Keizer race walker pursues Olympics

Lydia McGranahan has always had a passion for being active.

The 42-year old Keizer resident loves backpacking, hiking and biking. She teaches water aerobics and spin classes at Kroc Center in Salem and has also competed in triathlons in the past.

And in less than three years, McGranahan has turned that passion into becoming one of the best race walkers in the country.

On Sept. 30, 2018, McGranahan qualified for the 2020 U.S. Olympic Trials in the 50 Kilometer race walk by finishing her race in 5:08.16 at the Open & Masters Race Walk Championships in Owego, NY.

Just six months later, McGranahan also met the Olympic Trials time requirement for the 20K event at the Race Walk Championships in Tustin, Calif.

"It's blown me away how fast all of this happened," McGranahan said.

McGranahan was first introduced to race walking in 2014 when her daughter, Mariah, who was 10 years old at the time, started competing in the sport at Salem Track Club. In the summer of 2016, both McGranahan and her daughter were volunteers during the U.S Olympic Trials race walking event, which took place in Salem.

McGranahan

Just months later, while taking Mariah to a race walking coach in Portland, McGranahan was encouraged to just try it out for a few laps and soon discovered that she was matching Olympic qualifying time in her 200 meter intervals.

After participating in a Portland to Coast race walking relay in the summer of 2017, teammates saw McGranahan's potential and encouraged her to attempt a 20K.

After weeks of consideration, McGranahan decided that she would give it a try.

In January of 2018, McGranahan flew down to Santee, Calif. to compete in her first 20K and finished just a few minutes below Olympic Trials qualifying time.

Six months later, she was competing at a 20K in Des Moines Iowa, where she would racing against some of the athletes she was assisting during the 2016 Olympic Trials.

With her success in the 20K, McGranahan decided to push herself even further by trying her first 50K in New York in September of 2018.

Despite not working with a trainer and having no experience with the 50K, McGranahan still finished well ahead of Olympic Trials qualifying time.

While qualifying for the 50K seemed like a lofty goal, McGranahan thought that meeting the 20K time would be even more difficult.

But throughout McGranahan's short race walking career, she has surpassed her own expectations, and this race was no different as she finished her 20K in personal-best time (1:45.51) on March 17 to qualify for her second Olympic Trials race.

Cameron Ferrando (33) breaks away from a tackler after an interception.

MYF eighth graders go undefeated

It's one thing to finish the season undefeated, but it's a whole other thing to do it in dominating fashion.

But that's exactly what the McNary Youth Football varsity eighth-grade team did to Lake Oswego on the afternoon of Saturday, Nov. 9 at Tigard High School.

The Celtics controlled the game from start to finish, beating Lake Oswego 28-6 to clinch the AFC bracket of the Tualatin Valley Football League with a 10-0 record.

"I couldn't be more proud of all these kids. They earned it. Each player worked their butts off and they just put the pieces together all season long," Celtics head coach Dan Burrus said.

The McNary offense was a little bit sloppy to come out the gate as they committed multiple penalties that stalled their first two drives and couldn't take advantage of a pair of early turnovers by Lake Oswego. But the Celtics were able to tighten things up as the second quarter began.

The Celtics defense got a huge fourth down stop in Lake Oswego territory when defensive lineman Nick Henry came away with a sack to give McNary the ball back. Facing a third-and-10, Celtics quarterback Jesse Dyer hit Gage Smedema perfectly in stride down the sideline for the touchdown to get McNary on the board.

McNary forced the Lakers third fumble of the game on the following possession, which was recovered by Cougar Bailey and taken down to the Lake Oswego 12-yard line.

Four plays later, McNary running back Pierce Walker punched it in from a yard out to give his team the 14-0 lead.

"We tried to take pride in focus and attitude. We just told the boys to calm down and get their heads back in the game," Burrus said.

Lake Oswego responded with a 72-yard touchdown run on the following play from scrimmage to get within one score. But McNary wasn't phased in the slightest.

An 18-yard scramble by

Dyer had 15 yards tacked on to it after a late hit from a Lake Oswego defender, which took the ball down to the Lakers 22-yard line.

Once they got the ball into the red zone, the Celtics stuck to their power run game to push the ball across the goal line. Walker wound up reaching the end zone from four yards out to put McNary on top 21-6.

"We knew that if the running backs hit the holes harder, they weren't going to be able to stop us. It was mainly because our linemen blocking so well," Walker said.

Lake Oswego had a chance to score before the half, but an interception from Smedema turned the Lakers away.

Cameron Ferrando got in on the turnover action to start the third quarter, intercepting a pass for the Celtics fifth takeaway and taking it down to the Lakers 17-yard line. The next play, Ferrando got to finish the job at running back, going into the end zone untouched to put the game on ice.

McNary forced the sixth Lake Oswego turnover in the fourth quarter when Christopher Cortez got a pick with 7:39 remaining.

"They all know what their responsibilities are. When they cover and do what they're supposed to do, that's what our defense can look like. They were pretty dominant," Burrus said.
