

Resolution Notice.

The partnership heretofore existing between J. A. Donnell and Dayton Elliott...

To Patrons.

Having bought Mr. Elliott's interest in the Review, together with all accounts due to the paper...

LOCAL, PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

THE PLANT PLANTS.

It begins to look like winter was close upon us.

WATER LUCKY LEFT.

Water Lucky left yesterday for Eugene, where he will spend the winter.

FARMERS IN SHERMAN AND WAGON.

Farmers in Sherman and Wagon counties are still thrashing.

GOAL BEAST IS IN DARKNESS.

The kitchen has all been sold up, the kitchen burner in the country fire, the candle supply has given out.

LONG WIFE HAS BEGUN DRIVING ON THE PRINEVILLE LANCE.

Robert Clark, of Beaver, was in town Thursday having supper for the winter.

MISS KETCHUM CLOSED A THREE MONTHS' TOUR.

Miss Ketchum closed a three months' tour of the Black Creek yesterday.

YOU CAN GET YOURS.

You can get your own price for each of the Black Creek's...

W. W. GARDNER AND HIS DAUGHTER.

W. W. Gardner and his daughter, Miss Annie, returned Monday from the States.

MAKES YOUR HOME BRIGHT AND CHEERFUL.

By buying lamps of Elkins at reduced prices.

MR. TYLE HAS THE CHEAPEST SHOES IN TOWN.

Raymond has stock and get his price.

EXAMINER CAN PAY THEIR SUBSCRIPTION TO THE REVIEW.

The Review is good wheat delivered at the following rates.

ATTORNEY G. W. BARNES LEFT LAST MONDAY.

He has been to argue a number of cases before the supreme court.

CALL AND SEE THE STYLISH LINE OF BATHING SUITS.

At the Black Creek, which are sold at greatly reduced prices.

ATTENTION IS DRAWN TO THE CASE OF PATRICK.

Patrick is a Scotchman who is not arguing his case in court.

THE PRINEVILLE MARKET.

The Prineville market is, for the quarter, a quiet one.

THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

The county commissioners were in session this week, hence no county business was transacted in court.

THE PRINEVILLE MARKET.

The Prineville market is, for the quarter, a quiet one.

THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

The county commissioners were in session this week, hence no county business was transacted in court.

THE PRINEVILLE MARKET.

The Prineville market is, for the quarter, a quiet one.

THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

The county commissioners were in session this week, hence no county business was transacted in court.

THE PRINEVILLE MARKET.

The Prineville market is, for the quarter, a quiet one.

THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

The county commissioners were in session this week, hence no county business was transacted in court.

THE PRINEVILLE MARKET.

The Prineville market is, for the quarter, a quiet one.

THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

The county commissioners were in session this week, hence no county business was transacted in court.

THE PRINEVILLE MARKET.

The Prineville market is, for the quarter, a quiet one.

THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

The county commissioners were in session this week, hence no county business was transacted in court.

THE PRINEVILLE MARKET.

The Prineville market is, for the quarter, a quiet one.

THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

The county commissioners were in session this week, hence no county business was transacted in court.

THE PRINEVILLE MARKET.

The Prineville market is, for the quarter, a quiet one.

THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

The county commissioners were in session this week, hence no county business was transacted in court.

THE PRINEVILLE MARKET.

The Prineville market is, for the quarter, a quiet one.

THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

The county commissioners were in session this week, hence no county business was transacted in court.

THE PRINEVILLE MARKET.

The Prineville market is, for the quarter, a quiet one.

THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

The county commissioners were in session this week, hence no county business was transacted in court.

THE PRINEVILLE MARKET.

The Prineville market is, for the quarter, a quiet one.

THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

The county commissioners were in session this week, hence no county business was transacted in court.

THE PRINEVILLE MARKET.

The Prineville market is, for the quarter, a quiet one.

THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

The county commissioners were in session this week, hence no county business was transacted in court.

Any person wearing a number 3 shoe or boot can get the same at 25 per cent discount from the cash price for cash only at the Brick Store.

You want reading matter for the winter, in fact you must have it, get the Review, the Review and the N. Y. World until Jan. 1, 1906 for 25 cents.

Richardson, the "them" train worker, is now wearing a coat at the Oregon penitentiary loaded with 10 pounds of iron, caused by his beating that he was an experienced jail breaker.

There is only one assessment in the A. O. U. W. lodge for this month, making fourteen for the first eleven months of the year, the cheapest justification thus far in the United States.

Dr. W. R. Boothart, mayor of The Dalles, and one of the most prominent citizens of that city, died at Summerville on October 31st. He was born in Beaufort county, and was 52 years of age.

