THURSDAY, SEP. 5, 1901.

The war in South Africa, it is announced, will henceforth be merciless. Evidently, Chamberlain considers it has been quite mild during the past two years.

Agricultural Department officers say that our timber, as a commercial factor, will be destroyed in another fifty years, perhaps sooner, unless steps are taken to replant and raise and harvest timber on common sense principles just as with other crops.

The Democratic managers are trying to persuade the health officers of the District of Columbia to permit them to move the Kansas City platform to that section in connection with the rest of headquarters. Permission is doubtful, as the platform is undoubtedly rather "high."

An English locomotive thirty years old is still in service, causing thereby great pride in British bosoms. As a matter of fact, they ought to be ashamed to use such a pathetically behind the times old machine. Engines built ten years ago are as much out of date today as are bows and arrows.

The Steel Trust is certainly within its rights when it insists that, before it begins to negotiate, the Amalgamated Association shall be incorporated so that it can be sued for breach of contract, in case it does not keep its agreements. It is not denied that the members of that Association have deliberately violated their contracts in the present strike.

A few years ago, when employers first recognized the unions and signed contracts with them, the fact was hailed as a great victory for labor. Now these some contracts are denounced in many quarters by the men who declare they are mere traps to prevent sympathetic strikes. In too many cases it appears that the men want contracts that bind only one party to the bargain.

In commenting on the land leasing scheme now being promulgated by the big stock concerns of the middle west the Pendleton Tribune has the following to say: "No good can come to Eastern Oregon by withdrawing from settlement a large part of its lands. The question is steadily being solved by private ownership and in a few years all mountain ranges will be contributing to the tax funds of the counties and states. To lease the lands means a temporary halt in the development of the state, in order to give corporations or cattle kings an opportunity to become richer. The land under their control will not be improved and their values will not be increased as they would be if owned by private individuals. No country is ever developed by the very wealthy classes. It is the well-to-do who advance a state's growth. The capitalist lives in a large city and regards his Western estates only as financial investments. The value of his land is measured only by the interest it produces on his capital. No values are added because of home facilities. The same large tract of land divided into small farms would perhaps support hundreds of families and become doubled in value. The same would be true under a lease law. Withheld from the use of the man who would improve it by the sweat of his own brow, the great tracts of our lands yet unowned would not become as valuable to the state as if allowed to pass gradually to private ownership as they are now doing."

The editor of this rag has had his outing and, greatly refreshed therefrom, is ready for another year's collaboration with the scissors and paste pot. Our recreation consisted in eating a chicken dinner that was cooked on a campfire in the back yard.—Hrney County News. We have also had our annual outing which consisted in eating a Sunday chicken dinner out in the country with our mother-in-law.—Antelope Republican. Having neither a mother-in-law nor a back yard we are forced to content us with a chicken dinner—some time in the future.

Now is the time for the people to prepare petitions for new post offices and other things that they want brought before Congress this winter. Besides this is an opportune time to present such petitions, for there is an election coming on soon and those that are in are wanting to stay in and some that are not in are wanting to get in, so that the people will meet with better success than ordinarily.

Vol. 1 No. 1 of Public Land, a weekly paper published at Spokane, Wash., is on our table and is well worthy the patronage of all persons interested in our public domain. It fills a long felt want and we speak for it the success it deserves.

KEEP COOL

You don't have to go to the Arctic regions to be refreshed. Ice cream or ices are much more delicious when the appetite is sharp—when you are hot. It takes only a minute to squeeze a few lemons and add some sugar and water. Three minutes after you can have a delicious lemon ice, if you use a

PEERLESS ICELAND FREEZER (One Motion)

Patented dasher construction does away with all motions except one—the can revolves around the stationary dasher.

Motion is necessary in the cream not in the machine.

The cream has more motion in the Peerless Iceland than in any other freezer.

The result is smooth, delicious ice cream in three minutes.
