studio. But to him, it's more than worth it.

"It's hard to even describe how much it means to me," Morse said. "I love being able to give back and help others who don't have the same opportunities as I did."

"The relationships that have been created go far beyond just making music."

Back in October, Davis and Morse got several of their kids to participate in the Xperience Music Festival at McNary High School, where they got to do workshops with professionals in the industry. Some of them even got to perform in an evening concert.

"It was great to see kids getting inspired and doing some networking. When you connect that with a good cause, it made the experience that much more enriching," McNary choir teacher Andy Thomas said.

"A lot of these kids are going through some gnarly stuff."

— Tim Davis

"The event was a huge success." Thomas hopes to make the festival a yearly tradition. Davis knows mentoring is a labor of love that requires a lot of hard work and time away from family. But to him, it's all worth it. "Mentoring isn't always easy. Every kid isn't always an easy kid to hang with. And it can take a long time to build relationships because a lot of these kids are going through some gnarly stuff. But it is really rewarding," Davis said.

School budget committee plans way forward

By HERB SWETT
For the Keizertimes

The next budget committee of Salem-Keizer Public Schools met for the first time Tuesday, Feb. 26, following the School Board meeting.

The committee always consists of the seven board members and seven people from the general public. New to the board are Adriana Miranda and Kathleen Harder. Harder was absent but listened in by telephone.

Other members from the public are Adam Kohler, Tyson Pruet, Rachel Dewey Thorsett, Virginia Stapleton and Levi Herrera-Lopez. Kohler was also absent.

Michael Wolfe, chief operating officer of the district, noted that the board will elect its chair and vice chair April 23. He introduced Sarah Head, director of budget and finances, who told the committee that the budget for the next school year must be adopted by June 30 unless the Oregon Legislature grants an extension.

Three other district officials — Linda Myers, Craig Sproles and Cynthia Richardson — spoke to the committee about equity in budgeting. Richardson defined equity as inclusion of multiple groups with the aim of meeting all groups' needs equally.
