in the construction of the barrel. A shotgun barrel has thinner, smooth walls. Other types of long guns are typically rifled, which means spiraled grooves are cut into the interior of a thicker overall barrel. Rifling makes a bullet spin in flight increasing the distance it travels.

Johnson said that the nature of the settlement, a stipulated judgment, means more severe consequences should Davis be found in violation of the terms.

“It would not be just a breach of an agreement, it would be contempt of court,” Johnson said.

No charges in alleged threat with machete

KEIZERTIMES/Eric A. Howald
About 11 a.m. on Friday, Aug. 2, Keizer police confronted a man in the parking lot of Safeway on River Road North after it was alleged he brandished a machete out of the window of his moving vehicle after cutting off another driver and then brake-checking him. Officers could not establish a crime had been committed and no charges were filed.

S. Keizer tennis court gets new surface next month

The Keizer City Council awarded a contract to replace tennis courts at Willamette Manor Park at its meeting Monday, Aug. 5.

The court replacement was a sought-after improvement by neighbors once the city secured additional park funding through a fee added to utility bills.

The contract was awarded to Salem Concrete Paving in the amount of $76,990. The project is expected to be completed no later than Sept 20.

A new concrete slab will be poured over the existing asphalt with a plastic vapor barrier placed over that. In addition, an ADA access ramp will be installed on the west side of the court and connect to new pathways recently installed in the park.

The tennis courts have long been a source of frustration for Keizer Parks Supervisor Robert Johnson. A few years ago, after cracks in the surface became an impediment to use, Johnson searched for a fix. The court was in such poor condition, that only one contractor would agree to work on it without a full-scale replacement.

With a strapped budget, Johnson ordered the repair knowing it was only a temporary fix at best. The new surface is expected to last for the foreseeable future.

JUG: Kohler dissents based quality of job creation

“If we were to bring a gasoline station into the area, a car wash could come along with that,” said Hernandez. The Grand Ronde tribes along the Confederated Tribes of the Siletz are co-owners of the property at issue.

Prior to the change the site plan for the jug handle included only three sites, one for fast food, another for a gas station and a third for a retail tenant of some sort.

Even with the change in allowable uses, Roodhouse said more were forthcoming. To make room for four potential tenants, a water detention pond on the site would have to be put underground and the site plan adjusted.

“We would have to submit those changes as part of the approval process,” Roodhouse said.

Roodhouse and Hernandez didn't mention many specific names during the meeting other than to say the vehicle accessory shop would be a “Les Schwab-type” retailer and that the fast food restaurant “is a well-known chain and I guarantee you will all like it.”

Before getting hopes up, it should be noted that Roodhouse is the same developer that dropped names like Burgerville when Keizer Station was in its early development stages and, instead, Keizer got a second Burger King location.

The council approved the changes with a 6-1 vote. Councilor Dan Kohler voted against it, but didn't offer reasoning during the meeting.

After the meeting, Kohler said his vote came down to the type jobs such development creates.

“We are looking for development which will produce living wage jobs rather than more minimum wage jobs. This is what we need to have, more people who live in Keizer, work in Keizer,” he said.
