United States District Attorney Hale is taking steps to have the decree of Judge Bellinger, in the case of the United States vs. Jesse D. Carr, carried out, says the Oregonian. He will have the fence around the Government lands inclosed by Carr torn down. As there are 15 or 20 miles of rock fence in the lot, about five feet in width and four feet in height, the United States Marshal or United States troops, or whoever may be sent to tear it down is likely to have an all summer job on hand, especially as Mr. Hale says the rock fence is to be destroyed as was the Tower of Babel, or the Temple of Babylon, or perhaps it was the Temple of Jerusalem (Mr. Hale is not well posted in Biblical matters) of which not one stone was left upon another. The miles of barbed-wire fencing will be rolled up like a scroll, but the rim rock cliffs which form a part of the fence will not be molested. Mr. Carr, however, is still in position of the lands, with the exception of a calf pasture of some 5000 acres, and the end of the trouble is not yet.

The State Board of Text-Book Commissioners has filed a supplementary report with the State Board of Education reporting the further adoption of text-books. The work thus adopted is "The National Spelling Book," published by D. C. Heath & Co. The introductory and retail price of the work is 5 cents. This completes the work of the Text-book Commission, and as the contracts are now signed with the State Board of Education it now devolves upon the book publishers having the contracts to place their books in the several depositories designated by the state law, creating the Text-book Commission and providing for the depositories to be established in every county in the state. There books must be deposited by the publishers and kept on sale at the contract prices, and there old books heretofore in use in this state may be exchanged for the new selected by the Commission to take their place.

The depositories for Crook county are Ashwood and Prineville. The incorporation of the Klamath River Irrigation and Power Co., indicates the construction of the most important enterprise ever contemplated in Klamath county. The capital required necessary to commence operations is about $50,000, of which $15,000 is already guaranteed and negotiations pending for the balance. As the start the company will put in an electric power plant below Keno, sufficient to generate 1500 horse power, which will be conveyed by wires on a three line system, to all points in Klamath valley, and sold for the purpose of being reconverted into mechanical power to be used in pumping water for irrigation or any other purpose requiring power. The company will furnish electric lights anywhere in the valley, and heat will be supplied for warming houses, for cooking, etc., at less cost, it is claimed, than where wood at $3 a cord is used. If the negotiations for capital now pending result successfully, construction work will be under way very soon.

To a disinterested observer, the Oregon situation at this time seems to favor the granting of the demands of the eastern section. These demands have been long deferred. The residents of that portion of the state that lies east of the Cascades have borne with remarkable patience the arrogance of the Western Oregon politicians who have taken to themselves virtually all of the positions of influence, throwing out occasionally some small crumbs to their heremen in order that they might buy their acquiescence in a political program formulated upon the principle of taxation without representation.

It is this principle that is especially obnoxious to the Eastern Oregon people. One-third of the people live there; yet, notwithstanding this, the names of state officers elected from the east of the Cascades could be written on a slip of paper no larger than a silver dollar.

If it were merely a question of the distribution of the spoils of office, thinking men in neighboring states would pay little heed to the campaign for recognition now being prosecuted so vigorously by Eastern Oregon. But, besides this, is the question of the practical disfranchisement of one-third of the voters of a state, and this is a warrant for the strenuous demands that seem to promise some substantial results in the coming election—Walla Walla Statesman.

There are many fish in Rogue river at present and the hatchery located in Trail creek precinct is kept busy. During the past year about 4,000,000 salmon eggs were taken from fish there. Of these, about 2,500,000 eggs were retained and hatched at the station, where the young salmon were fed until they were three or four inches in length before being planted in the river. A half million of the eggs taken were silver salmon and steelhead trout. All of the silver salmon were planted in Rogue river, as were also about one-half of the steelheads. The other half were shipped to various points in the East, one shipment being made to Tuxedo Park, the famous resort near New York city.—Jacksonville Times.
