2006 playoffs — both coming in the National League Division Series. In his 7.1 total innings of work, Hensley gave up just two runs.

Injuries hampered Hensley's 2007 season as he spent most of the year on injured reserve and struggled in his rehab appearances. On Aug. 4, 2007, Hensley gave up Barry Bonds' 755th home run, tying Hank Aaron for the most dingers of all time. The following day, Hensley was optioned back to the minor leagues.

Another injury-hampered season in 2008 prompted San Diego to release Hensley. He was picked up by the Houston Astros and signed a minor league contract, but was let go in May of 2009.

Shortly after his release, Hensley was signed by the Florida Marlins, once again on a minor league contract. Having to prove himself all over again, Hensley had an impressive stint with the Triple-A New Orleans Zephyrs, going 8-4 with a 3.24 ERA, a 1.254 WHIP and 82 K's in 114 innings.

Hensley's performance at the Triple-A level earned him a roster spot on the Marlins for the 2010 season, where he returned to the bullpen and experienced arguably the best season of his career.

Hensley led the team with 68 appearances and, later in the season, recorded seven saves after taking over the closer role. In his 75 innings of work, Hensley had a team-best 2.16 ERA with 77 K's over 75 innings. He was also third on the team in WHIP (1.107) and second in K's per nine innings (9.2).

In games Hensley appeared in, the Marlins would go 45-23 — as opposed to their record of 35-59 in games where he didn't appear.

However, Hensley couldn't duplicate that same success with the Marlins in 2011, going 6-7 with a 5.19 ERA in 37 games, including nine starts.

In his last big league season, Hensley was able to sign with the team that originally drafted him, the San Francisco Giants, in 2012. In 60 games with the Giants, all coming out of the bullpen, he went 4-5 with a 4.62 ERA in 50.2 innings. His last appearance came on Oct. 3, 2012. Even though he didn't pitch in the postseason, Hensley received a championship ring after the Giants won the 2012 World Series.

year in Double-A and, despite missing time due to a hand injury, Reynolds still hit .302 with seven homers, 46 RBIs, 18 doubles and 56 runs scored.

He spent a brief amount of time in Triple-A in 2019 before being called up to the big leagues on April 20. Reynolds made his major league debut against San Francisco, the team he was drafted by, and recorded a base hit in his first game.

In a season that was full of some of the best rookie players in recent history, Reynolds was still able to establish himself as one of the top first-year players in the league.

Reynolds hit .316 for the season with 16 homers and led all rookies with 37 doubles. He was also second among rookies with a .880 OPS (on-base plus slugging) and had 68 RBIs on the season.

While he hasn't been as productive in the 2020 shortened season, Reynolds is still an everyday outfielder for the Pirates.

OUR STORY

Meet the people that make your community newspaper

Since 1987, the Keizertimes has been proud to be honored with more than 60 first place awards bestowed by the Oregon Newspaper Publishers Association, as judged by members of press associations from states around the country.

The current staff is dedicated to publishing the best newspaper for the people of Keizer — they deserve nothing less.

LET'S MEET Lyndon Zaitz

Publisher & Editor
(Born: Naples, Fla., Resides: Keizer)

WHY THE KEIZERTIMES?

Journalism has been in the family blood since the 1930s. My father owned the Keizer News in the 1940s. After a career spent in food and beverage I finally joined the family business and it has been the most rewarding career I could have had.

COMMUNITY NEWSPAPERS

The news distributed on social media is just that: social. Local community newspapers is where the public can put their trust, especially with the Keizertimes. No other source can get into the nooks and crannies of the Keizer community like the local newspaper. We live here. Decisions are made here. We like to say: "You think you know, to be sure read the Keizertimes."

MY PASSION

Government and politics. And The Container Store — it's my Mecca.
