Graneto returns to McNary

By MATT RAWLINGS

Jordan Graneto has spent a lot of time in the gym at McNary High School over the course of his life.

As a former Celtic player, Graneto led McNary to back-to-back Greater Valley Conference Championships back in 2008 and 2009.

In 2016, Graneto came back to the McNary program to be the junior varsity boys basketball coach and was also an assistant on the varsity squad for two years.

On Friday, Feb. 15, Graneto made his return to the McNary gym, but this time, he was on an opposing sideline.

Graneto is in his first season as the head boys basketball coach at Sprague High School. With a 15-8 record, he has the Olympians poised to make a run in the postseason — although his team did fall to the Celtics 60-46 last Friday.

“Coaching against (Graneto) is unique because it's like coaching against yourself,” McNary head coach Ryan Kirch said. “I felt very fortunate to have him in our program because it was like having two head

Celts get much needed win over Sprague

The McNary girls basketball team came into their contest with Sprague in desperate need of a victory.

After beginning Mountain Valley Conference play with a 6-0 record, the Celtics had lost their last five contests and were watching their playoff hopes begin to dwindle.

But McNary was able to get back on track against the winless Olympians, defeating Sprague 51-28 on Friday, Feb. 15 to stay in the hunt for the postseason.

“It's good for team morale to get a win,” McNary head coach Elizabeth Doran said. “We were in a funk for a while, but we have picked it up in the last couple of games.”

McNary point guard Leah Doult had been battling an illness all week and only played limited minutes. Needing someone to step up on offense, Abigail Hawley answered the call.

Hawley led the Celtics with a game-high 19 points on 7-of-16 shooting from the field and knocked down several important shots to help the Celtics build their lead in the second period.

“I definitely knew that I had to step up,” Hawley said. “But I am also proud of how my teammates stepped up.”

Despite a bucket from Mackenzie Proctor and a pair of jumpers from Hawley in the first quarter, McNary struggled to find an offensive rhythm and found themselves trailing 8-7 and the end of the opening period.

However, the tide began to turn once the second quarter began.

After a floater from Hawley to give the Celtics the lead back, the senior wing found Doult with a great outlet pass for an easy layup.

Moments later, Hawley drained an open 3-pointer after receiving a great feed from Annie Leigh Besa, and then knocked down another triple with 30 seconds remaining in the half, putting the Celtics on top 22-15 going into the break.

Once the third quarter started, McNary began to run away with the game.

McNary started the half with a full-court press that decimated the inexperienced Olympians and gave the Celtics many more chances at open looks.

Proctor and Sabella Alfaro each nailed triples early in the period, which were followed with a baseline jumper from Rebekah Grimmer.

Doult would eventually get in on the action with an easy layup after a steal in the backcourt by Alfaro. Doult's bucket completed a 10-2 run for McNary and gave the Celtics a 32-17 advantage.

“Our defensive pressure and the way we attacked the basket I think was such a big improvement,” Hawley said. “Those were the things we were lacking when we were on that losing streak.”

McNary extended their advantage to 38-23 heading into the final period after Hawley ended the third with four straight points.

With a comfortable lead, Doran was able to get some of her younger players some varsity action in the second half

Grace Carr and Madison Alt were both able to knock down shots from behind the arc down in the fourth quarter to help give McNary the lopsided victory.

“It's awesome that we have girls that can step into a varsity game and play with confidence,” Doran said.

McNary will host South Salem tonight at 5:45 p.m. in their final game of the regular season.

coaches. He is a really, really good coach.”

Despite his history with McNary, this wasn't Graneto's first time coaching against the Celtics.

After graduating high school in 2009, Graneto went on to play basketball for two years at Corban College. When his playing career was over, Graneto spent two years as an assistant at Sprague and two seasons as the head coach for North Salem before making his return to McNary.

However, what was a tad awkward for Graneto was coaching against kids that he had spent so much time molding in the previous two seasons.

“That part is a little weird. Coaching against kids that I had coached before is obviously difficult because I have formed relationships with those guys,” Graneto said. “But I also want to win.”

Kirch added: “All of our players have a ton of respect for Jordan. He was great at building relationships with players. But once the ball was tipped, we were trying to compete and win.”

Even though he is no longer with the Celtics, Graneto received a warm welcome from people when he came back to the school last week. Whether it was teachers and fans greeting him with a handshake and short conversation before the game, or seeing his former players give him a hug afterwards, it was clear to see that Graneto is still very much loved and respected at McNary.

“McNary has been really good to me,” Graneto said. “It was a great place to grow up and a great place to play basketball. I had a lot of people who influenced me to do what I am doing now.”

“I still have a lot of people that I really love here.”