Water Lucky left yesterday for Eugene, where he will spend the winter. We hope he will return in the spring for we cannot afford to lose so good a citizen as was Mr. Lucky.

Farmers in Sherman and Wagon counties are still thrashing. They have raised immense crops, but owing to low prices and the rains having damaged their grain, their profits will be light.

D. W. Colledge, of Eugene, secretary of the state board of equalization, goes to Salem next week to begin his work in preparing preliminary tables for the use of the board, which meets the first Tuesday in December.

Gold Beach is in darkness. The kitchen has all been sold up, the kitchen burner in the country fire, the candle supply has given out, the electric lights are not in operation, and the Gas company says the citizens are going to bed with the chickens.

In our last issue we mentioned that Mrs. Woods had again opened her saloon, but in this we were mistaken. Mrs. McMeekin is proprietor of the establishment. Her advertisement appears in today's paper. Read it, and then go and sample his goods.

It is stated that the Southern Pacific will be a bidder for the purchase of the Oregon Pacific property, to be sold on the 15th of next month. Should the S. P. Co. get the property, we need not expect to see the road built through this county for many years.

J. H. Crocker returned last Friday from Willamette valley, where he went several weeks ago with 21 head of horses for sale, with 15 of the animals, having been able to sell only six. He says a man has to be a pretty good rooster to even give a horse a way in this country.

There is still an uncertainty about the payment of some of the checks given by H. G. Rand for lost bought in this county. Those held by Howard & Strasser have been paid, and Charles Logan's will be honored, but it is uncertain if Frank Hampton will get his money.

Superintendent Hinchman, with D. W. Aldridge and C. H. Lewis as assistants, held the regular quarterly examination of teachers this week. The applicants were B. W. Ester, on examination for a state diploma, and A. C. Palmer, Frank Gardner and Miss Emma Ester for certificates.

Miss Frymark left this office a few specimens of vegetables that are by no means scarce. One turnip weighed 18 1/2 pounds, another 17 pounds and a rutabaga 10 1/2 pounds. They were raised on the desert east of Eugene, without irrigation, and the seed were sown in the middle of June.

Harry Cox arrived here from Albany by Monday stage, and has gone to Upper Crocker prior to look after his land and stock in that section. Mr. Cox says the outlook for farmers in Willamette valley is not flattering, and it is possible that he will leave his land in June, possibly to return to Crocker to reside.

The Lathrop Examiner man says he's been practicing shooting with his rubber mallet, and wants to give us a round at glass balls, provided we will go to Lakewood. Owing to the severity of the winter, we can't accept your challenge, but if you can scratch up enough to pay your expenses over here, we'll go you a round.

The undersigned have entered into a bond that they will not extend credit for money under any circumstances, and that they will not furnish meals for less than 25 cents each. The public will please take notice and not ask credit for it will be refused.

F. B. FORTMEYER.

An Obit.

George Dobson got home Monday from Marion county, having sold all the horses he took down. He made an auction sale at Silverton and realized very fair prices. He brought back a fine stallion, which is about the largest horse in the county, weighing something over 2100 pounds when in good condition.

C. E. Smith has finished the approaches to the "Stony grade" and the road is now open for travel. The cost of making the entire plan of road, nearly a mile in length, was about $1500. It is said to be an excellent piece of work, and is an improvement that will be of great benefit to a large number of settlers in the northern part of the county.

An agreement has been reached between the town and county authorities to promptly close the grade west of town. We understand the town will expend $60 in work and the county probably the same amount. Marshal Dobson with three men began operations yesterday on the grade. This is a much needed improvement, as the road is in bad condition, being unsafe for travel.

Hon. S. M. Gilmore, an Oregon pioneer of 1848, died in Sherman county last Monday. Mr. Gilmore has been prominently connected with public affairs of the Northwest for many years. He was a member of the Oregon constitutional convention, also of the convention which framed the constitution of Washington, and had served as a member of the legislative bodies of both states.

DISSOLUTION NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given, that the partnership heretofore existing between J. A. Donnell and Dayton Elliott...

THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

The county commissioners were in session this week, hence no county business was transacted in court.

THE PRINEVILLE MARKET.

The Prineville market is, for the quarter, a quiet one.

THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

The county commissioners were in session this week, hence no county business was transacted in court.

THE PRINEVILLE MARKET.

The Prineville market is, for the quarter, a quiet one.

THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

The county commissioners were in session this week, hence no county business was transacted in court.

THE PRINEVILLE MARKET.

The Prineville market is, for the quarter, a quiet one.

THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

The county commissioners were in session this week, hence no county business was transacted in court.

