

Salem-Keizer School Board seeks public input on zone redistricting

The Salem-Keizer School Board has launched a public input period to gather feedback on alternative maps for revised school board zone boundaries.

The update to the zone boundaries, or "redistricting," is a process to distribute the population equally among electoral districts. This usually happens after the U.S. census, which takes place every 10 years. The census shows population growth or decrease in these areas, requiring population rebalancing to ensure equal representation. Special districts, such as school districts, collaborate with their communities on determining the updated school board zones.

Redistricting will not change school attendance area boundaries.

The board has two different proposals for redrawing the zones for the district. Proposed map alternatives for the Salem-Keizer School Board can be reviewed on the Salem-Keizer Public Schools' website (<https://salkeiz.k12.or.us>).
