Wisdom of Solomon.

Teacher—Who was the wisest man? Little Boy—Solomon.

Teacher—Give an example of his wisdom. Little Girl—He had 600 wives.

A Fish That Weighed a Ton.

At Arenale, near Palermo, they have just caught a very rare fish indeed. The fish weighed a ton. It was three yards long, two yards deep, weighed a ton and had a skin tougher than a costermonger's donkey, since hammers couldn't break it. The fishermen say that few people see the "tub fish" in a life time.

HELP WANTED.

WANTED—A person of good character to represent established business in various cities. Send for catalogue. Mrs. J. Holt, Ft. J. Principal.

Woman's Rights.

Stox—Do you believe in women having the same rights as men?

Stagg—Yes, I do. There was one food in front of where I sat in a car today and I tripped all over my feet, and if she'd been a man I would have hit her one, sure.

Wooden Cannon Exploded.

A wooden cannon used in the representation of a play at Greenwald's opera house, in Fort Worth, Texas, exploded during the performance and killed one of the audience.

SHED NO NONSENSE

Real Gratitude—Tramp (to Chapple, who has given him a shilling)—"I owe you some day, sir, you may have a shilling, but I'll be able to give it to you!"—Punch.

Glady's—Papa, do you suppose that the Parisians will understand my French? Papa—I can't say, Glady's; if you speak French as fast as you speak English they won't even know it is French.—Indianapolis Journal.

"Do you ever stay out late and worry your wife?" asked the young woman. "Sometimes," answered Mr. Meekton in a contrite tone. "I don't remember I ever stayed home to dinner until quarter past 6."—Washington Star.

"What's your husband doing now?" asked the neighbor. "Well," answered Mrs. Corossel, "he's in the city, and he's got a job at the office."—Washington Star.

Mrs. Nagby (impatiently calling)—Nora, drop everything at once and come to me! Nora—Yes, ma'am. Mrs. Nagby—Now, what's the matter with you? Nora—I've got a headache. Mrs. Nagby—What's the matter with you, ma'am?—Glasgow Evening Times.

To send away—"Well, that caps the climax." "What's that?" "Cook says those folks in that little house on the corner came over while we were gone and had their photographs taken sitting on our veranda."—Indianapolis Journal.

His Own Interpretation—Why, Johnny, I'm ashamed of you! How could you take little Ethel's half of the apple away from her?" "Gee, ma, I ain't forgot what you told me—to always take sister's part."—Philadelphia Evening Bulletin. "Then you regret being an old maid?" "Yes, I do. I might as well have been drowned by a husband and six children and my own as to be at the end of all the husbands and children of all my sisters and intimate friends."—Chicago Record. The Landlady—Oh, Mr. Strivers will come back fast enough. There's no danger of his leaving this house. He knows on which side his bread is buttered. The Undisciplined Boarder (sotto voce)—When he is away from here—oh, yes, very likely.—Boston Transcript. What He Expected to Do—Would you take our darling daughter from us? tearfully asked the mother. "Why, yes," replied the startled youth. "That was my idea. I—I really hadn't contemplated taking the whole family, you know."—Chicago Evening Post. Towne—Colonel Hunt told me he had spoken to the governor about a job for you. Brown—Yes; that was some time ago. Towne—Didn't his influence have any weight with the governor? Brown—I guess it had weight enough, judging from the result.—Philadelphia Press. Mr. Stubb—Stubb, dear, you needn't wait for me to-night. Mrs. Stubb—But what will you do for a light, John? Mr. Stubb—Oh, I'll just take a piece of your bread in my pocket. That's light enough for me to carry. And she wasn't pleased that she obey him to the letter. "I will say," remarked the young woman, "that he is not afflicted with that self-consciousness which marks the man never before crowned the endeavors of man. The nearer one approaches the pole, the greater the difficulties. To advance a single mile is often a physical impossibility on account of the order of things. It may represent the labor of weeks under conditions which would appall any but the stoutest hearts and exhaust all but the most robust physiques. The North Pole described. "What is the North Pole about which so much is heard? An answer to this question is found here: It is simply the mathematical point which marks the northern termination of the axis of the earth. It is a place where there are 90 degrees of latitude, or none, and 360 degrees of longitude, or none at all, just as one prefers to look north or south, or east or west, whichever way he stepped. There is no north, no east, no west. Should he stand at the pole for a year he would have but one night and one day. The sun would rise on March 21 and set on Sept. 21, not to rise until the following March. "After circling," says a writer, "the sun would circle through the heavens as if rolling along the horizon, ascending every twenty-four hours a little higher, until on June 21 it would be 23½ degrees above the horizon. Then it would gradually sink until sunset, Sept. 21. During the night at the pole all the heavenly bodies would move in horizontal circles instead of oblique circles as here." There will be nothing to designate the pole when it is reached, except the observations which fix the geographical position. The explorer takes frequent observations of the sun along his route to determine his latitude and longitude. By computation he should know when he has reached the earth's apex. The series of observations are afterward corrected whenever the exploring party reaches the base of operations or wherever the standard chronometer is left. Peary, for example, who is now in the north, and may have reached the pole, corrected his observations for different times, and showing the Greenwich mean time, Washington mean time, and one rated at some convenient camp, and indicating the local time at that place. By this chronometer his more northern observations would be computed, with corrections or errors added or eliminated, thus to indicate precisely the places of observation. Forced to Become Citizens. In France they manage the habitual criminal question better than in any other country in the world. For instance a pickpocket, a professional beggar or a habitual drunk and disorderly is brought up for his or her fourth

ARCTIC RESEARCH

A Young Prince of the House of Savoy Reaches the Farthest Point North Yet Touched.