THE PRINEVILLE MARKET.

The Prineville market is, for the quarter, a quiet one.

THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

The county commissioners were in session this week, hence no county business was transacted in court.

THE PRINEVILLE MARKET.

A terrible catastrophe occurred in Portland on the morning of the 1st, resulting in the loss of seven lives. A street car went through the open draw of the Madison street bridge and plunged into the water below, carrying its load of human freight to the bottom of the river. A heavy log hung over the river, and the motor car could not run the open draw in time to stop the car.

Newspaper men in this state are getting a little "locking up" in the courts for publishing libelous matter. J. C. Lane, editor of the John Day Living Issue, was recently fined $500 for libeling Sheriff Coombs, of Grant county, and Mason & Watson, of the Mercury were convicted of libel in the Portland courts the other day for having published an article defaming the character of Col. G. K. S. Wood.

There is no show for a ball game this fall, about the only sport possible will be a shooting match. We can start up a team of three shotgun shooters who think they can break nine big rocks than any other three men in any of the adjoining counties, and are willing to back their judgment with a liberal deposit. Antelope ought to be able to send over three shooters. How about it, Bro. Hunt?

Yesterday Charles Elkins, Isaac Allen, C. W. Circle, V. Circle, A. Heiler, F. L. Kniffle, A. J. Noble and G. W. Solber, all of Prineville, Crocker county, stockmen, who sold their cattle to H. G. Rand, of Salt Lake City, and delivered them at Hamilton, presented their checks at the First National bank and received cash therefor in the sum of $21,000. Baker Times Journal.

These gentlemen, we understand, have been notified that the checks were protested, and may yet have to repay the Baker bank the money advanced.

Trap shooting is all the rage in Prineville just now. G. M. Elliott's trap and amusement company having arrived last Monday noon, Mr. Elliott hardly had time to get the apparatus out of the wagon before he was besieged by the Nimrods, all anxious to try their luck at the concrete pigeon. By 2 o'clock he had the concrete pigeons on the flat east of town, and the gunners were having great sport hanging away at his pigeon and dove rocks. The way the boys knocked 'em was ascriptive not only to the operators but to themselves. The sport is a new feature in Prineville, and one that will afford a whole lot of amusement.

It rarely happens that marriages resulting from matrimonial advertisements prove other than failures. John Dougherty, a farmer, aged sixty, living near Waterway, Wash., dropped his wife to death with a butcher knife, dragged her body to a wheat stack and partly concealed it with straw. Later he was found in a vacant house dying from exposure, and hunger. He said his wife poisoned his tea and threatened to dance over his grave. The woman was from Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and went to Waterway in answer to a matrimonial advertisement. Since their marriage they have had a cat-and-dog life.

The Antelope baseball nine will not be able to cross bats with the Prineville nine, both the 11th and 12th, as per agreement, owing to their pitcher, Jas. Cartwright, having joined the Prineville club last week. Our boys having depended on him up to the time they were prepared to go to Prineville, they were greatly disappointed. Antelope Herald.

It was a great disappointment to Prineville also, as nothing would have afforded us more pleasure than to have entertained the Antelope club a few days. However, there is another season coming, and our baseball friends from across the county line may yet have an opportunity of crossing bats with the Prineville, as we will try and offer a purse for a series of games next spring.

Was Not Indicted.

Salem, Or., Oct. 31, 1905.

Ed. Review.—The News, under date of Oct. 28, 1905, has a very interesting article on the trial of the extreme—to some people about myself. The publisher of the article says: "We know nothing of a case about the matter," which I assume to be the truth. But some people seem to have a desire to dictate more profusely on such matters. Now the facts are:

First, no U. S. grand jury has ever been called upon to inquire into the legality of my acts, and no indictment has ever been found against Mr. Moore (myself).

Second, I have not been restrained of my liberty for reasons in all my life.

Third, I paid all my own expenses when I left home, registered at the Hotel Perkins about 8 o'clock on Friday morning, Oct. 27, '05, in company with my former fellow-townsmen, J. C. Lacey, and Major Darrow; U. S. kmeyer almost continuously until I retired on each evening of Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 28th and 29th. Monday morning at about half past 8 o'clock I met Sheriff Booth at the depot, and came up to Salem on the same train with him, and am under no bonds to appear before any tribunal.

So soon as the cases now pending in the supreme court, appealed from Crocker county, can be heard, I will be at home, where, no doubt, with a few, spite and hatred dwell.

I expected before the supreme court today, and succeeded in getting the Crocker county cases docketed for Nov. 14th and 15th, and the supreme court clerk sent notices to the counsel interested in them cases today. The court will be very busy every day, and works till late at night on the cases argued during the day.

