Brian Lea, of Lea Media Group, was installed as the 2021-22 president of the Rotary Club of Keizer at a banquet on Wednesday, June 23.

Other officers installed at the event, held at Log House Gardens, were Jason Lewis of Lewis Media Group, as president-elect, Alana Lang Neads of Willamette Valley Bank, as secretary, Craig Williams of Oregon State Credit Union, as treasurer. Jeff Davis of Edward Jones, who has served a 15-month term, becomes past president.

Board directors installed were: Dr.

Dave Anderson, dentist and owner of Keizer Smiles, Linda Baker of Keizer Homegrown Theatre, Amy McLeod, broker with Keller Williams Capital City, Kelly Walther of Grant Services of America and Lyndon Zaitz of the Keizertimes.

Out-going president Jeff Davis highlighted the club's activities in the past year which included wildfire relief efforts in the Sanitam Canyon, installation of fitness equipment at a number of Keizer parks as well as play equipment in the courtyard of Simonka Place.

Project ABLE, a group dedicated to providing peer support with mental health issues, held a learn-to-kayak event at Keizer Rapids Park Saturday, June 19.

About 30 people turned out at the first-time event, said Ramiro Navarro, veterans program coordinator for Project ABLE, and there were 25 kayakers in the water.

The event also drew the attention of the directors of the Oregon Department of Veteran Affairs, the Oregon Department of Fish & Wildlife and the Oregon State Marine Board.

"We found out the director of the marine board is a paralyzed veteran and he had some issues getting down to the dock. After a long conversation, they offered to help us with grants for making the dock ADA-accessible," Navarro told the Keizer City Council at a meeting Monday, June 21.

Any grant application would likely need to be recommended by the Keizer Parks Advisory Board and must be approved by the members of the council before moving forward.
