

KLL Park's future could be at Volcanoes Stadium

Plans include 'mini-Fenway'

By ERIC A. HOWALD
Of the Keizertimes

Volcanoes Stadium owners Jerry and Lisa Walker, as well as their son, Mickey - doing business as Love of the Game, LLC - could be the new managers of Keizer Little League Park if a proposal to do so earns the favor of the Keizer City Council.

Without any changes by the council, the current park would likely be razed and rebuilt on city-owned property near the stadium. The current park space would then likely be leased or sold.

The Walkers suggest selling or leasing the current site and combining the revenue with state funding to install 10-12 fields wrapping around

See KLL PARK, page 15

The owners of the Mavericks League are proposing to rebuild the Keizer's youth league fields at the stadium and add a scaled down Fenway Park replica to the mix. Photo courtesy Wikipedia

NEWSTAND PRICE: $1.00/ISSUE

SUBSCRIBER ADDRESS:

You say you want a revolution?

These ladies have a plan

By ERIC A. HOWALD
Of the Keizertimes

The cast and director of the newest Keizer Homegrown Theatre production, The Revolutionists, agree the play only became more relevant during its year-long delay from casting to stage.

"My character, Charlotte Corday, is part of a liberal political party that wants progress, but she dislikes the violence of the leader of another party that wants the same things," said Hannah Patterson, one of the production's four leads.

The Revolutionists revolves around Corday and three other women - playwright Olympe De Gouge, Marie Antoinette and Marianne Angelle - in the center of the French Revolution and trying to find a way forward. The play is mostly a comedy and some of the language might be considered too harsh for children.

Performances are slated June 3-5, 10-12 and 17-19. Showtime is 7 p.m. each evening outside on the patio behind the Keizer

Lemon Marin, Jessica Cavanaugh, Hannah Patterson and Kristin Andre (front) play a quartet of bold women in The Revolutionists. Costumes were made by Louise Biffle and Shaula Colson.

Photo by LYNDON ZAITZ
of Keizertimes

See LADIES, page 15