The weather is fine, and business seems fairly good. Business men are not complaining at all, but seem to be in good faith in saying business is improving.

DISSOLUTION NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given, that the partnership heretofore existing between J. A. Donnell and Dayton Elliott...

THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

The county commissioners were in session this week, hence no county business was transacted in court.

THE PRINEVILLE MARKET.

The Prineville market is, for the quarter, a quiet one.

THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

The county commissioners were in session this week, hence no county business was transacted in court.

THE PRINEVILLE MARKET.

The Prineville market is, for the quarter, a quiet one.

THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

The county commissioners were in session this week, hence no county business was transacted in court.

THE PRINEVILLE MARKET.

The Prineville market is, for the quarter, a quiet one.

THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

The county commissioners were in session this week, hence no county business was transacted in court.

THE PRINEVILLE MARKET.

The Prineville market is, for the quarter, a quiet one.

THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

The county commissioners were in session this week, hence no county business was transacted in court.

THE PRINEVILLE MARKET.

The Prineville market is, for the quarter, a quiet one.

THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

The county commissioners were in session this week, hence no county business was transacted in court.

THE PRINEVILLE MARKET.

The Prineville market is, for the quarter, a quiet one.

THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

The county commissioners were in session this week, hence no county business was transacted in court.

THE PRINEVILLE MARKET.

The Prineville market is, for the quarter, a quiet one.

THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

The county commissioners were in session this week, hence no county business was transacted in court.

THE PRINEVILLE MARKET.

The Prineville market is, for the quarter, a quiet one.

THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

The county commissioners were in session this week, hence no county business was transacted in court.