HERE is a fascination about Arctic exploration which nullifies the dangers and privations, and impels adventurous men to brave the terrors of the frozen solitudes and nations in general rivalry to send expedition after expedition to wrest from the ice-locked bosom of the North the secret which it has guarded successfully since the creation of the world. Little by little, one degree after another has yielded to the determined heroism of man, but the goal is still 200 miles distant. It is doubtful if the contribution to science and geographical knowledge resulting from the discovery of the North Pole would be commensurate with the awful loss of life and vast expense attending the effort to reach it. But love of adventure, honorable ambition to achieve what so many have failed to accomplish, and man's conquering spirit which cannot rest while any obstacle remains to overcome, have induced scores of attempts which hitherto have failed of the main purpose, but not weakened the determination of others to battle with the awful sol-

DUKE ABRUZZI'S ROUTE TO THE POLAR REGIONS.

The map illustrates the route of Duke Abruzzi's expedition from the Mediterranean Sea, through the Kara Sea, and towards the North Pole. Key locations marked include the Mediterranean Sea, Kara Sea, and the North Pole. The route is shown as a dashed line, indicating the path of the expedition.

terrible rigors, and enormous difficulties of the unknown North.

The latest expedition has been the most successful of all. The Duke of Abruzzi, a young scion of Italian royalty, has recently returned from a voyage of exploration which penetrated far into the polar regions than man has ever been before to the knowledge of the world. Even Nansen, the intrepid, who, until Abruzzi's voyage had been the farthest north, did not get nearer than 200 miles of the pole, a distance, to be sure, less than that of New York to Buffalo, but 19 miles of latitude, or twenty miles, short of the pole. The expedition was led by the Duke of Abruzzi, who is a scion of Italian royalty, and has recently returned from a voyage of exploration which penetrated far into the polar regions than man has ever been before to the knowledge of the world.

BECOMES LADY LEE.

American Woman Becomes a Member of the British Nobility.

Another American woman has become a member of the British nobility, but not through the usual process. She did not exchange a fortune for a title. Some years ago Mrs. De Wolf T aylor of New York married Austin Lee, a young English diplomat officer. He has just secured the order of Knighthood from the queen and his wife has become Lady Lee. She is one of the most beautiful and brilliant women of the English-speaking colony at Paris, where her husband is second secretary of the British legation. Formerly she was the close friend and confidante of the Countess de Castellane and helped the latter through the intricacies that beset her when she went to France as a bride and entered Paris society. The friendship of the women terminated abruptly last summer after the Prince of Wales had been ordered to depart from the Castellane yacht. The prince rather ignored the countess for the more attractive and vivacious Mrs. Lee, whereupon the countess asked Mrs. Lee to leave the yacht. The request was promptly complied with and since then the women have not spoken.

S. S. S. is the only safe and infallible cure for this disease, the only antidote for this specific poison. It cures the worst cases thoroughly, and permanently. My Condition Could Have Been No Worse.

It is a fact of my life that I have never been so well as I am now. I was getting worse all the time; my hair came out, ulcers appeared in my throat and mouth, my body was almost covered with copper-colored spots and offensive sores. I suffered severely from rheumatic pains in my shoulders and arms. My condition could have been no worse; only those afflicted as I was could understand my sufferings. I had almost lost all hope of ever being well again when I decided to try S. S. S. and must confess I had little faith in my medicine. After taking the third bottle I noticed a change in my condition. This was only the beginning of my recovery. I was cured in a few days. I am now as well as I ever was. ### Death Statistics of Washington.

Forty sudden deaths occurred in Spokane county, Wash., during 1900. Of these 22 were due to accident, 10 were suicides, five were caused by sudden attacks of heart disease and apoplexy. The small number of sudden deaths may mean the elaboration of the toxins. It has been stated that the production of the characteristic flavors of game is related directly to the amount of sulphureted hydrogen or sulphurated steam, but it is rather repulsive to think that the delicate flavor of the game is dependent upon that invariable product of decomposition of rotten eggs—sulphureted hydrogen. The small amount of sulphurated steam of "high" game is even more disgusting.

Fresh game sometimes sets up mysterious, poisonous symptoms, which has been attributed to the fact of the game having been overhunted and fattened. Fatigue products, indeed, have been separated from overhunted game, which, when injected into a healthy animal, have produced marked poisonous effects. There is no doubt that fatigue products under certain circumstances are also elaborated in the human body and give rise to a species of self-poisoning, characteristic symptoms of which are headache, stupor and a feeling of exhaustion. A question well worth considering in relation to the wholesomeness of animal foods and emphasizes the importance of slaughtering animals intended for food in the most humane way.—London Lancet.

Compressed Air for Canal Locks.

On the Erie canal at Lockport, N. Y., a pneumatic balance lock is being constructed for a flight of old-fashioned stone locks, says the Youth's Companion. The new lock consists of two steel chambers one for ascending and the other for descending boats. Each chamber is divided into two parts, an upper one containing water to receive the boats and a lower one containing compressed air on which the upper chamber floats. As a boat has been run into the upper chamber it is either lowered or raised, as may be desired, by filling or exhausting the air chamber beneath it.

Easy to Stir Up Trouble.

It is always much easier to preach doubt than faith.

Will Not Rebuild.

Gray & Gray, who owned the steam flouring mill at Palouse, Washington, which burned two months ago, have decided not to rebuild. They have bought the large steam mill at Oakland, which will be refitted and some new machinery added. The Oakland mill is one of the largest and best in the Palouse country, but has been idle for a number of years except in the fall of the year, owing to the fact that it was owned by an estate and was in litigation.
