NOTICE.

Owing to conditions in our city and at the request of several of the contestants' friends we have changed the date of ending our piano contest from May 16th to July 4th. The piano has arrived and has been placed on exhibition at Winck's.

OUR ENORMOUS EXPORTS.

It is estimated by the Treasury Department that the exports of the United States for the current year will reach the great total of $1,500,000,000. It is interesting to note the growth of our exports during the past four decades. In 1870, for the first time, the total reached the $500,000,000 mark; and it took twenty years longer for the figures to swell to $750,000,000. In 1897 they reached the grand total of one billion dollars, and a 50 per cent increase was recorded in the half-dozen years that followed. The growth of imports has been always steady, and during the last five years remarkably rapid. In 1895 our imports amounted to $705,205,586. Five years later they had reached $838,761,870, while for 1903 they amounted to $1,001,596,683. It is the ever-growing demand for manufacturers' materials that is responsible for this rapid increase. In the month of February last manufacturers' materials alone constituted more than one-half of the total imports.

Many an old timer in congress is waiting patiently for Binger Hermann's return to Washington and California members will gladly welcome him, for they bank on his valuable assistance in securing appropriations for rivers and harbors along the coast. He is an indefatigable worker for his state when in congress, and this state is greatly in need of his services. We will then have an experienced member in each house, Mitchell in the senate with vigorous Fulton to help him, Hermann in the house with J. N. Williamson, the brilliant young statesman from Eastern Oregon, working valiantly with him in the congressional harness. This will be a four-horse team that can pull any load to which Oregon may hitch them.—Eugene Register.

Shamrock the III, will sail for United States on the 30th of this month. From all accounts she is a fast boat, and we Americans will have to get up and hustle if we keep the cup on this side of the Atlantic any longer.

On the 11th day of April, 1873, the Melec Indians killed General Canby and Dr. Thomas, who were in a conference looking to a peace with them. On June 1st of the same year the murderers surrendered and in the following October were executed.

On March 9, 1862, the Monitor and the Merrimack met at Hampton roads and fought the greatest sea battle ever known up to that time. The result thoroughly revolutionized the construction of naval vessels from that day.

When the President reaches the Sound country he might deliver an address on brotherly love and the courtesy due one city to another.

On Monday, the first day of June, Hon. A. E. Reams, accompanied by one socialist and one prohibitionist, will go sailing up Salt River, owing to a lack of votes to give them seats as congressmen from the first district.

Today is presidential day in Oregon, provided no liches occur in the time schedule. Many will grasp the hand of our "Teddy" one of the best presidents this nation ever had.

CAPTIVITY OF THE OATMAN GIRLS

BY R. B. STRAITON

A STIRRING STORY OF 1850

CHAPTER X.

I always hated them, they will steal, and lie, and cheat. Do you think you will get away? I suppose you do. But these miserable Mohaves are going to sell you to another tribe; if they do not it will not be long ere they will kill you. O, I am very sad because you are going away, I hope to see you free in a short time; but I know you will never get back to the whites now. Suppose you will try, will you not?"

Olive replied: "We are captives and since our parents and all our kindred are dead, it matters little where we are, there or here. We are treated better than we deserve, perhaps, and we shall try to behave well, let them treat us as they may; and as to getting away, you know it would be impossible and foolish for us to try."

"The Mohave party professed that it was out of kindness to us that they had come to take us with them—that they knew of the cruel treatment we were suffering among the Apaches, and intended to use us well.

"This would all have been very comforting to us—and it was only to us they made this plea—had we been prepared to give them credit for the absence of that treachery which had been found, so far, as natural to an Indian as his breath. But their natures do not grow sincerity, and their words are to have no weight in judging of their characters. To us it was only gloom that lay upon our way, whether to the Mohaves, or to stay in our present position. Their real design it was useless to seek to read until its execution came.

"We found that sun-rise, which greeted us ere we had a moment's sleep, found the party prepared to leave, and we were coolly informed by our captors that we must go with them. Two horses, a few vegetables, a few pounds of beads, and three blankets we found to be our price in that market.

