ECZEMA'S ITOH IS TORTURE.

Ecrems is caused by an acid humor in the blood coming in contact with the skin and producing great redness and in-flammation; little pustular eruptions form and discharge a thin, sticky fluid, which dries and sin es off; sometimes the skin is hard, dry and fissured. Ecrems in any form is a tormenting stubborn disease. form is a tormenting, stubborn disease, and the itching and burning at times are almost unbearable; the acid burning numor seems to coze out and set the skin on fire. Salves, washes nor other external applications do any real good, for as long as the poison remains in the blood it will keep the akin irritated.

VACCINATION.

How the Discovery of the Preventive Vir a Was Made and Applied. During the eighteenth century it was talk among the country peo ple of England and Scotland that milkers of cows never had the smallpox.
At a time when this disease was one of the scourges of Europe such a school for the rest of the day, fact naturally attracted attention. In the summer-time the bo Physicians in the cities did not regard the country notion as worthy of notice. When an epidemic threatened they inculated healthy persons with smallox virus to give them the disease. Then it was treated from the start under favorable conditions. The chief nocuinted person certain he was to be seriously ill, while the uninoculated night possibly escape. Jonathan Edards was one of the famous victims

It was left for an obscure country hysician, Dr. Jenner, to recognize the ientific importance of the tradition about the immunity of milkers. By and from time to time he receives his certificates of deposit.

The girls are taught knitting and all protection against smallpox. He wrote a pamphlet on his experiments and sent it to the Royal College of Physical College of Physic cians in London. The manuscript was tation, all in the room doing the same returned with a contemptuous reply.

The discovery was of too great importance not to make an impression, and during the fifth year after his first vacination Jenner and other doctors vac inated 10,000 persons in England. In spite of the success of the process there were many in the early part of the century who doubted its efficacy. The experience of the last thirty years has demonstrated the value of vaccinaion beyond the possibility of doubt In Chemnitz, Germany, a city of 64. 000 inhabitants, there was a smallpox epidemic in 1870-71. About 54,000 of the inhabitants had been vaccinated. Only 1.8 per cent of them contracted the disease. Of the unvaccinated more than 46 per cent were ill. Among the vaccinated less than I per cent of the cases resulted fatally. Among the unrotected the percentage was above 9. Statistics of the armles in Franco-Prussian war show the same general esults. The German soldlers were ere not. During a wide-spread epi-refully vaccinated, while the French nic of smallpox the German lost aly 450 men from the disease, while French lost 23,400. In general it has been shown that the danger of in-fection is six times as great and the portality sixty-eight times as great in he unvaccinated as in the vaccinated. Vaccination is compulsory throughut most of Europe. In France the law s loosely enforced and the London Daily Mail is authority for the statenent that 14,000 Frenchmen die annually from the disease, while it caries off only 110 Germans a year.
