Keizer Volcanoes hitting facility — which started on Tuesday, June 2.

MYB will be following rules and regulations of the Oregon School Activities Association's (OSAA) phase one of reopening guidance for athletics.

All players will be required to wear a mask at all times, and all equipment sharing and personal gestures (high-fives, handshakes, etc.) are prohibited. Personal water bottles are the only acceptable beverage.

Only 12 players will be allowed in the facility for each hour-long session, along with three to four coaches.

"It at least gives kids the opportunity to swing the bat again," Lane said.

According to Lane, all 96 available slots were filled in less than 15 hours.

Moving forward, MYB is hoping to organize and run their fall season on weekends from the end of August until the end of October if they are able.

While MYB had people on their board that still wanted to attempt to facilitate an abbreviated season, the decision to cancel was unanimous on the KLL board.

"We still didn't know when we would be able to play a game and what would be considered safe. Yes, we could do some adjusted practices, but we didn't want to charge families for practice," KLL President Ryan Siegel said. "I think everyone knew going in that the season wasn't going to happen."

While they don't have any practices or clinics scheduled, KLL is hoping to have their plan for fall baseball in place by early August. They are also giving families the opportunity to either receive a full refund from the spring or have their money go towards fall registration.

"We're just going to sit down one of these nights and write a bunch of refund checks," Siegel said.

Dawson Rios and Ethan Ortiz each call for a pop fly for the Keizer Little League 50/70 team at the state tournament last summer.

Volcanoes hosting senior weekend

One of the most cherished events in a High School baseball is Senior Day at the field.

It's usually the last home game of the season and provides a final recognition for the senior players and their families whom have supported their efforts for so many years.

COVID-19 destroyed this emotional opportunity for everyone this year.

The Salem-Keizer Volcanoes, home to the OSAA State High School Baseball Championships for the past several decades, wish to create this special moment for all Oregon senior baseball players, their coaches and their families and provide the players one last chance to take the field. The Volcanoes have announced Senior Weekend at

- Player Name
- Contact information
- High School

- Coach's name and contact info
- Parent's name and contact info
- Position(s)

The organization is also asking that players indicate which of the days they would be available to play a game against other senior athletes.

Once initial responses are acquired, the organization will put together a format with special recognition for all involved.

Volcanoes Stadium, which is scheduled to take place Friday, July 31 through Sunday, Aug. 2.

Details will be determined once commitments are obtained from the players.
