

Cooking competitors cook up mouth-watering meats in Keizer

Last week, Willow Lake Golf Center & Driving Range hosted the first NW BBQ Bacon, Beer & Steak Festival.

The event had 27 vendors, which event coordinator Mike White is hoping only scratches the surface of what is to come.

There were awards from first through ninth place in pork, brisket, ribs, and chicken. A grand champion, reserve grand champion and the Oregon steak champion were also crowned. Winners included

Grand Champion: Maddog's BBQ.

Reserve Grand Champion: Smoaking Timbers.

Oregon Steak Championship-Verl Green.

1st Place Pork: Fowl Cookin' at the lake house BBQ.

1st Place Brisket: Maddog's BBQ.

1st Place Ribs: J & C BBQ.

1st Place Chicken: Fowl Cookin'.

KT journalists win 3 first place awards

The Keizertimes was honored with 11 awards including three first place prizes at the annual Better Newspaper Contest held at the annual Oregon Newspaper Publishers Association convention last week.

Managing editor Eric A. Howald won a first place award for best local column (Where are the adults? about covering student protests in the wake of a mass shooting at Major Stoneman Douglas High School in Parkland, Fl.).

Former Associate News Editor Derek Wiley won first place for best sports photo (Celtics knocked out in first round of 6A state playoffs).

Matt Rawlings, who succeeded Wiley, won first place for best spot news coverage (Life saver, the story of a Keizer man who saved a woman whose car had left the road and landed in an orchard).

The Keizertimes won second place awards for its Salem-Keizer High School Football Preview (best special section). Casey Chaffin won second place in best feature story, personality, for Making it work as a team, her profile of Peggy and Jerry Moore, a Keizer couple who were instrumental in taking the Rickman Community Garden to the next level.

Third place awards were won for: coverage of business issues, education coverage, sports story and writing, all won by Howald. Matt Rawlings took third place for educational coverage. Candace Johnson was honored for her graphics work on a foster care story. The staff of the paper was honored for their photo essay of the 2018 KeizerFEST in review.

Keizertimes lead takes reins of publisher's group

Lyndon Zaitz, publisher of the Keizertimes, was installed as the 83rd president of the Oregon Newspaper Publishers Association last week at the group's annual convention.

Zaitz, publisher since 2007, has been a member of the board of directors of the publishers association for four terms over 10 years.

As he took the gavel at his installation at the Salishan Resort near Lincoln City, Zaitz said, "(The association's) member's missions remain the same: covering the local news, telling the stories of our communities and being the public's watchdog on government. As long as we do it correctly we will be rewarded with readership."

In his remarks, Zaitz acknowledged the industry leaders who preceded him as president and thanked Les Zaitz, his brother and publishing mentor.