"We found that there were those among the Apaches who were ready to tear us in pieces when we left, and they only wanted a few more to unite with them, to put an end to our lives at once. They now broke forth in the most insulting language to us, and to the remainder of the tribe for bargaining us away. Some laughed, a few among the children who had received a care and attention from us, denied by their natural parents, cried, and a general howl rent the air as we started upon another three hundred miles' trip."

"We were informed at the outset, that we had three hundred and fifty miles before us, and all to be made on foot. Our route was soon found to be in no way preferable to the one by which the Apache village had been reached. It was now about the first day of March, 1852. One year had been spent by us in a condition the most abject, the most desolate, with treatment the most cruel that barbarity and hate could invent. And this all endured without the privilege of a word from ourselves to turn the scale in this direction or that, in a rugged, rocky country, filled with bare mountains or lesser hills, with slight vegetation, and that tame and tasteless, or irregular piles of boulders and gravel beds, we were now being hurried on under Indian guardianship alone. We knew not where nor for what purpose. We had not proceeded far ere it was painfully impressed upon our feet, if not our aching hearts, that this trail to a second captivity was no improvement on the first, whatever might be the fate awaiting us at its termination. We had been under tutorage for one whole year in burden bearing, and labor even beyond our strength, but a long walk or run (as this proved) we had not been driven to during that time.

"Mary Ann, poor girl, entered upon this trip with less strength or fortitude to encounter its hardships than the one before. She had not proceeded far before I saw plainly that she would not be able to stand it long. With the many appearances of kindness that our present overseers put on, yet they seemed to be utterly destitute of any heart or will to enter into the feelings of these who had brought up more delicately than themselves, or to understand their inability to perform the task dictated by their rough and hardy habits. Our feet soon became sore, and we were unable, on the second day about noon, to keep up with their rapid pace. A small piece of meat was put into our hands on starting, and this with the roots we were allowed to dig, and these but few, was our sole subsistence for ten days.

trary to our expectations, the daughter of the chief showed us kindness throughout the journey by sharing her blankets with us at each camp.

"Of all rough, uncouth, irregular and unattractive countries through which human beings trail, the one through which that ten days' march led us, must remain unsurpassed.

"On the eleventh day about two hours before sun-set we made a bold, steep ascent—and of such we had been permitted to climb many—from which we had an extensive view on either side.

"Before us commencing a little from the foot of our declivity lay a narrow valley covered with a carpet of green, stretching a distance, seemingly, of twenty miles. On either side were the high, irregularly sloped mountains with their foot hills robed in the same bright green as the valley, and with their bald bump-backs and sharp backs, treeless, verdureless and desolate, as if the tempest of ages had poured their rage upon their sides and summits.

"Our guides soon halted. We immediately observed by their movements and manifestations that some object beyond the loveliness that nature had strewn upon that valley, was enrapturing their gaze. We had stood gazing a few moments only when the smoke at the distance of a few miles, winding in gentle columns up the ridges, spoke to us of the abodes or tarrying of human beings.

"Very soon there came into the field of our steady view a large number of huts, clothing the valley in every direction. We could plainly see a large cluster of these huts huddled into a nook in the hills on our right and on the bank of a river, whose glassy waters threw the sunlight in our face—its winding zigzag course pointed out to us by the row of beautiful cottonwood trees that thickly studded its vicinity."

"Here, Olive," said Mary Ann, "is the place where they live. Oh isn't it a beautiful valley? It seems to me I should like to live here." "May be," said I, "that you will not want to go back to the whites any more." "Oh yes, there is green grass and fine meadows there, besides good people to care for us—these savages are enough to make any place look ugly, after a little time."

"We were soon ushered into the 'Mohave Valley,' and had not proceeded far before we began to pass the low, rude huts of the Mohave settlers. They greeted us with shouts, and dance, and song as we passed. Our guides kept up, however, a steady, unheeding march for the village, occasionally joined by fierce, filthy-looking children, who would come up, look rudely in our faces, fasten their deep set

"FIGURES TALK".

