Monday this city and surrounding country was visited by the most severe windstorm ever known here. It blew for about an hour and swept the streets cleaner than they have been this year. A windmill on the premises of Mrs. Dayton Elliott was blown down and fell on an outbuilding and partly demolished it and one of the neighbors' fence. Bob Smith's engine house was laid low and the engine had to sleep out of doors on that account. No other damage was reported, but from indications we should say that over in the John Day country they had something in the nature of a "jynnicane."

Only about half of the voters of this precinct have registered, so we were informed Saturday by the clerk. Register. No matter what party you belong to, for it is the greatest privilege that we have on this mundane sphere—to cast our ballot.

Dick Vandeventer is moving out to his ranch in the vicinity of Lava. We shall miss his smiling countenance among us this summer, but he will be back in the fall no doubt like the flowers that bloom in the spring, only he blossoms in the fall. Well, Dick's alright, any way.

This office has just finished printing 750 catalogues for Elkins & King which is the finest work of the kind ever turned out of a print shop in this town and will compare favorably with the work of any of the large city shops. These gentlemen deserve great credit for their enterprising spirit and modern methods of advertising.

Last Friday the editor was the recipient of one of the nicest bouquets that ever graced a sanctum in any city. Among other fine flowers were some beautiful carnations, as fine as could be produced, even in Portland, and pansies and others of which we are ignorant as to their names, but their fragrance was delightful. This bouquet was presented by Mrs. Taylor Hill, who has the finest flower garden in the city. Our feeble thanks are inadequate to express the pleasure afforded us by these fragrant beauties.

Important.

By the provisions of an act of congress approved March 11, 1902, filings and final proofs for land under the Timber and Stone acts may now be made before U. S. Commissioners. Timber claims promise to be very valuable in the near future and as these lands are being rapidly taken by eastern people, parties here who desire land of this description should not fail to take advantage of the opportunity to secure claims before they are all gone. For full information as to prices, terms, and location of timber land, apply to A. C. Palmer, U. S. Commissioner, Prineville, Oregon.

Ed Dorgan arrived from Albany Monday and will look over this part of the state for business opportunities.

Frank Elkins says that all the candidates who expect to be elected should get their shoeing done at the shop of Cornett & Elkins. A little oil of perseverance taken with their smooth shoeing will certainly bring them out in the lead.
