It wasn't a traffic-pocalypse, but In-N-Out certainly kept Keizer Station hopping for days after it opened Thursday, Dec. 12.

Among the first in line — nearly 36 hours before restaurant opened — was Gino Corridori, a Keizer-based Farmers Insurance agent. Corridori began holding a spot in line about 10 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 10, sleeping in his truck and offering a first crack at double-doubles to students who showed up with proof they were making straight As.

"It was hard spending the night in the truck, but it's not that hard. Getting up in the morning, getting yourself together and then getting on a bus that takes you to school where you are making straight

As is much harder," Corridori said.

Corridori received gift certificates from other local restaurant owners to give out to students who didn't make it in time to claim one of first five spots in the In-N-Out line. Bo & Vine, Keizer Sub Shop, Odd Moes Pizza, Word of Mouth Cafe, Rafi's, Bentley's Coffeehouse,
