

Today in History

“Beatlemania” arrives in America. It was the first visit to the United States by the Beatles, a British rock-and-roll quartet that had just scored its first No. 1 U.S. hit six days before with “I Want to Hold Your Hand.” At Kennedy, the “Fab Four”—dressed in mod suits and sporting their trademark pudding bowl haircuts—were greeted by 3,000 screaming fans who caused a near riot when the boys stepped off their plane and onto American soil.

READY: ‘You have to figure out what is important to you’

recipient of the Service to Education Award at the 59th annual Keizer First Citizen & Awards Banquet on Saturday, Jan. 18.

When Ready received the award, she was overcome with emotion.

“There wasn’t a whole lot of dry eyes. I had no clue. But that’s not why we do what we do. You don’t go into things like that thinking, ‘ooh I might get recognized.’ There are so many people that do so much in our community. There are so many people that are so deserving,” Ready said.

Ready first started getting really involved in the Keizer community five years ago when she was asked to help at an event by Danielle Bethell, the executive director of the Keizer Chamber of Commerce.

“Danielle grabbed hold of me and asked me to come help at an event. It was then I realized how much I loved it. I think it opened my eyes to what the needs were,” Ready said. “She really honed in on saying yes and doing the right thing, even when it wasn’t popular and she made that apparent to me. She has an ability to make you want to help.”

Bethell, who was on the selection committee for this award, has been able to witness Ready’s commitment to the city of Keizer firsthand over the past few years.

“I was moved the night of the banquet by her reaction. I knew she would be surprised and I expected her to have a sense of humor about her emotion because she really doesn’t seek the limelight. Tammy is a do-er, she shows up when asked, asks to show up when she sees a need and she gets the job done,” Bethell said. “She is someone I admire greatly and I am proud to know she received a small show of gratitude from the community she serves so open-heartedly.”

During the day, Ready works at the Oregon Employment Department as an executive assistant. When she’s not at her occupation, it’s likely Ready is serving her community in some capacity.

Ready has organized numerous fundraisers for the McNary baseball program — her son, Logan, was on the freshman team last season. She also has recently served at the Simonka Place for Women and Children through the Union Gospel Mission and organized a fundraiser for the Liberty House in Salem.

Additionally, Ready volunteered at the McNary Holiday Bazaar in November and is an active member of the McNary Athletic Booster Club.

Most recently, Ready helped hold a pancake fundraiser at Applebee’s on Saturday, Feb. 1 for a local woman who is battling cancer.

It’s not that Ready has a hard time saying no to someone for asks for her assistance, she just loves to help people.

“I look at it as I get to say yes. I have the ability to say yes. I have people asking me all the time why I do what I do and take time away from family, and my response to them is ‘why don’t you?’” Ready said.

Ready acknowledged that part of the reason for her servant’s heart is that she grew up poor eating “oatmeal and potatoes for breakfast lunch and dinner for weeks on end.”

“Tammy is a passionate servant. Her childhood had some bumps and I believe due to that she gets great joy in working to prevent those same bumps for children today,” Bethell said. “I would say her soul is deeply filled through her efforts of putting others first. She deserves this award because she would never have wanted it. People like Tammy don’t do the many things they do for awards, they do it out of love and because its who they are.”

Ready also credits having an understanding family and an ability to handle many things at once for her willingness to serve in so many different capacities.

“I have a really good husband. I’m super lucky with that. He just gets me. I’m a pretty good juggler, and if I’m doing something, I try and bring people with me. It’s true that many hands make light work,” Ready said. “You have to figure out what is important to you, and this is important to me.”

“I love our Keizer community. I love the businesses and the people in it. Everyone is doing something, and when there is a need, everyone does more,” Ready said.

While proton therapy was one option still on the table, the family plans were to stay in Salem for now.

The Keizer Police Association is running the GoFundMe campaign, it can be found at tinyurl.com/ofccarroll. More than $22,000 had been donated to cover Dan’s medical bills at press time. There are also a few support bracelets left at the KPD station.

The support bracelets are black with the words, “Fight hard K013.” K013 is Carroll’s call sign on the police radio frequency. They are $5 each.

After the initial diagnosis, further treatment discovered cancerous tissue in his shoulder, spine, hips, liver and stomach. Intensive chemotherapy and radiation treatment followed.

The Carroll family has medical insurance, but his family has already incurring significant out-of-pocket expenses. Funds collected through GoFundMe will be placed into a trust and withdrawn to pay for medical expenses. Any excess funds will be donated to cancer research.

Dan’s battle began with a level 3 tumor on his esophagus and cancer cells spreading to the lymph nodes. Esophageal cancer is more common among men than among women, according to the American Cancer society website. The odds of surviving esophageal cancer have improved with more modern treatments, but it tends to be one of the tougher cancers to treat if it cannot be removed through surgery.

An awarding night

Former city councilors scored a sweep at the 2014 Keizer Chamber First Citizen Award Banquet last Saturday, Jan. 31 at Keizer Quality Suites. Former Keizer Mayor and councilor Lore Christopher was named First Citizen; former Keizer City Councilor Joe Egli picked up Merchant of the Year honors; former Salem City Councilor Dan Clem earned the President’s Award and former Keizer City Councilor Chuck Lee as well as wife Krina got the Service to Education Award.

Titans, Olympians fall; Lady Celts’ streak now at nine

The Lady Celts varsity basketball team shook off early jitters to turn back the Titans of West Salem, 48-37, in a clash of the conference’s best teams. West Salem scored the game’s first five points, but visiting McNary then took control, ending the quarter on a 12-1 run.

15 YEARS AGO

New Iris Fest event sure to be a splash

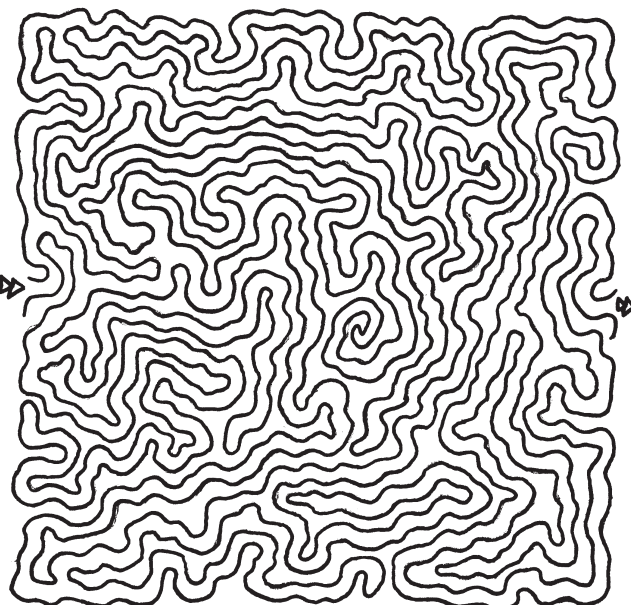

It may not be the Rose Festival Parade, or the Macy’s Thanksgiving Day Parade, but Keizer is about to get a new, unique procession that it can call its own. With the help of some McNary High students, the Keizer Chamber of Commerce is currently planning Parade Paddle, an event that will coincide with the city’s Iris Festival as well as celebrate the 200th anniversary of the Lewis and Clark Expedition in this area.

Local schools earn ‘satisfactory’ grade

Two Keizer elementary schools received the second-highest overall rankings Tuesday morning when the Oregon Department of Education released the first-ever report cards. Both Clear Lake and Gubser schools received a grade of strong, while the other five Keizer schools received a rating of satisfactory.
