

Additional Locals.

Enoch Cyrus was in from Haystack the fore part of the week and reports farming in full blast in that section.

Robt Bixby, a former resident of Buck creek, has moved with his family to Burns. They occupy the Calkins residence in Morrison's addition. —Burns Times-Herald.

Mrs. N. W. Wallace will be removed to The Dalles Hospital, as soon as she has regained sufficient strength to stand the trip. Her improvement has been rapid for the past few days. —Antelope Herald.

Several loads of shingles were brought to town the first of the week, besides there are two mills in town and all are behind with orders. This shows that our town is building a little this spring.

Jack Doe was over from Willow creek Tuesday and paid this office a pleasant call. He informed us that he had finished moving his sawmill from the old stand to the new location and was ready to begin operations.

H. Cram and Ike Blevins, of Crook county, arrived here Saturday with 40 head of fine draft horses. Mr. Cram will hold the animals here for a short time, and if he does not meet with a sale will take them either to Portland or the sound. —Dalles Mountaineer.

Mr. Crittendon, an Ohio stockman, was in Shaniko last night with two of the celebrated rams of the B. S. & L. Company, which he is taking home with him. Mr. Crittendon has been at Hay Creek for several days, assisting in grading sheep. —Antelope Herald.

Granville Poindexter of Ashwood, crook county, who has been visiting his mother Mrs. E. Poindexter and sister Mrs. W. H. Parker, left yesterday afternoon for his home. He has large interests in the mines on Trout creek and a large camp is springing up. They give promise of being among the richest in the West. —Albany Herald.

W. W. Brown came over from his ranch Tuesday on a short business trip. Mr. Brown, when asked how his horses and sheep had stood the winter, smiled peacefully and said: "There has been no winter. Livestock in my section remains in good condition, and so far as my own is concerned, it has been without the feeding of hay. I have fed some horses but my sheep have wintered on the range." —Burns News.

George F. Binnicker died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. I. J. Hagwood, in Canyon City March 5. He was born in Wurtemberg, Germany August 12 1813 and came to the United States in 1840. He was a veteran of the Mexican war and an Oregon pioneer, having come to this state in 1853, settling near Waterloo, Linn county. Fred Binnicker was well known to all the old timers of the western part of the state.

Les. Kelsay, brother of J. S. Kelsay who has been here since last spring, will leave soon for Farewell Bend, the proposed terminus of the Columbia Southern railroad, where he contemplates going into the newspaper business, starting up a new paper at that place. He will be associated with a newspaper man from Shaniko who is foreman on the Shaniko Leader. Les has made many friends during his stay in this valley who will be glad to see him succeed in his venture. —Paisley Post.

The Wild Turkey.

A subscriber at Halsey writes: Information concerning wild turkeys being called for in the Herald of the 13th inst, will say that this bird, as known to your correspondent, is a very large fowl, much larger than the medium sized wild goose, and is originally a timber bird, though one that might thrive in this valley, as they are known to abound in the state of Missouri, which has not as much timber as this locality.

They are very tempting to sportsmen on account of their size and beauty and would probably be hard to get them started on that account.

The wild turkey furnishes very desirable meat, being a very palatable and healthful diet. Their food consists of grubs, seeds and tender vegetables such as are found in the timber, together with different kinds of roots, for they are great scratchers.

We think that these birds would be very desirable if they can get a start, though they would be much more easily exterminated than the wily China pheasants, as, on account of their size, they would be unable to hide from the boy with the gun. —Albany Herald.

Death of Major Magone.

News has been received in Canyon City of the death of Major Joseph Magone, the well known Indian War Veteran. He died in Ogdensburg, N. Y., February 15, at the age of 81 years.

Major Magone left Ogdensburg and went west in 1843, and in 1847 made the journey overland to the Pacific coast. In 1849 he joined the gold-seekers in California. In 1853 he made his home in the Willamette valley, in Oregon. He served during the Indian war of the Pacific slope, and rose to the rank of major. He left surviving three sons, two of whom, M. A. and E. E. Magone, reside in Oregon City, and one in Montana; also a brother, Daniel Magone, and a sister, Mrs. McGoey, who resides in Ogdensburg.

Major Magone was a man of more than ordinary ability, having a keen perception, a good memory and a fine command of language. His large experience as a pioneer in the great west had given him a fund of anecdote and story that made him a most agreeable companion and a man of mark wherever he went. During his long career he led a clean and temperate life, and was pure in thought, deed and word. He had many friends and no enemies. The memory of such a man lives long after his demise and his influence reaches through eternity. —News.

The Wasco county convention, under control of Moody delegates, refused to pass resolutions that were introduced for the purpose of getting the sense of the convention with regard to returning Joseph Simon to the senate. This refusal is a practical endorsement of Simon and fully proves what has been asserted by many that Moody and Simon were working together in this campaign. Moody has one disadvantage however—he can't vote for senator next winter.

For some time past we have been running an advertisement for the Noyes Fuller Co. of Philadelphia, Pa. They were to pay every thirteen weeks; on presenting their bill we were met with a flat refusal on the ground that the ad had not been inserted according to contract. We believe these people to be frauds and have written to the postal authorities regarding them.