There seems to be a little clash of authority between the chief executive of the United States and our own state government as to who shall fix the date at which we shall call our business books and thank Almighty God for the honorable discharge of the nation's obligations. I would probably have been an act of "judicial courtesy" on the part of Sylvester to have waited a few days and to have allowed the delay of the strain on his nerves caused by the delay of a few more minutes, and given him an opportunity to fix the day. But he has now made a practice of extending every minute necessary to produce his way. In fact, he doesn't think that the president has much say about when and for what purpose the past twelve months. I would probably have been an act of "judicial courtesy" on the part of Sylvester to have waited a few days and to have allowed the delay of the strain on his nerves caused by the delay of a few more minutes, and given him an opportunity to fix the day. But he has now made a practice of extending every minute necessary to produce his way. In fact, he doesn't think that the president has much say about when and for what purpose the past twelve months. I would probably have been an act of "judicial courtesy" on the part of Sylvester to have waited a few days and to have allowed the delay of the strain on his nerves caused by the delay of a few more minutes, and given him an opportunity to fix the day. But he has now made a practice of extending every minute necessary to produce his way. In fact, he doesn't think that the president has much say about when and for what purpose the past twelve months. I would probably have been an act of "judicial courtesy" on the part of Sylvester to have waited a few days and to have allowed the delay of the strain on his nerves caused by the delay of a few more minutes, and given him an opportunity to fix the day. But he has now made a practice of extending every minute necessary to produce his way. In fact, he doesn't think that the president has much say about when and for what purpose the past twelve months. I would probably have been an act of "judicial courtesy" on the part of Sylvester to have waited a few days and to have allowed the delay of the strain on his nerves caused by the delay of a few more minutes, and given him an opportunity to fix the day. But he has now made a practice of extending every minute necessary to produce his way. In fact, he doesn't think that the president has much say about when and for what purpose the past twelve months. I would probably have been an act of "judicial courtesy" on the part of Sylvester to have waited a few days and to have allowed the delay of the strain on his nerves caused by the delay of a few more minutes, and given him an opportunity to fix the day. But he has now made a practice of extending every minute necessary to produce his way. In fact, he doesn't think that the president has much say about when and for what purpose the past twelve months. I would probably have been an act of "judicial courtesy" on the part of Sylvester to have waited a few days and to have allowed the delay of the strain on his nerves caused by the delay of a few more minutes, and given him an opportunity to fix the day. But he has now made a practice of extending every minute necessary to produce his way. In fact, he doesn't think that the president has much say about when and for what purpose the past twelve months. I would probably have been an act of "judicial courtesy" on the part of Sylvester to have waited a few days and to have allowed the delay of the strain on his nerves caused by the delay of a few more minutes, and given him an opportunity to fix the day. But he has now made a practice of extending every minute necessary to produce his way. In fact, he doesn't think that the president has much say about when and for what purpose the past twelve months. I would probably have been an act of "judicial courtesy" on the part of Sylvester to have waited a few days and to have allowed the delay of the strain on his nerves caused by the delay of a few more minutes, and given him an opportunity to fix the day. But he has now made a practice of extending every minute necessary to produce his way. In fact, he doesn't think that the president has much say about when and for what purpose the past twelve months. I would probably have been an act of "judicial courtesy" on the part of Sylvester to have waited a few days and to have allowed the delay of the strain on his nerves caused by the delay of a few more minutes, and given him an opportunity to fix the day. But he has now made a practice of extending every minute necessary to produce his way. In fact, he doesn't think that the president has much say about when and for what purpose the past twelve months. I would probably have been an act of "judicial courtesy" on the part of Sylvester to have waited a few days and to have allowed the delay of the strain on his nerves caused by the delay of a few more minutes, and given him an opportunity to fix the day. But he has now made a practice of extending every minute necessary to produce his way. In fact, he doesn't think that the president has much say about when and for what purpose the past twelve months. I would probably have been an act of "judicial courtesy" on the part of Sylvester to have waited a few days and to have allowed the delay of the strain on his nerves caused by the delay of a few more minutes, and given him an opportunity to fix the day. But he has now made a practice of extending every minute necessary to produce his way. In fact, he doesn't think that the president has much say about when and for what purpose the past twelve months. I would probably have been an act of "judicial courtesy" on the part of Sylvester to have waited a few days and to have allowed the delay of the strain on his nerves caused by the delay of a few more minutes, and given him an opportunity to fix the day. But he has now made a practice of extending every minute necessary to produce his way. In fact, he doesn't think that the president has much say about when and for what purpose the past twelve months. I would probably have been an act of "judicial courtesy" on the part of Sylvester to have waited a few days and to have allowed the delay of the strain on his nerves caused by the delay of a few more minutes, and given him an opportunity to fix the day. But he has now made a practice of extending every minute necessary to produce his way. In fact, he doesn't think that the president has much say about when and for what purpose the past twelve months. I would probably have been an act of "judicial courtesy" on the part of Sylvester to have waited a few days and to have allowed the delay of the strain on his nerves caused by the delay of a few more minutes, and given him an opportunity to fix the day. But he has now made a practice of extending every minute necessary to produce his way. In fact, he doesn't think that the president has much say about when and for what purpose the past twelve months. I would probably have been an act of "judicial courtesy" on the part of Sylvester to have waited a few days and to have allowed the delay of the strain on his nerves caused by the delay of a few more minutes, and given him an opportunity to fix the day. But he has now made a practice of extending every minute necessary to produce his way. In fact, he doesn't think that the president has much say about when and for what purpose the past twelve months. I would probably have been an act of "judicial courtesy" on the part of Sylvester to have waited a few days and to have allowed the delay of the strain on his nerves caused by the delay of a few more minutes, and given him an opportunity to fix the day. But he has now made a practice of extending every minute necessary to produce his way. In fact, he doesn't think that the president has much say about when and for what purpose the past twelve months. I would probably have been an act of "judicial courtesy" on the part of Sylvester to have waited a few days and to have allowed the delay of the strain on his nerves caused by the delay of a few more minutes, and given him an opportunity to fix the day. But he has now made a practice of extending every minute necessary to produce his way. In fact, he doesn't think that the president has much say about when and for what purpose the past twelve months. I would probably have been an act of "judicial courtesy" on the part of Sylvester to have waited a few days and to have allowed the delay of the strain on his nerves caused by the delay of a few more minutes, and given him an opportunity to fix the day. But he has now made a practice of extending every minute necessary to produce his way. In fact, he doesn't think that the president has much say about when and for what purpose the past twelve months. I would probably have been an act of "judicial courtesy" on the part of Sylvester to have waited a few days and to have allowed the delay of the strain on his nerves caused by the delay of a few more minutes, and given him an opportunity to fix the day. But he has now made a practice of extending every minute necessary to produce his way. In fact, he doesn't think that the president has much say about when and for what purpose the past twelve months. I would probably have been an act of "judicial courtesy" on the part of Sylvester to have waited a few days and to have allowed the delay of the strain on his nerves caused by the delay of a few more minutes, and given him an opportunity to fix the day. But he has now made a practice of extending every minute necessary to produce his way. In fact, he doesn't think that the president has much say about when and for what purpose the past twelve months. I would probably have been an act of "judicial courtesy" on the part of Sylvester to have waited a few days and to have allowed the delay of the strain on his nerves caused by the delay of a few more minutes, and given him an opportunity to fix the day. But he has now made a practice of extending every minute necessary to produce his way. In fact, he doesn't think that the president has much say about when and for what purpose the past twelve months. I would probably have been an act of "