A Study in Arithmetic—Why you should Buy your Piano at Eilers Piano House.

Why not use the same business judgment in the purchase of a piano that you employ in buying an ordinary article?

There should be no mystery about piano buying or piano selling. The retail price of a piano consists of its cost to build, plus the cost of selling to the retail buyer.

By cost of selling is meant the expense of maintaining a store, freight drayage, advertising, salaries and commissions to salesmen, teachers, etc.

This being the case, it is evident that one store may be in position to name lower retail prices on the same grade of instruments than can others.

A little dealer, who sells but four or five pianos a month, cannot reduce the cost of selling much below $125 to $150 on each piano. Now can he buy his pianos at a close price from the makers.

The average large dealer does not sell to exceed 25 or 30 pianos a month. And if his total expense each month is, say, $3000, then it follows that his average cost of selling a single piano is also from $100 to $120.

Now comes the new method store, instead of selling a limited number at the old-time high prices, Eilers Piano House is organized to sell 150, yes 200 pianos each month. That means a selling cost of from $15 to $20 a piano. A direct saving to a retail buyer of a clean $100 to $120 on this item alone.

AT HALF MAST.

Sometimes we are greeted in the morning by flags at half-mast for some prominent official who yesterday was apparently in perfect health. When we inquire the ailment by which he was stricken it is not uncommon to be told "acute indigestion" or "stomach trouble."

It is time people learned that indigestion or any form of "stomach trouble" is not a thing to trifle with. The result may not be fatal, but there can be no condition of diseased stomach which does not carry with it physical loss and weakness.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures indigestion and other forms of disease affecting the stomach and its allied organs of digestion and nutrition. It enables the perfect digestion and assimilation of food.

"Accept no substitute for 'Golden Medical Discovery.' There is nothing 'just as good' for diseases of the stomach, blood and lungs.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation and its consequences.

Many persons suffer all their lives with headache and neuralgia, taking medicine until their digestion is ruined, not knowing the trouble is in the eyes, or perhaps one eye. Their vision is perfect, perhaps very acute, yet still the trouble is the eye. These are cases for the oculist. St. Vitus' dance is in almost every instance an ocular trouble alone. No nerve specialist will attempt to diagnose a case without examining the eyes. Headaches are unnecessary. Call on Dr. W. W. Taggart at the Poindexter Hotel for all ocular troubles.

$70 in Prizes

We Want to Know How Many Children in Oregon are Good Guessers

We are going to give seventy dollars in the form of cash prizes to find out what child can give the best reasons why Eilers Piano House can sell pianos as it does at from $100 to $150 less than any other dealer on the coast.

The 1st prize is $25.00 cash
The 2nd prize is $20.00 cash
The 3rd prize is $10.00 cash
The 4th prize is $4.00 cash
The 10 next are each $1.00 cash

This offer appears in the newspapers all over the state, and of course every boy and girl who reads it, wants to know what a good guesser they are. So read the questions we give and our advertisement in another part of this paper, they will help you. If you do not just exactly understand anything, ask some older person what they think. Then sit down and write your own conclusions yourself and send them to us.

Is there any difference between selling in large quantities or small quantities?
Can a dealer afford to make better prices in one case than in the other and if so, in which case?
Does it pay to ship pianos and organs in carload lots, and if so, why?
Is it more economical to ship them in boxes, does this save in weight and if so what difference does it make?

Many very bright and interesting letters are coming in and not a single child in Oregon wants to miss this opportunity of winning a prize. We want to hear from you all.

The gentlemen who have kindly consented to act as judges of the contest are Mr. C. I. Owen, managing editor Evening Telegram, and Mr. Tom Milburn, of the advertising department of the Oregonian. They will select a third from among the business men of Portland, of whose name will be announced next week.

Contest closes May 31st. Children 10 years old and younger eligible. Letters must contain not over 100 words.
