Put Them Out and Keep Them
 Out.

"Put them out and keep them out," is the legend at the bottom of a cartoon in the New York Tribune, in which Justice, with a drawn sword, points to an anarchist standing in front of a substantial edifice representing civilization, with a dagger inscribed "murder" in one hand, and a lighted bomb in the other and a copy of Emma Goldman's speeches and writings protruding from his pocket.

"Put them out and keep them out," says Justice, as she stands at the open portals of the temple of liberty and points abhorrently at the miscreant and assassin. Ay, put them out and keep them out. This is the universal statement of American civilization. If the constitution stands in the way change the constitution, but put them out and keep them out.

We have numerous islands in the far Pacific which can be denuded of their native inhabitants where this spawn of the bottomless pit might be permitted to experiment with their lawless creed to their heart's content. Let them have abundance of food to start with so that physical weakness shall not impede the progress of their ideas and liberty. Give them guns and daggers and dynamite and rope, and unrestrained liberty to use them as they will. Give them a printing press so that they may be enabled to inflame the mind and incite enthusiasm to the pitch of yellow madness. Give them, besides, the implements of industrial life and whatever is humanely necessary to enable them to live and reform if they so will. Then draw a cordon around the island and let no man escape for ever. This would solve the problem of anarchism, so far as those convicted of crime is concerned. Will any less drastic measure ever do so?—Dallas Chronicle.

An Oregon newspaper says the law of this state providing for the payment of bounty money for coyote scalps "is an infamous measure." If this charge is true, then the further allegation of the paper that the author of the bill does not deserve the support of the valley voters for any position is fully justified. It would also be true that every member of the legislature who voted for the bill, enacting this law, is unworthy of the votes of any part of the state for any office. Any legislator who would vote for an infamous measure should be shunned by his fellow men. Of course, the paper which made this statement did not mean what it said. It probably knows that laws of the scalp-bounty act are common in nearly all civilized countries. There may be features of this law which deserve criticism, and there may be difference of opinion as to the advisability of such legislation, but it is wrong to denounce such a law as infamous. It is one of the innumerable similar charges which tend to destroy respect for law and confidence in our government.—Luna Northwest.

We suppose they are still having a tempest in a coffee pot down in South Africa. They can't have one in a tea pot, because nobody there drinks tea.

Secretary Gage is buying bonds to prevent accumulations in the Treasury that might cause injurious contractions in the currency. Let's see, how many bonds did Cleveland buy during his two terms?

Mr. Lentz, of Ohio, declares that the Republicans restored to extraordinary means to defeat him at the last election. Well, they were certainly justifiable, no matter how extraordinary they were.

The steel strike had little or no justification in the beginning: it proceeded on lines that did not commend it to popular sympathy; and now it is foolish enough not to know when it has been killed. Truly, the men will have to pay high for Shaffer's folly.

The platforms of the western states are being scanned with a good deal of interest to see whether they favor reciprocity or not. The general impression they convey is, that, in their opinion, it is best to let well enough alone, for the present at any rate.

The followers of the late Mr. Goebel, of Kentucky, are declaring publicly for a gerrymander of the state that will forever prevent the republican from controlling the legislature. Such things have been done before, but seldom, indeed, is the intention to do them, so frankly admitted.

Attorney General Knox showed a good deal of wisdom in refusing to detail counsel to assist Assistant Secretary Hackett in his case against Schley. Neither Mr. Knox nor any other member of the Administration, with the possible exception of Secretary Long, has taken any part in the unfortunate affair. Indeed, there is reason to believe that all the cabinet except Mr. Long sympathize with Schley—and Long probably would do so had he not been prejudiced in advance by Crowninshield's machinations.

KEEP COOL

You don't have to go to the Arctic regions to be refreshed. Ice cream or ices are much more delicious when the appetite is sharp—when you are hot. It takes only a minute to squeeze a few lemons and add some sugar and water. Three minutes after you can have a delicious lemon ice, if you use a

PEERLESS ICELAND FREEZER (One Motion.)

Patented dasher construction does away with all motions except one—the can revolves around the stationary dasher.

Motion is necessary in the cream not in the machine.

The cream has more motion in the Peerless Iceland than in any other freezer.

The result is smooth, delicious ice cream
