hear their product and attempt to make it better," Rist said.

There are currently 40 kids in the club and Rist meets with individual sectional groups (sopranos, altos, tenors, bass) on a daily basis. During meetings, students will regularly discuss music and organize collaborations for self-directed projects.

"It's been a lot of fun. Kids have been able to learn their part outside of class, then go over with me and provide feedback," Rist said. "It's been a learning process the kids have got to experience with each other. Kids have been getting better and better through the process."

Last month, the club created their own rendition of The Hymn of Axiom by Vienna Teng. Although they couldn't be together in-person, the students used Soundtrap to sing and layer each section of the song to make it sound like they were singing together — the song can be found on YouTube.

Even though Rist was proud of the final product, he admitted that it was a little heartbreaking that he couldn't share with his students' joy in-person.

"It was beautiful but bittersweet. I miss the kids and I miss the classroom. It used to feel like this every day," Rist said. "They were going on and on about how cool this was and that they were proud of what they had created."

Even though Rist wishes he could see his students in-person, he is excited for future projects that the club will come up with.

"I'm grateful that we have the opportunity to meet. It stinks for the seniors that this is their final experience with choir, but they are still putting their stamp on the program," Rist said.

LOANS: Local trends mirrored nationwide ones

The local trends mirrored what appeared to happen on the national level, the top two loan recipients received as much money as the bottom 52% of Keizer businesses.

Other highlights from the latest data include:

- Four businesses received more than $500,000 in payroll protection loans.
- Thirty-nine businesses received between $100,000 and $400,000 for a total of more than $7.6 million.
- The number of businesses, 236, that received less than $100,000 amounted to $6.64 million.

- The average loan amount was $64,580.23.

- Shari's Restaurant, with a location on River Road North, was one of only six Oregon companies to receive the maximum loan amount of $10 million. The chain reported saving 500 jobs with the payroll protection money.

Throughout Oregon, 66,100 businesses received more than $7 billion in CARES relief. Roughly a third of that amount went to 1.6%, or 258, recipients. The average loan for an Oregon business was $106,692.11.

VOTE: Keizer women performed well at home

Republican Danielle Bethell defeated Democrat Ashley Carson Cottingham in the race to replace outgoing Marion County Commissioner Sam Brentano. Bethell took 57.5% of the Keizer vote.

Keizer's closest city council race was decided by 314 votes. City Councilor-elect Kyle Juran and Michele Roland-Schwartz split Keizer's eight precincts evenly, each won four, but Juran's support in the north Keizer precincts carried him to victory.

While an operating levy that would have supported Marion County Fire District No. 1 (MCFD) failed to pass voter muster, the residents of Keizer whose homes are served by MCFD supported the tax. More than 53% percent of the roughly 1,348 voters gave it their blessing.

Of the four statewide ballot measures up for consideration, Keizer agreed with most of the state on all but one. The city's residents overwhelmingly approved measures to amend campaign finance regulations, increase taxes on tobacco and nicotine products and reduce criminal penalties for drug possession while redirecting some state revenues to pay for additional addiction recovery centers. However, 52.6% of Keizer voters opposed a measure that legalized psilocybin. The psilocybin measure passed in the statewide vote with 55.7% support.

The only local measure on the ballot was approval of a new city charter. Keizer approved the change with 65.9% percent of the final vote.

Turnout in the city averaged 77.5%. Precinct 401, which includes areas around Clear Lake and Forest Ridge elementary schools, notched the highest voter turnout with 86.72% of ballots returned.
