road North. A recent fatal crash involving a pick-up truck and a pedestrian in a crosswalk spurred additional conversation at the meeting.

Committee member Hersch Sangster said that the vast majority of traffic fatalities – going back decades – involve River Road.

“I was always taught that there is a common thread in any series of accidents. I think the committee should get the data and look at possible recommendations,” Sangster said.

Committee member David Dempster said any recommendations might possibly be worked into an ongoing redevelopment study of the commercial areas of River Road North.

The committee expressed interest in working with the Keizer Parks Advisory Board to develop plans for a boardwalk that would run along the east bank of Claggett Creek from Lockhaven Drive Northeast to the area around Claggett Creek Middle School and Weddle Elementary School.

The effort would likely be a massive undertaking including purchasing easements along the creek and working with environmental agencies to minimize impacts to the watershed and wetlands.

Finally, Dempster said there is a small section of Keizer Road Northeast, near Verda Lane Northeast where the sidewalk ends and pedestrians are forced into the street. He said that finishing the approximately 80-foot section would be a priority for him and he would like to put a recommendation forth to the city council with the support of the committee.

Committee member Pat Fisher suggested members look for other small “missing links” within the city and request that the city fund finishing the projects during the budget process that will begin this spring.
