My hope for McNary is to have a special place for every student to connect with one of our clubs, sports or McNary/Keizer community activities. This isn't a new wish for our students as we've been preaching this initiative for several years now, but for 2022, it is a major point of re-emphasis. This coming year we all need to work hard at coming together, seeking common ground and focusing our energies on building positive connections that are fun and constructive. It's both amazing and inspiring what McNary and the city of Keizer can accomplish when we put our minds and spirit together.

community as a whole.

Professionally, my goal is to lead our CASA organization through a successful re-accreditation process early in 2022 and grow our volunteer base for both CASA and Safe Families for Children, as well as grow the number of our Foster Parent Night Out sites. All of these together will help us serve more children and families in a holistic manner. Personally, I need to eat more veggies and walk more.

KEIZER CITY COUNCILOR DAN KOHLER

At this time of year, it is customary to look ahead and consider what we would like to accomplish this next year. I have been asked to do so as a member of the Keizer City Council, so, here goes.

Of course, there are the well-known items that could use attention: parks, public safety for all, homelessness and our water system will always rank high on the list of matters that need our vigilance and attention. If I were to look out a number of years and identify the one thing I would wish for, it would be an orderly expansion of our Urban Growth Boundary. Why? Well, people will continue to move here for all the reasons we like being here, we don't need to elaborate on them, let's just say there is a character and feeling and attitude in our community that says we are proud and happy to live here. We know that people will come and as of now we have very little land left to accommodate them. Land for homes and stores and perhaps even manufacturing-like businesses so we can have jobs for us all.

If we fail to accommodate them, there will be repercussions. Home prices will rise (not a good thing if we want our kids to be able to stay here) and eventually state land use regulators will insist we do something; and that something could change the very character of the city we love by trying to jam more people into the present boundary.

We can't ignore the issue and pretend it won't create bad choices later. I'm reminded of the answer to a question I asked one of Keizer's first city councilors, Phil Bay. I asked what he regretted not doing? He said he regretted not getting the third bridge built. I don't want to look back and know I could have done something to help insure a better future of Keizer.

So, my wish for 2022 is that we apply our full attention and put into action a plan to expand our Urban Growth Boundary to get ready for the population growth we know will come.

My biggest goal is for everyone to know and feel someone loves you.

KEIZER CITY COUNCILOR SHANEY STARR

I am hopeful that as a community we can set aside the divisive dialogue. I am hopeful that we can begin to engage again in civil discussion and not hide behind the veil of social media. It is great to have our individual opinions, but when we don't agree with someone we need to set aside the name calling and insults. What happened to seeking to understand by asking questions? What happened to asking how we get to yes? What happened to compromise? We still don't have to agree, but at least we will have made an earnest attempt at understanding each other and finding a win-win for the
