THURSDAY — July 2, 1903

From the commercial report in our Portland exchanges, paleontes will be a short crop in Oregon this year owing to small acreage planted.

Serving as King of Soraia and running amuck of the feuds in Kentucky, takes a stout heart; but we always find some one who for a name will take almost any kind of chances.

Uncle Sam's officials say there is a half million acres of government land fenced up in eastern Oregon that they are going to see is thrown open at once. If their estimate is any where near correct barb wire will be strung out for a while.

Sir Lipton is now upon our shores, and in a short time will try with his boat to wrest the cup trophy from America and take it home with him across the water. Sir Lipton is a true gentlemanly sportsman and if the cup ever has to go, we would rather see him get it than any one else, but still we hope he will be defeated.

Bids Rejected.

Some time ago the post office department advertised for bids for carrying the mail between Crook and Gold Springs, and when bids were opened they were rejected, for the reason shown in the following letter to Hon. J. N. Williamson, which we publish and is of interest to our people.

Washington D. C., June 17, 1903.

Hon. J. N. Williamson

Sir:

Referring to the advertisement of May 5, 1903, inviting proposals for carrying mail from Prineville, by Crook and Price (n. s.), to Old Spring, Oregon, and back, twice a week, from July 1, 1903, of which you were advised by this office on the date of its issuance, I have the honor to inform you that the lowest bid received in response to the advertisement was submitted by Chas. M. Kellogg, of Baker City, Oregon, at the rate of $144 per annum.

As the bid of Kellogg is considered entirely too high for the service required, and as his post office address is Baker City, a distance of about 150 miles from the route, no award of contract will be made.

The department cannot provide service until the people are sufficiently interested to submit a reasonable bid, either for the service as last advertised or as per previous advertisement inviting proposals for carrying the mail from Gold-spring, by Price (n. s.) to Crook.

Very Respectfully,

W. S. Schallmberger.

Second Ass't. Postmaster General.

Prineville is going to have one of the biggest celebrations of any town in the state, and the people that are so fortunate as to be with us on that day, will have nothing to regret.

The street parade is going to be simply immense and something worth witnessing. Hon. Fred Wilson of The Dalles will deliver the oration and those that have heard that gentleman speak know he has something good in store. The Prineville brass band will discourse music as well as the brass band from the Weymouth agency composed of Indians. The Indians from the Agency will also have a base ball team here on that day and will contest for the prize with our boys and perhaps Haystack and other places. The entire day will be spent in enjoyment and pleasure, and will wind up with a grand horse race between our two horse teams, after which the first ball will have been longed for will open up in Glazebell and dancing will continue until all are satisfied.

From Prineville to Klamath

Editor Review:

Thinking an account of our trip from Prineville to Klamath Falls would be of interest to some of your readers I give it to you briefly.

At half past six in the morning of June 14, we left Prineville and headed our way across the desert to Bend some 30 miles. On the way across the desert and just after ascending the hill out of Prineville we passed a field of wheat and rye and then farther on a field of rye where we had been told nothing would grow without water. Soon found us at Statis place on the Deschutes where we staid an hour and hitching up proceeded on our way.

Leaving the river a little to the right we travelled through a fine body of yellow pine timber for 17 miles, when we again struck the Deschutes river at the Big Meadows. We then travelled up the river the remainder of the afternoon through a thickly settled and prosperous country, and evening brought us to Dick Vandever's place where we camped for the night.

Next morning we started bright and early travelling up the Deschutes until we came to the Paulina valley, when we stopped for an hour or two looking over the surrounding country. This is a pretty little valley about ten miles long and one mile wide and a fine meadow section. Proceeding on our way we came to the willow ranch station. Here a nice sight met our gaze, as the buildings and out houses are of the very best, and the meadow with the rich green grain waving to and fro in the breezes made it a picture pleasant to behold. The Willow ranch is always remembered by the weary traveller as here fine meals can be had and the best of attention given to both man and beast. We leave the river at this point and travel up through a beautiful long prairie rich with abundance of grass and pasture until we came to Roseland; then we take the road to the right for about a half an hour when we find ourselves again in the yellow pine belt, travelling through timber whose very tops appear to pierce the skies, and evening finds us at the Graves ranch on the little meadows at the head of the east Deschutes river.

Getting an early breakfast we were on the road when the sun came peeping over the hills. We travelled southward for some 25 miles to Beaver Marsh, west of the distance through black pines with a fine belt of yellow pine stretching out on either side of us only about a mile distant. No sooner arrived we made camp and after both horse and man are rested we again started on our journey and for 14 miles we travelled through a flat sandy country covered with black and yellow pine until we came to Charley Lenzen's place in Klamath marsh. Here is one of the finest meadow lands ever seen, and cannot be excelled as a hay producer in any section.

Next we came to Klamath Agency and the north end of the lake and for the next 20 miles we travelled along looking at the finest country lying out of doors, snow capped peaks in the distance as well as watching the grand body of water flowing on its onward course to its destination.

The town of Klamath Falls is beautifully located and shows energy and push as their buildings are first class. A fine water system has been installed in the city as well as electric lights, all first class and up to date.

Water flows directly through the town, which is about a mile long and a quarter wide, and the power that can be obtained therefrom is practically unlimited. Klamath Falls is situated about 40 miles from a railroad and is connected with it by a daily stage line.
